CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION.

HEN one reads of the number of suicides thefts, highway robberies, murders and outrages of various kinds that are of daily occurrence in all parts of the country, of open Sunday theaters, Sunday picnics and Sunday excursions, Sunday baseball games and races which have a large and enthusia attendance, one well may be pardoned for asking: Are we really a Christian people? As we see the large number of Christian churches which exist in every community, we cannot question that a powerful Christian sentiment exists in America It is evidenced also in the extent and number of our philanthropic institutions. Money is given freely everywhere for the uplifting and betterment of the race. Borrow, want and suffering appeal powerfully to us Our missionary enterprises are on a gigantic scale and we have sent the gospel to all lands where the people were sitting in darkness and the shadow of ignorance and idolatry. How is it, then, that so many of the cardinal principles of Christianity are not regarded by ma? Is it not a fact that although a Christian people, Christian sentiment is not sufficiently strong to mold public feeling and public habit as they should be molded into full conformity with the requirements and teach-ings of genuine Christianity? What place has the open mloon, the Sunday baseball game, the Sunday theater and numberless other Sabbath profanations in the life of a people who lay claim to being a Christian people and to the observance of that divine law, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy?"

It would be wise for us to heed these things and to onsider whither we are drifting and how far departed from the teachings and practice of the founders of Christian civilization in America.

The large influx of foreigners who come hither bringing with them the ideas of the Old World continental Sabbath, and who have no love for the American Sabbath, regarded as a day of worship and of rest from worldly pleasures and employments, is bringing about a gradual and deplorable change in the way in which the Sabbath is observed among us. With too many it is simply a day of idleness or pleasure. They have no reverence for the day nor regard for its sacredness. They forget that it is one of the strong foundation stones upon which Christian civilization is reared, and that without the Sabbath Christian America would oon relarce into tyranny and barbarism.

Says Booker T. Washington:

"When measured by the standard of eternal, or even present justice, that race is greatest that has learned to exhibit the greatest patience, the greatest self control, the greatest forbearance, the greatest interest in the poor, in the unfortunate; that has been able to live up in a high and pure atmosphere, and dwell above hatred and acts of cruelty."

But without the Sabbath none of these qualities will be ours. If we would preserve our religious freedom, our philanthropy and the glory of our Christian civilization, we must observe the Sabbath day and keep it holy. We must put from us the growing evils in our midst which we have so long tolerated, and public sentiment should be so strong against this wholesale Sabbath breaking that men would no more think of openly indulging in it than they would of committing theft or murder.

Give us a Sabbath observing people and Christian America is safe, and she will go on from glory to glory and from strength to strength until she shall be the light of the whole world and the unfailing refuge of an enduring Christian civilization. But without it we shall decay as other nations and peoples have decayed and passed into the engulfing silence of a dead E. A. O. and vanished past.

STILL ONWARD.

M AN'S conquest over nature is continuous and rapid, and the world under the manipulations of the scientist is growing practically very small. Linked by the strong ocean cable with other lands, it takes but a few moments of time for us to speak around the world. The dweller in the antipodes is virtually not so far from us as was our neighbor in the next State a hundred years ago. The mighty seas offer no barrier to our intercourse. The ocean cable is the electric tongue which utters our thoughts for us in the ears of the most distant peoples. We have made the mighty and unseen forces of electricity our servants, which haste to do our bidding within the seas and upon the land, and there is no speech nor language which they may not reach.

It is asserted that "the submarine cables if joined would reach to the moon," and yet over that vast dis-tance our words are borne, and the seas cannot drown them nor the roar of their mighty waves shut out their meaning. Nature has no barrier that is strong enough to overpower the omnipotence of mind. Man stands at the head, the last and noblest link in the long chain of created things. We cannot measure his capacities or find the limit where we shall say in relation to his achievements in scientific research and discovery, "thus far shalt thou go and no farther." The march of the race is onward and still onward, and where it shall stand at the close of the twentleth century is beyond the power of our computation of today.

But rapidly as we have advanced during the century just closed, more rapid and wonderful will be the forward movement in the century which has just begun. It, with the grand basis for advancement which was laid by the nineteenth century, can but be a century of marvelous achievement and unfoldment, an unfoldment which today we are incapable of conceiving, or of estimating its influence upon the life and habits of civilization and the race. The yesterdays of time were dim and dark compared with today, and Today, compared with the Tomorrows of time, is doubtless like the effulgence of a star contrasted with the light of the unclouded sun.

REMARKS BY MEN OF THE TIMES.

Los Angeles continues to lead in increase of postal receipts, as in many other things. The largest percentage of increase in fifty leading cities of the country for February was 34, the record of Los Angeles.

Frederick Remington, the artist, claims that the cow-boys are becoming extinct. Is it because they object to having their pictures painted so promiscuously, or do they round up cattle, nowadays, in automobiles?

Along with the changes that the late century is the change in the conditions of authors. in olden times it was customary for them to starve in garrets and become expert in the art of dodging bill collectors, some of them now receive as much as one dollar per word for their work and are able to eat three meals, or more, regularly every day.

A brief dispatch from San Salvador indicates the fre-quency of revolutions in the volcano belt of Central America. It stated that the Presidency had been handed over to a man who was elected in February, and that it was the first peaceful transfer of the Presidency in fifty years. It is about time that the Central American States should get together, and make a decent republic.

en county. Ohio, has been compelled to Champaign county, Onto, has been compelled to pay a verdict of $5500 obtained against the county by the heirs of a colored man named "Clint" Mitchell, who was lynched at Urbana in 1897. In addition to the damages the county was required to pay costs amounting to about $1000. A few such verdicts as this would tend to make the pastime of lynching less popular than it seems to be at present, in some parts of the country.

A few of the many tourists who have visited South ern California dering the past winter have complained considerably because the weather was not so warm as they expected to find it. Indeed, the whole few minutes to keep the glass clear of moisture and dust. country is growing and there are good-sized cities here, the names of which we hardly know. Just now the times are hard and the country is in the midst of a bustness depression. It has, however, plenty of resources, and its savings banks are full.

relin is the best managed city in Europe. It has a streets are wide and well paved. Asphalt has been a most of them, and you can drop your relief almost anywhere without soiling it. There relief almost anywhere without soiling it. There ratio to be seen. If you throw a scrap of paper aparenest a policeman may order you to pick and if you leave a pile of dirt in your yard you a greated. One of the best ways for a bird's-eye view of Berlin is a ride on the Ringbahn. This is an elevated railway encircling the city and stopping at all the chief sections.

There are two branches, the North Ring and the South encircling the city and stopping at all the chief sections. There are two branches—the North Ring and the South Ring, which have trains every few minutes. The cars move by steam and the fares are exceedingly low. You can ride for an hour for 5 cents third class, and the second and first classes are not very expensive. There are slot machines at the stations which sell third-class tickets for the ordinary trip for two and one-half cents—each. Such a ticket gives a ride for five stations, and if you go further you must arrange for an extra paycach. Such a ticket gives a ride for five stations, and if you go further you must arrange for an extra payment at the end of the ride.

I took my tickets at the Friedrichstrasse Bahnhof. We shot out of the depot over an enormous restaurant built under the track and rode some miles to the edge of the city. We went by the cattle market and slaughter houses belonging to the municipality, past the city gas works and skirted the edge of Berlin, finding five-story buildings clear to the boundaries. Farther on we entered the city again, rode about the Thierrange parts. schittet and every signboard has to be approved at eas go up. You cannot build a dog kennel the approval of the City Fathers, and they regardle with of every wall, the height of the ceilings to beight of every house. The result is that of the buildings are uniform. They are all you can ride for miles past yellow structures stories, most of which have stores below and entered the city again, rode about the Thiergarten, past

The stores usually have small stocks, but they carry their whole stock in the windows. Many of the windows are framed in with shelves or with rolling cupboards which can be pushed up close to the plate glass. As you look at the windows you imagine the establishment is large, but upon entering find only a counter and a small compartment back of it, with one or two clerks in charge. If you ask to see something like the goods in the windows the merchant rolls back the cupboard and hands you out the article, for it is often the only one he has in stock. If you buy he thanks you, but if not, in most cases, he assumes an injured air and wonders what you mean by asking the price and handling his rest. you mean by asking the price and handling his goods without purchasing.

Indeed, I fear to look at any article here without I am sure of buying something before I leave. The merchants are not accustomed to our ways of doing. They make more of their business and give you less for your money. They expect you to take your hat off when you enter the store and keep it off while there, and you should say good-by when you leave, at which time one of the clerks opens the door and bows you out. The average clerk wears a frock coat, and in the best stores all the clerks are dressed in this way.

Berlin's New Department Stores.

The crusty customs of the Berlin merchants have made department stores very popular. The people are the zoological garden and in the end came back to the Berlin the Dude Among Cities.

This ride shows one how well Berlin is built and how well it is kept. Most of the buildings are new, and notwithstanding the poor who are as many as in any city in Europe, except London, it has no eyesores. One sees no clothes hanging out of flat windows or on ropes or wires stretched from building to building as in the cities of the United States. There are no ash piles or tin cans in the back yards and even the wood and scraps are nicely piled.

The roads are everywhere clean. The city is a dude compared with other municipalities. It has creases in its trousers and a bouquet in its button hole. Most of the flats in the summer have window gardens hanging out over the streets. These are filled with flowers and the various stories are decorated with lines of roses and fuchsias and other bright-colored blossoms. Of late the flats have been built with baloonies arranged especially for flowers so that one can walk under hanging gardens for miles through the streets, looking up at flowers all the way.

In Business Berlin.

The business parts of the city are becoming quite as well decorated as the residence sections. The Germans are good window dressers. They understand the value of liable are about the same size. Nuremplate glass, and many merchants keep men on the side-walks who rub the windows with chamois skins every glad to go where they can look at goods without buyin and where merchants advertise that it is no trouble show them.

There have been no department stores in Germany until late, but there are now two in Berlin, either of which would be a credit to any American city. Each employs about 2500 hands, with more on Christmas. The most of the employes are girls, as well drossed and as fine-looking as you will see anywhere. They work from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening, with two hours off at moon for lunch. Their wages are with two hours off at noon for lunch. Their wages are from 25 to 50 cents a day, and they eat and sleep them-

The department stores do all they can to attract cus-om and visitors. Take Wertheims's, which is the bigtom and visitors. Take Wertheims's, which is the big-gest store in Berlin. It has a winter garden filled with palm trees and tropical plants and so covered with ferns that they make a perfect carpet on each side the path. There is a fountain in it and where the customers can rest and chat between the in-tervals of shopping. In the summer there is an addi-tional garden and fountain. The store has a luncheon coom and all the other attractions of similar establishments in the United States.

Teitz's Department Store, which ranks next to Wertheims's, has an American soda fountain, which came from Philadelphia. The fountain is an immense one made of marble and silver. It has about one hundred spigots. It furnishes ice cream soda, but the drink de not compare with our American article. This is one

Both of these stores have their photograph galleries, with special days for men, women and children. The day I visited Wertheims's was evidently baby day, for a score and more of babies were waiting to be taken. The photographer was a swell dressed in a long black frock coat and creased trousers. He showed me his in-added a traveling bureau, where you can buy railroad and steamship tickets and have round-trip rates all over Europe at reduced prices.

One of the chief drawbacks in this trade is the lack of cash carriers or cash boys. The clerks are not al-for you and you go with them to one of the cashier's desks stationed in different parts of the store and your-self pay over the money. At the same time the clerk hands your purchases to the bundle boy to be wrapped

I don't know whether our department stores have the same system of buying goods which is common here. On the top floors of the department stores are sample rooms with counters and all facilities for displaying goods. Or certain days of the week certain kinds of goods bought, and on these days the men selling such goods appear with their samples. Monday, for instance, may be corset day. At that time all the corset salesmen from Berlin and elsewhere come to the store and fin

Europe, and many kinds of goods are made in it. It is noted for its notions, and in this is fast becoming equal

These people live well. They are great eaters and great and everything is well served.

As to beer, the Germans make the best, and they now it. There are millions invested in beer gardens

NOT ONLY RULE THEIR HUSBANDS, BUT DIVORCE THEM AT WILL.

By a Special Contributor.

TO THE American mind, the salient feature oriental civilization is the subjection of women. It is safe to say that the tearful tales of India's childwidows and the drowning of China's girl bables have done more to finance American missions in the Far East than all other influences put together. Yet be it known to all women who hold up club-going America as the country where the most progressive femininity is in evidence, that there exists in the heart of Asia a race of 5,000,000 souls among whom the women re not only equal, but superior, to the men. From the cradle to the grave, they have the best of it. The girl weds the man of her choice, and then proce to rule him as never an American man endured in his happiest days of courting. She owns the house, she holds the purse, and she divorces her husband at pleasure. There is no harem for her, and she enjoys whatever educational facilities are offered her race. These ople are the Laos, and their extremely ancient origin is the reason for this feminine supremacy. It is vival of the primitive matriarchate, once universal. Laos, living in a remote region cut off from the rest of the world, have simply retained their primitive ideas. The Laos were in China before the Chinese came. The invaders drove them South, where the remnant of the race still lives in the northern part of Siam.

Laos is a little world by itself, shut in by towering mountains, and reached only by the river, on which the traveler must resign himself to live six weeks while his boat is laboriously poled up stream from Bangkok. No white people live there except the missionaries of the American Presbyterian Church. Rev. W. Clifton Dodd, who has been at the head of this work for many years, is now in America, and brings interesting news of this

Since there are no fortunes to be made, and a good bamboo house can be secured for 15 cents, nothing pre-upon marriages, which occur at about sixteen.

Upon marriage the man relinquishes every claim to his father's property. He cannot inherit a single fruit tree or rice field. He goes to his wife's house, and though the family property is held in common by husband and wife, she is recognized as the actual owner. She holds the joint earnings of both and has the de-ciding voice as to their disposal.

In the dry season, the men often make long trading trips into the surrounding country. If, on his return, a Laos husband fails to account for his stock and to turn over the proper amount of money to his wife, he is apt to lose her. She simply orders him to leave, and public opinion sustains her in the act. The man has not treated her fairly, and she has a right to divorce him.

No Laos husband hesitates an instant when this con No Laos nussand estates an instant wash this con-mand is given. Every principle of his manhood forbids him to remain in the house a moment longer, or ever to return to his wife. He leaves and the house and property remain hers. Sometimes men desert their wives, but this is unusual. All these divorces are legal, for the courts leave it entirely to the people to regulate their own marital relations. Still, says Mr. Dodd, di-vorces are less frequent, proportionately, than in Amer-There is no law as to the children, but they usually remain with the mother, who is quite as well able support them as the father.

A Laos woman has a strong commercial instinct and is often a trader or merchant. Agriculture is universal, every family having its own house and land, and, while the woman does not work regularly in the fields, she helps at special times. She weaves splendid cotton cloth on her handloom, strong and durable and quaint and beautiful in its design and coloring.

She makes her own skirt, a straight, narrow bag with fine, richly-colored stripes. A mass of white cotton, passing over one shoulder and under the other, com-pletes her toilet. But for festive occasions she puts a wreath of flowers upon her hair and even tucks a flower through the hole pierced in her ear. This hole, which is usually large, she also finds a convenient place to carry an extra cigar, for she is an inveterate smoker. She brushes her jet black hair back straight, and coils it so cunningly that it needs no pins to hold it in place. Her skin is a rich olive, her eyes brown and lustrous.

She has a voice like music, and her mental and physical freedom have made her gay, bright and witty. She does not kiss or shake hands, but, instead, will rub her nose against your cheek or neck, exclaiming, "How fragrant.

If she wishes to do you honor, she will fold her hands raise them to her forehead and bow—a pretty gesture.

Like all her race, the Laos woman is passionately fond of flowers and music. There is a garden or a flowerpot at the poorest house, and on moonlight nights the air is full of the sweet notes of the reeds on which the people blow. Many stringed instruments are also used, and a young man sings the praises of his sweetheart as he er house after his evening call. The verses for the has composed himself, perhaps writing them on a palm leaf with a stylus.

The Laos are not an illiterate people, and though they know naught of printing, they have an ancient written literature. Rolled palm leaf books may be found in old Buddhist monasteries and in many private houses, and treasures of folklore probably await the explorer.

But with all her freedom and her few cares, a strange pall of supersuition darkens the life of the Laos woman. If all the ghost stories ever told in America were im plicitly believed, some idea could be got of the thraldom of these women to superstition.

Atl sickness, death and misfortune are credited to the spirits, and life is burdened with efforts to propitiate them. The Laos mother makes regular offerings before the little spirit house, which stands on every veranda. She keeps a lighted lantern on her housetop at flight so that wandering spirits may see their way past and not stop. She teaches her child to send off tiny, lighted boats from the river banks to please the And when the child falls sick, the spiri tiger's tooth over the little body till it be

As it was to be an affair of three or four hours, possibly more, we all armed ourselves with packets of sa wiches and cakes and a flask of brandy and water. withes and cases and a flask of brandy and water. One of the men of our party included with his sandwiches some eggs which he declared to be hard-boiled and gave to favored friends as a treat, but which, when opened, proved to be soft, much to our dismay, and as cold soft-boiled eggs were too much even for our then ravenous appetities, we stowed them carefully away under our bench with a sigh bench with a sigh.

The roads leading to the Durbar amphitheater were already beginning to be crowded with tieca gharris, ekkas, finrikishas, bulleck carts, tongas and a few private carriages, and signs along the road announced, greatly to our delight, "Tongas, sedan chairs and jinrikishas for hire." The vast plain around the building greatly to our delight. Tongas, sedan chairs and rikishas for hire." The vast plain around the building was dotted with elephants and camels in gay trappings and the troops were gathering in from all directions, bands playing and bayonets flashing in the brilliant sunshine. It was already a gay and interesting sight.

The Audience.

The entrance to the tiers of seats on either wing of the huge semicircle was from the outside up a long flight of long stairs covered with turkey red. Numbers of the minor chiefs were scattered throughout the audience and next us we had three of them, one up-country chief, whose very fair skin, blue eyes and almost yellow hair looked odd under his jeweled turban. Earrings seemed quite out of place on him and his native gorgeousness a mistake. The troops, 37,000, were drawn up by this time in the plain in front of the Durbar amphitheater and the Guard of Honor, the dashing Highlanders, the only soldiers inside, stood directly in front of the dais, and near the massed Honor, the dashing Highlanders, the only soldiers inside, stood directly in front of the dais, and near the massed bands, which played off and on from the arrival of the first chief. The princes came very quietly, leaving their carriages at the foot of the stairway as did every one else, and the first thing which made a stir was the ar-rival of the Mutiny veterans, European and native.

Great Enthusiasm.

Such enthusiasm I have never seen equaled. whole mass of people, as the old veterans hobbled and crawled in, all, to a man, either halt, lame or utterly used up, rose to its feet and cheered. The cheers and clapping were as deafening, if not more so, for the na-tives, one of whom had to be supported in very glowly, by two servants. It was all we could do to keep back the tears and the eyes of the men, too, looked piclously bright. Even after the poor old things looked sus taken their seats, the audience remained standing and cheered and ciapped uproariously. The next to arrive were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with their two squadrons of British and native cavalry. The day was so brilliant and the atmosphere so clear that the waving pennons, glittering lances and gay uniforms, seemed to shine and glitter with a joy in their own brilliance and even the saddest or most misanthropic of beings must have felt the general joyousness of those few brilliant hours. The salute of thirty-one guns announced the arrival of their Royal Highnesses and as they approached the dais the very imposing Guard of Honor presented arms and the audience rose and the national anthem was played by the massed bands. The Duke and Duchess were welcomed with a fair amount of enthusiasm, but neither they nor the vice-regal party were cheered as were the old veterans or the Imperial Cadets. The Royal Dukes would make nice country chatelaines, but lack of the commanding and really kingly presence which the Prince of Wales always had, and which to a certain extent Lord Curzon possesses. As the King's represen-atives ascended the dais and took their seats, the second royal salute sounded, the bayonets of the mass of troops drawn up on the plain outside flashed dazzlingly down the line, as they presented arms, and the Viceroy and Lady Curzon drove into the arena with their bodyguard and the much-admired cadets with fine old Pretab Singh

An Ideal Vicereine.

Lady Curzon, in palest blue and a large hat, was in every respect what she, as Vicercine of the Indian empire, ought to be, graceful, gracious, queenly, elegant in every point, well dressed and beautiful. To all that, if one adds youth and a very sweet charm, she stands described. The comparisons as she mounted the dais, courtesied with infinite grace to the Duke and Duchess and then took her sent slightly back of the royal lady, were rather "oulous" to the Duchess and certainly fav-orable to the Vicereine, and I overheard one very "British" Englishman of the party exclaim, "She is perin every way, (as wife, mother, woman and 'Vicereine'

reine!"

The Imperial Cadets, we felt, were deserving of the praise, "perfect in every way," in which an Imperial cadet ought to be perfect, as officers, princes of the empire, guard to the Viceroy and above all as riders. In that respect our enthusiasm for them knew no bounds, and it is simply impossible to describe the easy grace of the enthusiasm of the perfect of the easy grace. the Mohammedan dockers and the ligit is the different camps finished up the shim blue, and then I give is the different camps finished up the enthusiasm passed over Lady Curzon and neglected the Imperial Cadets for once, but centered on the beautiful horse of old Pretab Singh. It is the most beautiful horse of old Pretab Singh. It is the most beautiful the arrangement of the evening was spent around the table. perfection in shape, color and size, with all the airs and graces and nonsense possible to a spoiled creature, yet perfectly obedient. We are told that horse and master were as intimate as man and animal could be, and that nothing was too good in the eyes of Pretab Singh for the enchanting creature.

The Duke and Viceroy being seated in their two gold chairs or thrones, the Imperial Cadets, who had ridden off with the rest of the guard, appeared on foot, two and two, at the extreme end of one of the wings, and his mounted trumpeters The gorgeous herald with then slowly approached and formed up with a flourish of trumpets in front of the dais while he read the proclamation. Then came the national anthem, the one hundred and one guns and lastly the feude joie, which we liked best of all. The prescribed "cold chill" of delight had its way with us as the somber, deep voice of the guns began in the distance and played its way up the line, dying away again in the opposite distance, all in the flash of an instant. The address of the Viceroy was delivered in a loud, clear voice so that anyone with average hearing had nothing to complain of, but we were in such haste to see the presentation of the native princes that our interest in the address flagged.

Presentation of the Princes.

At last, however, the presentation began. The Viceroy and Duke stood in front of the thrones and-but I ill quote the very valuable little red book. The foreign secretary will next ask per present the ruling chiefs present at the Durbar. The ruling chiefs will, in the order previously arranged, advance to the front of the dais in turn, and will briefy offer their congratulations to His Majesty, the King-Emperor, through His Excellency, the Viceroy, who with His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, will receive them standing. At the conclusion of the presentation, the Foreign Secretary will request permission to close the Durbar."

That all sounds so exactly like Lord Cuzron that I feel quite sure he wrote it all himself, and really it is not at all improbable.

The poor Foreign Secretary, whom we all pitied, for his was a thankless task and his very undecorative figure, tall and narrow, looked still less decorative as he repeatedly backed away from the august presences. When he had secured permission to present the chiefs, the real Durbar began! Each native Prince, as his turn came, left his red velvet armchair, and, accompanied by two attendants, walked with great dignity to the corner of the dals where he left his gentlemen-in-waiting and ad-vanced alone to the front, shook hands with the Vice-roy and Duke and after a few words, moved off to the

It is quite impossible to describe the gorgeousness of their costumes, the flashing of their jewels or the princely dignity of their bearing. Their case and grace and utter lack of self-consciousness was a delight to behold

Imposing Natives.

The first to be presented was the great Nizam of Hyderabad, and the small old man was an impressive sight, dressed in quiet colors, but with a few very magright, dressed in quiet colors, but with a few very magnificent jewels. The Viceroy and Duke received his gracious greeting as if it were an honor indeed, and were visibly impressed. We longed to know what the old Prince said to them and what he felt when saying it. When Pretab Singh, in the uniform of colonel of the Imperial Cadets, was presented, it was more like the meeting of friends, and he evidently said something amusing from the smiles on the three faces.

The versatile Maharajah of Kapurthala was the most.

The versatile Maharajah of Kapurthala was the most gorgeous of all. His turban was decorated with a large crown of diamonds which they said had cost a fabulous sum and was no small coronet but a huge crown, necessarily large to surround the big turban which evidently contained yards upon yards of gold gauze. His neck was loaded with chains of huge pearls, rubies, pear-shaped emeralds and sapphires, and his coat was one mass of embroidery of precious stones on cloth of gold.

mass of embroidery of precious stones on cloth of gold. The boy Maharajah of Patiala was a lovely harmony of pale pink and blue with jewels, and had a simple and dignified manner which was immensely attractive, and there was great enthusiasm when he went up accompanied all the way by his guardian. One of the most interesting of the long line of glittering, unspeakably gorgeous figures, was the Begum of Bhopal, the only woman presented. She looked only a huge, shapeless bundle of duil draperies, and was closely veiled, but she caused great enthusiasm and the applause was long and loud. long and loud.

The Burmese Princes came last of all, but were to us the most interesting, for they were clad in the most rethe most interesting, for they were clad in the most remarkable costumes, which appeared to be gold and silver armor in large scales, and which glittered as they walked, and flashed in the sunlight. Their names, the Myoza of Has Mong Hkan, the Sawbwa of Yawng Hwe and the Sawbwa of Mong Pawn, were enough to altract one's interest, and the small, distinguished beings with helmets of solid gold, with wings or dragon-shaped, were to us the most odd and interesting of all. The jewels were beyond words and not a chief of high or heinets of some gold, which were to us the most odd and interesting of all. The jewels were beyond words, and not a chief of high or low degree but had strings of most wonderful stones, and jeweled aigreties on their turbans, jewel-studded coats, jeweled hilts to their awards or tulwars, in fact every place which could be made to hold a jewel held one or more. Almost all the princes wore diamond earrings and all had jeweled buttons, belts and bracelets. What a gorgeous display, it seemed impossible to us that we two natives of practical, busy America could be looking upon such a scene in the twentieth century. At last it was over and after the departure of both the Dukes and Viceregal party, while all the native princes were talking amicably together before leaving the place, we took our dazzled selves to find our carriage and wend our homeward way.

Dormitory Life.

How it is Lived by the Boys at Stanford University.

By a Special Contributor.

F YOU ask a Stanford man what is the predominating influence in the life of his university, he will probably tell you "Stanford spirit." He will be unable to tell you definitely what he means by the term, as the idea cannot be expressed literally in any other way. He can tell you something about it, to the effect that it has helped a struggling team to victory more than once, it has kept the student body and alumni loyal during some of the gravest exists that can come to a college. some of the gravest crises that can come to a college, and that it seems to center in Encina Hall. Other things he can say but none less vague. It is the soul of Stanford life, and though it permeates the entire university, the big dormitory for the men students is preeminently the nucleus around which that life centers. That is the reason that student activities revolve about in fact, everything of a social nature to which the general college public is invited are held there.

The Encina men have organized themselves into a club which looks after the room directly, and provides all the latest magazines and papers, billiard and pool tables and a plano. The walls, however are the most interest-ing feature of the place. There are trophies and me-mentoes of athletic contests, banners presented to vic-torious teams, pictures of all the football, baseball and track teams since the beginning, when the first Stanford football eleven surprised Berkeley, themselves, and everybody else, by winning, and kindred souvenirs of the prowess of Stanford men. And not least in interest are some Philippine curios captured by Stanford soldiers in the Spanish war.

During the day the clubroom is a comparatively quiet place, for there is work to be done in libraries and lab-oratories, and there are classes to attend. But immeoratories, and there are classes to attend. But immediately after dinner in the evening, the place takes on life that is unmistakable.—From the University Inn, from the boarding clubs at College Terrace, from the boarding-houses over on "the Row," and from their rooms, come the students. Men in sweaters, smoking jackets, street clothes, with coats and without, all come That is the reason that student activities revolve about Encina as spokes about a hub.

When the first students entered the University, in 1891, it was very different from the Stanford of today. A long, low group of buildings around a quadrangle of several acres constituted the home of the embryo in-

The ex-tensive building operations of the last few years have changed the appearance of the campus not a little. But Encine Hall has not been dwarfed by any of its big neighbors, and it is always an object of interest to the any tourists who visit the place. The ground pian of Encina is a huge letter "E," its stretching toward the south. This arrangement every room an outside window. The north side, gives every room an outside window. The north side, on which is the main entrance, is by far the most imposing part: Asphalt driveways, encircling grass plots, lead up to the granite steps of the plazza, which extends across the entire front and might more properly be called a promenade. Iron railings run its length and palms and flowers growing in the garden below partially screen it from the driveways, lending a semi-tropical effect quite in harmony with the mission style of the

Inside the big double doors you enter the spacious lobby with its wide open fireplaces and big white pillars. On the farther aide a flight of three or four steps leads up to a landing, from which, on either hand, broad stairways, like the rest of the woodwork, of yellow pine, rise in opposite directions to the floors above. Between the stairways, opening on the landing, is the entrance to the elubroom.

What Encina is to Stanford this clubroom is to En cina. It is a big hall almost square, originally intended for a dining-room, and it was used as such for sev-eral years. Mrs. Stanford turned it over to the men of Encina, however, a few years ago, in order that they might have a room in which they could meet for recreation and social intercourse. Since then the clubroom as become a common meeting place of all the students Pootball railies, dances, stag parties, receptions, and

All the football songs are sung on th by enthusiasm. All the football songs are sung on this occasion, while somebody plays them on the plano, and a leather-lunged fellow leads the singing, beating time with both arms. Every song ends with the Stanford yell, and there is consequently plenty of noise. The coach is called upon for a speech and mounts a table. He is greeted with, "What's the matter with Coach so and so?" "He's all right." "Who's all right?" "Coach so and

A Madonna Luncheon.

AN ENTERTAINMENT SUITABLE TO EASTER WEEK.

By a Special Contributor.

COMETHING quite new and approprite for Easter week is a Madonna luncheon, and many pretty ideas may be introduced in the decorations of the table. The most beautiful flowers that can be used are the pale Annunciation lilies which grow in such abundance at the glad Easter-tide.

In the center of the round table place a large crystal bowl-a punch bowl of cut glass-if you are fortunate enough to count one among your treasured possessions—filled with the pure Easter lilles and sprays of maiden hair or asparagus fern, while these delicate fern fronds may be scattered profusely over the snowy linen shortly before serving time. Place beneath the punch bowl, at right angles to each other, two bands of broad white liberty satin rib-bon, terminating at each side in huge French bows, thus giving the outline of a cross. At diagonal sides of the table tall, graceful vases of Venetian glass, containing two or three stately lily blossoms, may be used to good effect, or, if preferred, short-stemmed clusters of the blossoms tied with white satin or palest green gauze ribbon may be used. Silver or crystal candelabra containing white candles should be used, the delicate shades being of white slik gauze out in the shape of an immense Easter kly, the graceful petals curling back softly from the light. Bows of white satin may be caught to the base of the candelabra. If one owns a particularly fine large candelabrum of many branches, a pretty way is to utilize that as the center piece, the waxen blossoms being massed in a mound about it. Another pretty way is to cut the lily blossoms off at the calyx and place in each a tiny white or green Christmas tree candle, and then place a blossom at each plate. These may also be used about the table to outline the ribbon cross, if desired, and are something entirely new. The candies must, of course, not be lighted many minutes before the guests are to be seated, as the heat from the light will spoil the fresh appearance of the blo

From the fern-enclustered chandelier suspend two snow-white doves, from whose bills should be caught narrow white satin ribbons to each place, where they may be pinned by pearl-headed pins to the unique place markers. These should be in the form of crosses about six inches long and an inch and a half in width, made of white, double-faced satin ribbon fringed at each end, and hearing the name of the guest in gold across the and bearing the name of the guest in gold across the top. At the cross piece, in the center, to conceal any paste that may have stained through when the ribbons paste that may have stained through when the ribbons were fastened together, paste small Raphael angel heads cut from the penny Perry Pictures of the Sistine Madonna. These heads may be outlined with gold, using a very fine brush for the work. These crosses are afterward charming little prayer book markers, and are novel and pretty conceits. I have never known of their being used and think they are quite original.

When it is possible to get them, a cluster of white violets tied with white gauze ribbon to the back of each chair add a beautiful touch, the violet circle about the dainty table being truly lovely. If preferred, the ribbons may be caught to these clusters instead of to the place favors, or if the conventional place card, bearing merely the name of the guest and crest or monogram of the hostess, is used, these may be caught in among the violets.

The white cream bonbons should be served in small paper cases in the form of an Easter lily, while the ice cream is effective in the form of a calla lily, the main part of the blossom being of vanilla, and the yellow, spike-like bloom of apricot cream or orange ice.

In giving a luncheon of this kind, white and gold, or white and green china should be used, if possible, and bonbon dishes of Venetian glass, with those exquisite gold traceries, are just the thing if the hostess be so lucky as to possess them.

The following menus, suitable for a luncheon and dinner respectively, are given as a guide, but may be varied to suit the individual fancies of the hostess:

[New York Tribune:] Maj. John McGaw Woodbury Commissioner of Street Cleaning, has not quite got over

A working model of a street-cleaning machine, war-ranted to "do the work of ten men," got beyond the control of the inventor in Maj. Woodbury's office yes-terday afternoon, and the "merry Cain" it raised in a short ten minutes has left an ineffaceable impression on everybody on the fourteenth floor of the Park Row building.

The machine has a large funnel-shaped mouth, like a megaphone, and it is designed to pick up scraps of paper and other refuse along the street, and the air suction communicating with the funnel does the rest. By the time the inventor got the machine into the office yesterday he was red in the face, but smiling and confident. Maj. Woodbury was busy, as he always is, but he finally consented to watch a demonstration of the machine that was warranted to "do the work of tea

"It is perfectly simple and has the fewest working parts imaginable. All you have to do is to run it along on this little truck, and the dirt and refuse are sucked through this waste pipe into this bag," said the inventor, laying his hand on the described parts in turn. "How do I know it will do the work?" asked the commissioner.

"Why, that's easy," said the inventor; "I'll show you."
Capt. Gibson, the office boy, several cierks and the janitor's cat drew near to the inventor, as he bowed himself and began to get his machine ready to run. There were scraps of paper lying about, the major's cuffs were on the desk, and a pair of rubbers rested on the floor in front of the major's desk, "absolutely unconscious of the impending danger," as the good, old dime novel used to say, "while the indian crept up."

"It's perfectly easy and simple," rer ne inventor,
"All that is necessary is to adjust this little lever regulating the air suction, and run the truck around, like so."
Instable the reserve and his staff, tumped area.

Instantly the major and his staff jumped away from the machine, which began to reel and suck things up. "Stop it—for God's sake, stop it!" exclaimed the commissioner. "Don't you see it's eating everything up? Stop it! Take it out!"

"Why, that's all right," said the inventor, proudly, as the machine reached out for a rubber and sucked it in, as a Park Row panhandler would suck in clam chowder,
"It—just—needs—a—a—leetle—bit o' regu——"
The machine reeled again, and there was a snap of the regulating lever. The machine redoubled its speed and "cut loose" with a roar like a train going under a bridge. The other rubber, papers on the desk, the major's cuffs—all were sucked into the bag, as the inthe animal's eyes grew big as she felt herself going. Her claws went into the Turkish rug, and the clerks howled with merriment, as they saw the corner of the rug curl up and roll the cat under. Then there was a howl, and the cat bounded out the office door with a spring. Meanwhile, the Major and his staff were hurting themselves laughing.

"For heaven's sake, take it out—take it out:" txclaimed the major. "It may tackle my annual appropriation or the office safe—take it out:"

By this time the inventor was sweating with excitement, and, after a struggle, he got his runaway machine under control.

'It'll do the work of ten men, and it's perfectly

"My friend," said the major, "doubtless you've got a good thing—a very good thing—but I don't want it here. Please—please take it to Riker's Island, and try it on the dumps."

Then the inventor went out, assuring the commissioner that his invention was perfectly simple. He no sooner got out of hearing than a man with a patent garbage can weighing about 150 pounds appear at the outer gate. He wanted to see the commission

"This rests flush with the surface of the street and there is an inside can that can be removed," said the

"My friend," said the commissioner, "if your machine doesn't run by compressed air you can leave it here, and I'll look it over later. But don't make it go here don't try it on. This is a busy afternoon with us. That's right—leave it right out there. It'll be all right—don't mention it-it's no trouble. Good afternoon.

A VICAR'S PANTOMIME.

Last night the Rev. Forbes Phillips, vicar of Gorleston, produced his pantomime of "Dick Whittington" at the church schools before a crowded audience.

The vicar's little daughter took a prominent part in the performance, and the "company" included fifty school children. The church organist led the orchestra, while the parish clerk played the part of a Polar bear. Assistance was also rendered by the church wardend.

The vicar himself supervised the arrangements, with of demonstating the practicability of his scheme eaters in connection with church in hamlets and villages.

The idea has been taken up in the neighboring parish of Caister, where the church schools have been transformed into a theater on the same lines as at Gorleston.

The Republic of Haiti. A STUDY OF ITS SOCIAL AND ITS POLITICAL CONDITIONS.

From a Special Correspondent.

DORT-AU-PRINCE (Hajti) March 11.-Some student of the government has remarked that the more free dom an ignorant people are given, and the longer they are allowed to have it, the worse their position becomes. The history of Haitl certainly substantiates this statement. On the fourth of next January it will have been an independent country for 100 years. During this time it has had nineteen Presidents and but one of them has served out his full term of office; one or two died natural deaths, quite a number were taken off under circumstances which aroused a suspicion of foul piay, and the balance were forcibly turned out of office or ran away to prevent trouble. It has been a century of turbulence and vicious wrangling for position, and no Porfirlo Diaz has appeared, as in the case of Mexico to command the situation and stand guard over the dis-turbing elements while civilization threads her way over the rough road of barbarism. The national motto is "Unity is Strength," and the official crest bears the words "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity." That this is brony of the most pronounced sort is clearly demonstrated by a study of the last political campaign—if I life as a merchant, but soon deserted this calling to do a stunt in politics. He was Minister of Finance under Solomon. Being Minister of Finance in Haiti is a mighty fine job. After a man has held it down for a few years he need not work any more if—he does not feel like it. Mr. Fourchard was not willing to let well enough alone. He listened to the tempter and raised enough alone. He listened to the tempter and raised an army for the purpose of capturing the Presidency. Lots of money escaped from him and another man is President. Mr. Fourchard is very sorry that he ventured.

Mr. Firmin's Experiment.

Mr. Firmin is a scientist and an author. He has many scholarly attainments. Of all the men who wanted to succeed Sam he was really the one from whom the most might have been expected. Mr. Firmin thought so, too. He was so sure that he was the best man for the place that when the provisional government, which was pro-vided after Sam's hurried departure, failed to agree with him, he became real spunky and started a government of his own. He declared Gonalyes, a place in the northern part of the island which is celebrated on ac-count of the declaration of Haitian independence having been signed there, his capital, and started in to make Persons, but not Principles.

There are no political parties here who announce their platforms and enter into a campaign on the strength of their respective issues, but rather a number of ambitious candidates for power, who enter the field with nothing back of them save their own personality, and whose only real plea for recognition is that they will reward all followers with favor if they succeed in getting into office. Their adherents are followers of men and not of principles. In the last campaign there were Alexites, Fourchardists, Firminists, etc., which meant that Mr. Alexis was one party and Mr. Fourchard an-other and Mr. Firmin still another. According to the science of politics as practiced in this latitude it is the business of the candidates to recruit their followers into armies and the one who can count the most heads wins This method of getting into office by main strength and awkwardness, is a rather sad come-off on the brotherly love motto which is printed on the official stationery, if everything quieted down after one of these "elections" it would not be so bad, but the defeated ones seldom take their medicine like men. If they are not forced to leave the country they nurse their grudge and watch their chance to make trouble. The man in office has to sleep with one eye open; he finds it as hard to hold his place as it was to get it.

Simon Sam's Meteoric Career.

There were five principals and the reader may as well get acquainted with them. Simon Sam was the President. He was Minister of War for Hypolite, and when that worthy was reported to have died from heart disease while riding horseback in the country, Sam put on the dead man's boots and moved into the palace. Shortly before the expiration of Sam's term of office, which is seven years in Halti, a row was kicked up in the chamber of deputies and he had to hustle out of the "Several foreign ministers had to escort him on board a vessel bound for France because all of his friends were so busy courting his possible successor that Then swere so busy control to be stow on a person who I upheaval at home so they can return, and the change was a back number, even if that person had shown them in administration that will allow them to go back will

In an evil hour he got an itching for the Presidency and came so near landing it that his defeat hurts him worse than if he had been left at the post like Mr. Fourchard or finally shut out like Mr. Firmin. Last December he had the majority in the chamber of deputies and would surely have been elected, when along came Gen. Nord Alexis, all dressed up ready to sit in the President's chair, and accompanied by 10,050 soldiers ready to back him up and put him there. Of course Seneque Pierre had to lie down. He has gone back to making his famous rum. But they say he has a knife up his sleeve and that he is keeping one ear close to the ground; that although Gen. Alexis is pretty cute he is yet liable to get slipped up on. An Old Man's Trick.

Gen. Nord Alexis has been a soldier all his life. He is about eighty-seven years of age. He was for years Military Governor of the northern provinces of Haiti, which position ranks next in importance to the Presidency. The provisional government sent Mr. Alexis to chase Mr. Firmin away. He obeyed orders in this but returned just in time to spoil the rest of the programme It was a pretty foxy trick the old Pierre. played on the boys and while many of them do not like him a bit, they kowtow to beat the band and swear that he is the smartest man on earth. And in the meantime Haiti is having a breathing spell.

When there are a number of aspirants for the Presi-When there are a number of aspirants for the Presidency it is as difficult to select the right one as it is to pick the winner in a field of unknown running horses. It is more risky than a ten-to-one shot because if one loses his money he also risks his neck. In nearly all the surrounding islands there are exiles waiting for another unbeaul at home as they can return and the change

At a recent social gathering in Chicago, Prof. Starr related an amusing encounter with Santibaños, Jr., who is a Jefe Politico in Tehuanteper.

The Jefe Politico of Mexico has almost unlimited power within his own boundaries. Prof. Starr called on power within his own boundaries. Prof. Starr called on this official in Tehuantepec for papers to enable him to continue his explorations in and about the small in-terior towns. They had met before, and the Jefe, though so intoxicated at the time that the ceremony was difficult, gave him the cordial embrace of friendship.

"Nothing less than Providence sends of friendship," declared the Jefe, after he had managed to regain his seat. "Of all fool orders from a fool government, the one I have just received is the worst. Here I am commanded to capture and stuff a specimen of every kind of bird in my district for the National Maseum in the City of Mexico? What does a Jefe Politico know about stuffing birds? But you are a man of science and my friend, and you will do it for me. We will begin tomorrow morning."

Prof. Starr assured the Jefe that he was not a specialist in birds. The young man with him could prepare them, but unfortunately, he could not spare him, as they were to leave for the interior the next day. In a drunken fury the Mexican snatched a pistol from his table, pointed it at the professor, and told him that a Jefe Politico must be obeyed, that those birds had to be stuffed at once or his life would pay the forfeit, that one foreigner more or less did not matter, and no ques-

The Jefe's secretary looked on in a-state of mortification and distress, and tried in vain to enter a respectful protest with his superior. The professor extricated himself from the unpleasant situation by saying that they would discuss the matter further in the morning, and taking his departure with the usual formalities.

When he called at the office next day, he received his papers from the secretary, who informed him that the Jefe was ill and confined to his bed. Evidently his opinion of his own political power as affecting citizens of the United States had undergone a change during the night.

How the World Will End.

WHAT GREAT MEN HAVE THOUGHT ABOUT THIS SUBJECT.

From Pearson's Weekly.

ROF. LUDWIG MARIENBURG, of the University of Chicago, declares that the end of the world is near at hand. He has discovered, so he avers, that our little old planet has "jumped its orbit," so to speak, and is wobbling round in space, like an intoxicated man.

This irregularity, the professor explains, will shortly cause our summers to become hotter and hotter, and our winters to be colder and colder. Within fifteen or twenty years at the outside, according to his figures, the entire human race will be alternately either frizzled or frozen to death.

Even this, however, would be better than being cometstricken, after the fashion so graphically portrayed re-cently by H. G. Wells. Practically all scientists are agreed that what he describes is likely to happen sooner r later. Prof. Dewar goes even further. He says that not only may such a catastrophe occur at any time in the more or less near future, but that it "has certainly hap-pened, and almost certainly more than once, in the more or less near past.

The converse of this cataclysm of fire is a cataclysm of ice. This we know, for an absolute fact, to have oc-curred before; and we also know that it is practically certain to recur, and that, too, speaking geologically, at no very far distant date.

The reason is that the accumulation of ice round the South and North poles, the "ice caps," geologists call them, are ever getting thicker and thicker. More ice is formed by freezing during the long Arctic and Antarctic winters than is lost through melting in the short summers.

Meanwhile the water to form this ice-billions billions of tons of it, mind—is being taken up by the sun from the more temperate zones of the globe.

Some day or other this process is bound to affect th stability of the earth. It will become "top-heavy," and, as a result, it will, as it were, cant upon its axis.

The result will be that the present situation will be reversed. That is to say, the poles will be somewhere at opposite sides of what is now the equator, and the new equator will intersect what are now the poles.

The result would be that a world-wide earthquake would level all cities and towns, and even the hills and mountains, and the sea would sweep over the ruins.

Have you ever noticed how, it a fruit tart is left to cool without being cut, and without any opening being left in the center to permit of the internal heat escaping the crust will, as it becomes cold, sag down, and permit the still hot juice to well up over a portion of its surface

Now, this is exactly what Grant Allen affirmed will happen one day to the thinnest portions of the earth's

He also affirmed the probability that one area, at all events, of such thin crust, is situated in the Thames Valley, near Cookham; and, arguing from these premises, he drew a graphic description of the destruction wrought by a lava flood, which welled up near there, and rolled thence downward to the sea.

The earth thereabouts, according to Mr. Allen, opened suddenly, without an instant's warning, in a gigantic crack, or fissure, many miles long, whence millions of tons of the white-hot slag gushed out, and filled up the entire valley to a certain level, in and out among the hills, exactly as water might do.

When it was over, in twenty-four hours, London—as well as scores of riverside towns—was no more, its place being taken by the rapidly-congealing lava, afterward to be known as the Great Glass Desert. Richard Jeffries fully believed in the possibility of the state of affairs depicted by him in his "Wild Eng-

Briefly put, he aimed to show in the guise of a ro-mance, how comparatively easy it would be for this country to relapse into barbarism, and what terrible would ensue. A sudden stoppage of the food supplies from over the sea, coupled with civil war at home, causes a general exodus of the better classes of the population, and those that are left give themselves up to murder and pillage.

Agriculture is neglected, the mouths of the rivers are silted up, so that what little commerce there is dwindles and dies; and, finally, the remnant of the starying and degraded populace dissolves into eribes and bands, that degraded populace dissolves into eribes and bands, that take to the forests and jungles, preying upon each other, and living by hunting and fishing.

One place, however, they never go near to, and that is the "Great Putrid Lake," the center of the "Great Putrid Swamp," as it is called, which covers the ground whereon London once stood. This is a place apart.

The black water of the lake bears a greenish-brown seum, which forever bubbles up from the poisonous mud at the bottom, and from which there arises so noxious a vapor that the very wild fowl fly away intuitively from its influence! Also there are no fishes in the lake, neither can cels exist in the mud.

And the reason is that all the rottenness of a thousand years, and of many hundred millions of human beings are there, deep down in a vast sepulcher.

A NOTED PHYSICIAN'S MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP PLAN. By a Special Contributor.

To Fight Tuberculosis.

R. GEORGE F. SHRADY believes the future will bring advances in the healing art as yet undreamed of by humanity at large.

He bases his hope upon the work of the recent past, which, he says, has been chiefly along preventive lines and in helping nature to increase the individual's power of resistance against disease.

He foresees the ultimate practical stamping out consumption, through the adoption of nature's remedies which are free to all, and proposes the mu-nicipal ownership of tenements to hasten this result.

"Great progress has been made with the microscope and the test tube," said the doctor to the writer, the other evening. "In their discoveries concerning yellow fever and its spread by mosquitoes, Drs. Reed, Finlay, Carroll and Agramonte did the race an incalculable service. They accomplished more for Cuba than all the warships and all the soldiers, though the gift of free-dom from Spanish rule was a priceless boon.

"The island has been practically free of the fever since the American occupancy, for the first time in its history, and this has brought immunity to our own gulf ports. Nothing more important than the work of these men, and Ross's similar work in England, has been done in recent years. This would be true if the prevention of yellow fever had been all.

"These investigations have pointed a way to the ul-timate stamping out of malaria as well, since the germ of that disorder, also, is conveyed by the mosquito, and the precise circumstances under which this is accom-plished have been determined.

"It is not enough for the mosquito to absorb the or ganism that produces malaria or yellow fever from an infected person and then bite one who is well. The germ must remain within the mosquito long enough to develop properly before its bite will convey the disease from the sick to the sound.

The Doom of Tuberculosis.

"The most gratifying progress has been made in the treatment of tuberculosis

"No one need ask now if consumption can be cured. It can be cured. It is cured, practically, every day. But it is not and cannot be cured by drugs alone. you stimulants and nourishing foods which build up the vitality and add to the patient's resisting power, no remedies are specially needed, excepting those which nature furnishes. These are as free as the sunlight and air of heaven. In fact, they are light and air, and noth-

"Light and air can be had in the most crowded cities The working men can take care of them when walking on the street, or even in the park. Tuberculosis cannot get a hold on the man or woman whose blood is energized with plenty of oxygen, whose skin is browned by the winds and upon whom the light of the sun is allowed to play a good part of every day.

"Under such conditions you may inhale tuberculosis bacteria, and yet be unaffected. It is a question of seed and soil. The latter is always the essential element of propagation. There is enough vital force, enough power of resistance in the individual of perfect physical con-dition to overcome any evil influences. To put it another way, the phagocytes—the white corpuscles of the blood, which act as defenders of the health—in the cirenlation of the sound and normal person are strong enough and numerous enough to defeat the bacterial bosts in the battle royal sure to follow the invasion.

"The old notion that consumption as such is hereditary in some cases has been found to be a mistake. Children of consumptives, however, often show a general physical weakness and lack of resistance which is, in effect, pre-disposition to the disease. But with these, as with others, fresh air, light, proper nourishment and cleanliness will increase the power of resistance so that the effect of the bacteria may be overcome, even if taken into the system.

How to Fight Tuberculosis.

"This suggests the course which medical science is pointing out loday to the men of capital and the mu-nicipalities of the civilized world. Provision should be made for the proper housing of the workers. I am almost prepared to say that it would be true economy for the great cities to build tenements properly located and full of windows, through which light and air can and full of windows, through which light and air can pass freely, and rent them to their wage-earning citizens. "There may be some who would object to such an extension of the municipal ownership principle. But municipal ownership of waterworks is necessary, as they have learned to their sorrow at Ithaca. There, foul water, served through company mains, has cost many lives and much human suffering.

"Consumption costs enormously more in life and suf-fering and money in every American city than typhoid fever, and the municipal ownership of ten-ements is as logical as the municipal ownership of waterworks. The workings of the Peabody fund in London may serve to show how such a plan would succeed, and perhaps it is along similar lines that the movement should be conducted. But at the building of enough homes of perfect sanitary charwhich they can afford to pay, should be one of he great coming reforms. The plan offers an unexampled oppor-tunity for wealthy philanthropists if the cities will not take it up."

What Must Be Done Now.

To the suggestion that preventive measures will not help those already afflicted with tuberculosis, Dr. Shrady

"For them, either the municipalities or the wealthy citizens must build special hospitals and surround them with extensive grounds. There patients may take exerelse in the open air with the sun shining upon them There they may live out of doors. There they may even sleep with no roof over them. The cure thus offered must be furnished free to those who cannot afford to

There are a few such municipal and State hospitals now, but more must be established. With the great pre-rentive measures that I suggest accomplished, however, the need for hospitals and the withdrawal from productive activity of the patients, and the attendants and nurses who care for them, will gradually disappear.

Isolation of Consumptives Unnecessary.

In Dr. Shrady's judgment, the isolation of tuberculosis patients is not necessary or desirable, providing ordinary care in methods of life is exercised, and the dection of the sputum is attended to.

"It is as easy for those of small! means to care for their consumptives as for any one else," said Dr. Shrady, "unless they are too crowded and are obliged to live access. There are tenements, though, in every big city in this country, and in many smaller ones, too, I am sorry to say, over the doors of which might well be inscribed: 'All ye who enter here less that the latest the same of the sam scribed: 'All ye who enter here leave hope behind.'
It is the desire of the medical profession to educate the people, the city and the State to do away with these,

Light as a Cure.

"Light is one of the most remarkable of all the remedial agents at hand for the treatment of this class of dis-eases. Finsen, the Scandinavian, has shown this, through the things he has accomplished in the treatment of lupus with those invisible rays which are termed ultra-violet.

"Lupus is not common in America, though well known and dreaded on the other side of the Atlantic. It is a form of tuberculosis, not of the lungs, but of the surface, and Finsen destroys it by subjecting his patients to the purely chemical rays. His rays have not been made to penetrate deeply enough as yet, however, to be very efficacious in tuberculosis of the lungs.

"Just how much progress can be made with similar treatments, no one knows as yet. In London and Paris, in Berlin and Vienna, in Copenhagen and New York, investigators are studying the effect of the blue light and the ultra-violet rays under varying circumstances.

and the ultra-violet rays under varying circumstances. They are also experimenting with various lenses and other media through which to pass the light.

"There have been many experiments with the X-Rays in fighting cancer, but these have not been successful except in superficial cases. Even then the rays have not been of much greater, if any more, benefit than the plan of scraping out the bed of the ulcer and using "The knife still remains the last resort for well-developed cancer. Even it fails when the disease is of such long standing as to allow thorough distribution of the disease through the system.

Promising Bacteriological Researches.

"There is promise in the immense activity now being displayed in bacteriological research. While it has not led to the discovery of remedies in a great number of instances, it has laid bare the causes of several disor-ders to which the flesh is heir. In this way it has led the profession closer and closer to the plan of assisting nature in building up the power of resistance and the adoption of the simplest treatment possible.

"It is true that certain poisons (antitoxins) destruc-tive of the disease-producing bacteria have been discovered, but in more than one instance it has been found that these poisons would also kill the patient, or, at best, leave him much weakened.

"It was so with formalin, in cases of blood poisoning Formalin, will indeed, destroy the microbes producing this disorder, but formalin's effect upon the patient is still very questionable.

Hope in Antitoxins.

"An interesting thing which medical science has discovered concerning bacteria, but of which the general public, probably, is not aware, is the fact that microbes do little or no harm to the human system directly. They come into being, live their little lives and die, nourished by the vital forces of the greater life by which they are surrounded, without destroying tissues or interfering with the functions of that life.

But in the course of their brief activity it has been found that they distill deadly poisons (toxins) and these poisons produce the disease. From this discovery rose the serum treatment—the invention of the various antitoxins. An antitoxin, as its name indicates, is sim-ply an opposing poison. The antitoxins that have been found so useful in the treatment of such diseases as diphtheria, for instance, do their work by destroying tae poisons which produce them.

"Into the system of the patient the proper antitoxin is introduced by inoculation. As the circulation of the blood carries it coursing through the veins and arteries, it meets, opposes, and, if the disease has not progressed too far, overcomes the bacterial poison, and the

"The scarlet fever antitoxin is the latest. It was deregarded by a majority of the profession as almost a specific.

"The antitoxin treatment for tetanus or lockjaw, is well advanced, the central nervous system frequently being involved, by the time its presence is shown through its characteristic symptoms.

"It is so, too, with hydrophobia. As it is wise to take treatment at once when bitten by a dog, whether or no he be known to be rabid, so it is wise to take remedia measures without delay after such an injury as a wound from a rusty nail or toy pistol.

Value of Vivisection.

"Much of the recent progress in medical science has been the result of vivisection, to which so much objec-tion is made in certain quarters. But even if vivisec-tion entailed all the suffering on the part of the lesser animals which these gentlemen attribute to still be right. Even then it only the sacrificing of the lower to the mals, and this in accordance with the in nature that insists on the compensatory

"But, in truth, vivisection does not a The life of the physician is given over to the of human suffering, and he would be the last inflict pain needlessly upon any living creatur "As I have already indicated the foundation progress which is hoped for, lies in assisting effect her own cures by adding patient's power of resistance. Drugs are a help, but pure air, pure water, light, nor these are the great agents, the uses of which these are the great agents, the uses of wh directed, are now the physician's chief relia "As we learn and pratice more along the

HOW A WOMAN BRINGS PLEASURE TO TENEMENT CHILDREN.

"sky" is placed on the table and out of its she folds she draws bird after bird—birds that red, large birds of black and yellow, brown birds tash of crimson on the breast, and modest gray-birds. And then the fifty or a hundred children daily horison is bounded by skyscrapers and dwelling houses listen to the tale of the song-y all hope to see some day.

De Studied Birds.

Noore conceived the idea about six years ago making city children bird lore. To pursue her own so of the bird life as city children might-find it, were induced to visit the parks, she spent days were induced to visit the parks, are spent days parks and outlying districts, dressing in green that mount and played about her, built their nests and fed years, unlarmed by the presence of a strange of Teday her work, both professional and so broad and far reaching, but her chosen field is ame color as its surroundings, in order to hide it from public schools can afford a ride to the country or park the watchful eyes of squirrels and hawks, she shows them the male and female tanagers—the father bird with his scarlet plumage, the mother with her sober coat of green.

Answers of the Children.

"Why is this difference?" she will ask.

The quick brains have thought it out in a minute.

The mother must be the same color as the leaves and grass around her, so that, while on the nest, she will not attract the attention of her enemies. But the father, who does not have to stay by the nest, may have a brilliant plumage.

"In summer, birds rise about four in the morning, and go to bed at seven in the evening," says Miss Moore. "How long, then, is a bird's day?"

The children work out the problem.

"And I have sat by a swallow's nest and watched it feed its young for several hours," Miss Moore pursues. "The mother bird flew back and forth with food about thirty times each hour. If she does this all day long how many times will she feed her little ones in a day? It takes scarcely two minutes for the children nake the calculation.

"My," says an awed voice among the little girls, "just think of feeding your children 450 times a day.'

"Even your mother doesn't have to work that hard, does she," asks Miss Moore.

From that time the idea that all that birds have to do is to hop around and enjoy themselves, vanishes from the childish mind.

Enthusiastic Young Audubonites.

Miss Moore never talks pointedly against cruelty to

"Interest the children in birds," she says, "and after that you cannot induce them to harm one."

In a strange territory, with untrained eyes, and with no knowledge of the places in which the birds could best be found, they failed to discover a single specimen. They returned heartbroken, and the next morning one of the trio confided to his teacher that he was "going to spend" whole penny on a postal eard just to write to Miss. a whole penny on a postal card, just to write to Miss Moore and tell her that those birds were not in the part at all.' Letters from the Children.

That the bird talks teach children to be observant even though they are confined to the city, is proved by the many letters which Miss Moore is constantly recelving from children who have heard her talk.

A boy of nine writes:
"I have watched a parrot owned by one of my bors. I saw that it had two cos soward the front and two toward the back of each foot. It has a iong, curved bill, and near its head it has two little holes onlied nosbirds, for I like to study about them.

Another writes:

"When I went to see what I could find out about birds, I went to a store where they sold canaries. There were many kinds of them, and all had pretty colors. One had a brown head and wings. It had gray under its bill. Another had pretty colors on its back and wings, such and block and brown. It had a very long bill for a as red, black and brown. It had a very long bill for a canary. But the sign outside the window said that all are canaries.

Besides dozens of letters of this sort, Miss Moore when near a school is frequently surrounded by a troop of children who walk at her side, telling eagerly of all they have observed about birds since she spoke to them. F. A. DAWSON.

CAMBRIDGE ENGLISH.

MANY ODD WORDS USED AT THE OLD ENGLISH UNIVERSITY.

[Pearson's Weekly:] Before going to Cambridge a freshman has to know one or two elementary phrases only used at the 'Varsity. For instance, he is not going "down" to Cambridge, but "up," wherever he may be traveling from. He is never "in" Cambridge, but always "up." If he is leaving college for a day or two, he will tell his friends that he going "down." He is not asked where. One does not speak of a late member of the 'Varsity as having "left." He has "gone down."

The first person you encounter on entering your rooms is not your landlady. She is your "bedder," which is an abbreviation of "bedmaker." In some colleges there are male bedmakers. These are known as "gyps."

The custom of abbreviating words, and adding the affix "er" is universal at Cambridge. One does not go to one's "lecture," but one's "lecker." Football (Rugby or Association,) is, of course, as elsewhere, "footer" (rugger or socker.)

(rugger or socker.)
The early meal is always "brekker." But there is also a purely 'Varsity meal known as "brunch." This takes place on Sunday. It is a combination of breakfast and lunch, and does duty for both. It is taken after chapel, at about 11:30 o'clock, and men usually dispense with any other meal until tea time.

any other meal until tea time.

It is well to know that you do not "live" at Cambridge, you "keep." You will be asked "where are you keeping?" whan friends inquire your address. If inside your college, you tell them that you "keep in Coll."

You don't inquire if anyone is "dining in hall," but if they will "keep a hall." You "keep a chapel," and if you attend that of King's College, you say you are going to "keep a King's." The practice of "keeping" has passed all bounds among very slangy 'Varsity men. They do not smoke a pipe, but "keep" one. If they are going to a theater, concert, or meeting, it is a case of "keeping." You even "keep" all at home, or a meeting with your tutor. with your tutor

If you are taking the Tripos, or final examination for

If you are taking the Pripos, or final examination for Honors Degree, you are going to "take a trip."

If you hear yourself referred to as "stinks man" you might thing people were speaking in uncomplimentary terms of you. It would be well to make sure first, however, for what is intended is only that you are taking the Natural Sciences Tripos, which is known as "sticke".

"Stinks."

The laboratories are, of course, the "labs," those devoted to physiology the "phiz labs." The dissecting rooms are known as the "meat shops." Mathematics are "maths."

"maths."

A man who allows himself to be suspected of too hard study and too little sport is known as a "smug." If he locks himself into his rooms to discourage callers, he "sports." To "sport" is to lock the outer door of your rooms. Men do this when they go out for any length of time, or wish to remain private. Your door, by the way, is known as your "oak."

Some expressions much used outside the "Varsity are never heard among its members. For instances never heard among its members.

Some expressions much used outside the 'Varsity are never heard among its members. For instance, nobody ever talks of an 'undergrad.' He is simply a 'man'—though his years may not entitle him to the description. If his rank has to be referred to at all, one says 'undergraduate' in full.

There is no such thing as a "prof," though frequent use of the word "professor" suggests the abbreviation. You never talk of a college man, or a collegian. Anyone "up" at the university is known as a "Varsity man."

The names of the colleges are abbreviated, as most people know. St. Peter's College is "Pot-house," St. Catherine's is "Cat's" Magdalen is "Maudlen," St. John's is always "Johns," and the boat club of that college is "Lady Margaret," while Calus College is pronounced "Keys."

A man who poses as a sporting grandee, by wearing

A man who poses as a sporting grandee, by wearing exaggerated sporting clothes, or indulging in displays of wealth, physical prowess, or other showy forms of conduct, is referred to as a "blood."

conduct, is referred to as a "blood."

To be detected by proctors breaking regulations by omitting to wear cap and gown at proper times, or by going to prohibited places such as public-house bars, is known as being "progged." The men who assist the proctors in running refractory undergraduates to earth are "buildogs." If your offense is serious you are confined to college after eight o'clock every night. This punishment is known as being "gated."

"Well, get a move on yourself, and don't stand there half asleep. Now, Mr. Culver, we will see what the trouble really is." and the young Southerner with his athletic companion started out to investigate.

The main road was still muddy from a recent shower, and the tracks of the horse thieves were plainly discernible. In this condition the young men could readily trace the foot-marks of five individuals, the wheel-ruts of two light wagons and the impression of several horse boofs. Culver could hardly restrain himself.

"Come, Doc!" he shouted excitedly, "here is opportunity for a rare chase, and the possible capture of a desperate band. There can be no trouble in tracking them, and I'll wager their hiding place is not more than a day's ride from this spot. In fact, I believe I know where we can lay hands on them. I was out hunt-in the timber, bordering the cane-brake swamps or Missouri side last year, and ran into a clearing some five miles from the main road. In that clearing I found the signs of recent life-an old shack with stable and small smoke-house. Now, wouldn't that be an ideal place to find our halter-slippers in hiding? Just back from the shack, over a little ridge or hogback, is a good spring, and along its side runs a small brook. Just the place of all others for an adventure. Now, isn't it. Doc? Come, let us give the devils a chase

Doe had stood contemplatively gazing down the road until his companion ceased, then turned upon him with his slow Southern drawl:

"Great Scott! Culver, you are one of those dare-devil Northerners, else you would never propose such a reck less thing as the pursuit of those desperadoes. You don't realize the danger. It would be all our lives are worth. Though," he added, "with anything like an equal number, I should enjoy the chase," and the flash of his black eye belied the soft intonation of his

A massive figure turned the corner:

"Good morning, Judge Inman."
"Good morning, Mr. Culver. What's this Sambo is telling about horse thieves?"
"It's true all right, Dad. They have taken Don, Dick and Jen, but fortunately they missed our best race horses-changed to the small stable only yesterday, you she is queen at this nour, and the three men hastened to the dining-room. During the breakfast the judge gave a description of this band of free-booters.

"These men," he said, "belong to a gang which operates not only in this State, but in Texas, the Indian Country, No-man's Land, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri Kansas, and even in Southern Illinois and Indiana The citizens of these parts at one time attempted to rid the country of them, but the result was disastrous to pursuers, as the thieves always returned, and to the sorrow of the community, burning of homes and property, and lives sacrificed until the people became lyzed with fear, till no further attempts at pursuit are

"That is a bad proposition for any one or two to ckle," said the young Northerner, "but I am going tackle," eaid the young Northerner, "but I am going after them, alone if I must, but with Doc if you will

There was a flash in the young fellow's eyes and a look on his face which the judge contemplated covertly, but with satisfaction. His own boy's face was the per-sonification of eagerness. He was secretly proud of the bravery evinced by the youths, and determ should have opportunity for its exercise. By the time breakfast was ended, he had given a seemingly reluctant consent, and the boys began eager prep the daring chase.

The time was early April, 1860; the place, the plantation of District Judge Jackson Inman of the Northern District of Arkansas, within ten miles of the Missouri line. The two actors were W. T. Culver, an athletic young northern, and the judge's son, Doc, a vivacious youth of twenty-two. It was Sunday morning, the April air was balmy with awakening bloom, and the two young men, each armed with a rifle and two Colta revolvers, rode forth, feeling, no doubt, somewhat of the elation of the knight of old as he sallied forth to m the dragon. The judge's whole family assembled the dragon. The judge's whole family assembled to bid them godspeed; and with the fever of conquest in their blood, they set out on their perilous undertaking, one of them, at least, carrying in his mind's eye the image of a fair young face that would brighten by and by, as he told the story of their bravery and conquest. During the first few miles, the trail of the thieves was easy to follow, but later, as they left the main road for the blind trail skirting the cane-brake swamps, their progress was slow and more difficult to follow. On reaching a ferry crossing of the Current River into Missouri, it was found that the marauding party com-prised Bob Ashby and Don McOray, two of the most daring horse thieves and counterfesters known, the for-mer having long been the leader of gangs infesting the great scope of country named by Judge Inman, Ashby's sister of McCray, her father and mother, both noted for their cruel murders of innocent citizens.

The ferryman, where the gang crossed into Miss formed the young pursuers of the thieves' iden and that they had twenty or more horses. "Rather a daring undertaking, eh, Culver!" said Doc. "Yer bet," added the man of the ferry, "an' you uns better say yer prayers afore followin' much further." The young fortherner only drew the straight line of his straighter and led off.

Toward night, they had reached a point in the tim-ber bordering the cane-brake swamp, recognized by Culver as familiar hunting grounds of his last year's trip, and this proved Culver's correct prediction of the objective point, and where greater car govern their pursuit. They had come to a small brook recognized by Culver as not far distant from the pre-dicted retreat of the thieves. Dismounting for a brief rest, lunch for themselves and horses, which they were provided with, and consultation for further operations. The time had come when a miss move might cost them their lives; but they were of the stuff that knew no fear and one of them, at least, had been through experiences on the great plains of the Northwest, in the days of indian massacres, that now served well in their future movements. This same metal later developed in the true and tried soldier of the Civil War, and the menace of danger was now as the smell of the fray to the young

A brief rest, and the young men resumed the journey to a basin-like formation suited to hiding their horses for the night, as the day was now fast passing the gloom of night. Here they tethered their horses, then cau-tiously made their way through the tangled underbrush the clearing, where the band was discovered by the ight of the fireplace of the shack as individual bers passed to and fro in the preparation of what was soon discovered to be their supper. Night had closed in, till now it was evident that the young men must wait morning for further operations.

With the first streak of gray lighting the eastern orizon, the young men were at their picket post, where servation could be had of every move in and about shack. The stolen horses were discovered tethered in the little clearing, and soon an old man was seen to come to the door of the shack with wooden pail in his hand, then return as if for something overlooked. Never before had these young men been in a work of such danger and magnitude, but they had scarce a moment for thought before the old man reappeared at the door, and after making a critical survey of the surroundings, by-deatly on guard, passed slowly around the corner of the shack, down over the hogback or small ridge to the CEREMONIES OF YOUTH, MIDDLE & AND OLD AGE.

By a Japanese Contributor.

EADING the following paragraphs, you will see that the Japanese are a very ceremonious people. U Ceremonies may, as Mr. Hamerton says in his work, "Human Intercourse," form and cultivate gracious, sincere and courteous manners. The most natural manners are the best, but they are most accurately shown by some ceremony, such as the formal greeting in passing on the street.

From infancy to old age, a great many personal ceremonies or festivals embellish Japanese life. It would be very tedious and tiresome to hear about all of them, so I will not tax my American readers with a detailed description, which would be of little interest to any but native Japanese. I will, however, attempt to give an idea of the many public ceremonies, that may come in idea of the many public ceremonies that may come in the life of a single individual.

Customarily, a feast is given by the parents of a child to their relatives and friends, with different degrees of splendor, according to the wealth and social rank of the family, on each occasion of public ceremony. The family rooms echo with joyful sounds of merry laughter, and many toasts are drunk.

The guests have to offer their congratulations as well as give some presents to the child. On each of these joyful occasions, the Japanese make dumplings of rice-dough, sometimes of different colors, and distribute them to their relatives and friends, as a special favor, together with some other little presents. This custom of enter-taining belongs to all the festivities of infancy, youth and old age.

Welcoming the Baby.

The announcement of the given name for a baby and the praise given the work of the midwife, on the seventh day from its birth, is the first ceremony in a child life.

The second, for drinking to the future improvement and happiness of the child, is on either the thirty-second or thirty-third day from its birth, according as the child is male or female. On this occasion some people perform a popular custom called "biya-mairi (temple ceremony.) which means the celebrating of the god "Upigami," and pesitions for the happy life of the infancy are made to this god in the temple built in its honor. Such a temple is, as any tourist knows, found in every province. The mother goes with her child to the temple, followed by the midwife and some others, who carry and exhibit the baby's clothes or dells presented by the relatives and acquaintances. Among the dolls, the image of dogs made of paper may be especially noticed.

The mother considers it is unhealthy to use clothes on the baby before the seventy-fifth or one hun-dred and twentieth day from its birth, and the donning of the clothes is also an occasion of much ceremony.

About the same time, the first eating of some kind of food is celebrated. Either the father or the mother gives it some spoonfuls of each kind of food that is arranged on a small table called "Zen." Everything is newly provided for the purpose, and the bill of fare is the same that has been served for years on such

The first wearing of the ceremonial trousers called "Hakama" comes on November 15, in the fourth year of a baby's life.

Ceremonies of Maturity.

According to an old custom in Japan, boys reach maturity at fifteen years. This is counted one of the four great ceremonies—"maturity, marriage, funeral ceremony and memorial services;" hence it is more grandly and joyfully observed than any other, except that of these other three.

Next comes the marriage ceremony, in which the following will be noted especially. When a girl reaches fifteen years of age or more, her parents seek a desirable groom for her, while a boy's parents have a similar desire to secure a good wife for the boy when he reaches the age of twenty or more. In Japan the parents' coasent is considered the most essential condition for mar-riage. If such parents find each other, they procure a mediator, who introduces the young people, and aids the parents in making all necessary arrangements for the parents in making all necessary arranger engagement, and later on, the marriage.

The parents and mediator are thus responsible for the happiness of the young couple, who know very little, if anything, of each other before the engagement.

Marriage Festivals.

The marriage ceremony is performed at the house of the bridegroom, where a grand feast is given. For-merly the bride came to her wedding and remained in the house of the groom, but of recent years, the newly-narried couple may take a so-called wedding trip. Not long since, the people of Japan did not know the anniversary festival of married life—tin, gold wedding, etc.—but a few years ago, our Emperor gave us its first example by holding the silver wedding feast for himself and the Empress. It was a grand reception, to which all the foreign ministers, higher officers and other dis-tinguished people were invited. A silver medal of definite shape was bestowed upon each guest as a souvenir, and special postage stamps were issued. All the people offered their hearty congratulations, and many grave valuable presents, as well.

Ceremonies of Advanced Age.

The following ceremonies belong to the advanced ages of life, but comparatively few people live to celebrate

In general, after the people reach forty years of ago, they hold a feast every ten years, and besides these, the following are observed. The first is the festival of the sixty-first birthday of either husband or wife. It is called "Kwanreki," which means that the person has returned to childhood according to a tradition of Japan. The relatives and friends of the person send their congratulations and presents, and they, in turn, are invited to the feast. A tourist in Japan would sometimes notice that some old people wear a red dress. It probably seems strange to an American to learn that this dress signifies childhood, and that the person of sixty or more years is considered a child in every respect.

The second festival of advanced age, called "Koki-no-

Iwai," is celebrated by the people who reach the seven-tieth birthday. This is so much esteemed by the Jap-anese that they have a saying that "those who enjoy the age of seventy are very few among them," so they hold a grand feast at which many guests are present in honor of the very aged person.

The next is that for seventy-seven years, and is called "Kino-ji-iwai," meaning "the feast of joy," because the combination of the Japanese numerical figures 77 forms the word "ki" or joy. For souvenirs, white fans, upon which the word "ki" is written, are distributed to each of the guests attending the feast.

When possible, the eighty-eighth birthday is also cele-ted. This is called "Yone-no-ji-lwai," which means "feast of rise," because the Japanese word "yone" "kome," meaning rise, is formed. or "kome," meaning rise, is formed by combining the numerical figures 88. The cane is greatly esteemed by the Japanese, for they have a peculiar custom of honor-ing the old by sending a cane, which is either specially made with some ornament of silver, or one with the image of a pigeon on its top. It is said that the pigeon never chokes while eating, as old people sometimes do; this is why the cane with a pigeon on it is sent. The Em-peror sometimes honors a person of eighty or more by sending him a cup, cane, roll of silk or other article.

Among nobility and scholars, these festival days are spent making poems, or in some such intellectual way.

There is another custom that is called "Shyoshi-kwai," the meeting of the old people of sixty or seventy y of age. Seven is the limited number of members. younger persons are admitted as associates. They enjoy several kinds of games, music, poem-making or other literary test. This custom is found also in China, it is said.

The Unlucky Ages.

The idea provails among some Americans that thirteen in number at a dinner table should be avoided. About the same degree of superstition is found among some Japanese. They believe that unlucky events are likely Japanese. They believe that unlucky events are likely to occur at the ages of twenty-five and forty-two for a man, and at nineteen and thirty-three for a woman. Not only do they believe it, but unfortunately have had many experiences which prove it. Therefore they take a great precaution in every act at those ages, intending to get rid of any evil which may be ir pending.

Some even hold a festival on the first day of February of each of their unlucky years, hoping to get rid of the danger.

Relatives and friends in attendance at the feast are all danger.

Relatives and friends in attendance at the feast are all asked to pray for the happy life of the individual. Shinto or Buddhist priests are sometimes called in to pray, and they give some written charm by the name of "O-fuda" or O-mamori."

Until late years, there were professionals who claimed to rescue the people from bad events. The people is danger also tried to save themselves, by losing something purposely at the crossing of roads. These ideas are unreasonable, as you know; hence are not practiced seriously at present.

In conclusion, I would say that many changes have occurred in the history of these ceremonies, and at present the observances may be said to be in a period of transition.

Many of the old customs are being abandoned, and by degrees the new ones of the Occident are taking their places.

In partly-shaded cafions, and in moist upland fields, not far from the violet, we shall find the maidenhair fern. It is rapidly unfolding delicate green sprays, lifting them through and above crumpled brown heaps of dead fronds, the growth of last year. It comes early and matures by midsummer, when it curls down to sleep till next spring. This, too, is the haunt of the dainty bird's-foot fern.

Though the blossoming season comes earlier in the southern sections than in rainy Humboldt and the Sierras, yet everywhere, from the warm sea sands, broidered with magenta verbenas, and the plains, pink with affilaria, to the cañons and up the shrub tops, up the hills, up the mountains, up to the tops of the sequoias where innumerable bloom-workers make a vast army that covers the forest reaches with gold dust for niles—everywhere in California there is something in bloom.

The grass, which always follows the autumn rains. The madrofia has a cousin happy-go-lucky—the man-zanita; and of all things it surely deserves the title Caring naught for heavy rains and scoffing at continued droughts, it wanders through rich cafions—if it is allowed there—and up barren, hot, shale-rock hillsides -if it is althriving and multiplying, tossing down showers of waxen, pink-tinted fairy bells even as early as De-cember. After ceasing to bloom it sends out new shoots of the most intensely vivid scarlet crimson; then loads its branches through midsummer with plumply-rounded

> The manzanita is valued because its leaves have tablished a place as a remedy for catarrh, and for dysentery; its fantastically crooked branches make all sorts of "curly-cue" souvenirs; its roots likewise. It makes excellent hard wood, and for a slow, steady fire of a winter's evening there is al. zanita roots handy.

> It is hated because its sturdy greenery makes thick ets that are almost impenetrable, too tall to see over and not strong enough to climb—very nice hiding places for truant cows, calves and goats; and a safe covert for quall, and also for the alert, nimble deer, of which a disgusted farmer said, "they was made for exactly nothing but to eat up everything in sight on the place and then get shot."

> There are several sorts of manzanita and corre ing differences in the size of the fruits; and they bear untold bushels of "apples," which are rather tart, and quite powdery when ripe. A second grade of jelly and of sugar can be made of them; but the Indian, in days ong agone, made XXX fermented cider from them. His wife ground them into a meal and made a porridge in a now almost priceless cooking basket, and authorities say the mush was eaten with the brushy knob of a deer's tail.

> When the family tired of mush three times a day, Mrs. Indian made hot biscuits of puckery acorns, and then, being too busy weaving baskets to vary the diet with one or more of the seventy other vegetable foods of the California Indian, or possibly not having on hand a sufficient supply of whalebone pepsin, she was obliged to call in the family mow-we-na. Its leaves are oblong and leathery, and in March are mingled with flowers and later red and green berries. Sacred bark, using its common local name, is gathered every year and shipped away in tons; one settlement alone gathering a crop selling for $1500.

> California has many early-blooming shrubs, and one of the most liberal of flower bearers among them is the illac. The ceanothi is a numerous family, wandering far and wide, evergreens, deciduous, tall, short, with clean foliage and multitudes of small, very fragrant flowers arranged in plumes of white, sky blue and pur-ple, decking the wildwoods with clouds of color. The lilac has medicinal virtues, its berries are food for the quail, its wood makes a fierce heat, and its lovely flowers may be used as a substitute for soap.

> The laurel or bay tree is another agreeable Pacific Coast green brother. It is symmetrical, stately, tidy; its leaves are long, narrow and pointed; its flowers arrive very early and are quite fragrant. The leaves are exceedingly aromatic, and are the source of a bay rum. They are used by fishermen, too, in packing fish; and a shred of bay leaf will give delicious flavor to blanch mange. The wood is used almost entirely for making fine furniture.

Many wildling beauties there are which we welcom as simply spring flowers and pass on; others there are which, once seen in their prime, will so impress the be-holder by their imperial splendor that even the mention sprinkled with knots of small white flowers. well count the wild flowering currant one of these.

We must hasten to find even a shred of scrappy, lingering bloom even far up the cafions and in moist glades; for earliest February brings its rose-plak robe. The berries of the currant,-ribes glutinosum—are not at all delectable, but who cares! It has such an abundance of flowers, and every thread of its crinkling bark is sweet smelling, and the foliage gathers grand autumn tints for going away.

Along stream banks and near the coast w gay little knots of wild azaleas now, too. Irrepressible aznicas! bizarre, daring persistent! no changes of seasons, even, frighten them clean out of bloom; and though their truly bloomtime is in May, we can find the fluttering banners somewhere in every month of the year, if we know where to look for them. They seek the and brown in blothes and snadings which makes it an ideal rockery plant.

Speltata, the giant saxafraga, sends up its lovely pink goar, if we know where to look for them. They seek woodsy dells, nooks far up streams, or creep down beside lagoons almost in the cool dashing spray of old every way, for besides its blossoms, the leaves are very large, a foot or more across, almost round, and stand up to no stems which are from one to three feet high and in autumn turn to beautiful colors. In Humboldt county long, standing out well from the petals. The perfume of azaleas is rather oriental, and overpowering if in a closed room. Its foliage, when growing in regions far-ther from the coast, takes on vivid autumn tints also. As we return from our excursions in March wildwoods

One morning, while strolling along the rock shore our narrow path was blocked by a gateway on which there was a sign which read, "Ladies and gentlemen will not, others must not, trespass on these grounds." will not, others must not, trespass on these grounds. Not wishing to turn back we climbed around on the rocks and soon found ourselves on a broad grassy lawn. In a few moments a funny little red-faced old Englishman back room the aign. We man appeared and asked us if we had seen the sign. We confessed that we had, but that we had not gone through the gate, and had accidentally trespassed on his lawn. We were of palms and flowers growing in profusion. We next shown the vegetable garden, filled with article yams, etc., and at the end were led to see some pigs of enormous size, of which he seemed very proud. In gen-eral the islanders are very hospitable to visitors, by whom they must frequently be annoyed, for the tourist has a way of poking into every pretty place he sees. Bermudan Homes.

We once called on a dear old lady who lives in the oldest house on the islands, built, I have forgotten how long ago—something like two hundred years. It is a long, low structure of coral, the heavy rafters of the ceiling black with age, and in nearly every room is a large open fireplace, which shows that the sturdy old Englishman who built it appreciated home comforts. Many of the more modern houses have only a chimney in the kitchen: I remember calling, one chilly day, at the home of a rich Bermudan, and being shown into the drawing-room where there was a large fireplace filled with an arrangement of conch shells. It appears to be considered desirable, by the islanders, not to even admit the sunlight in their rooms, for the blinds, which are the kind that swing from the top, are never opened but a little way. They certainly appear to prefer cool houses. Perhaps they become so baked through the long, hot summers that they enjoy the sensation of oblitions.

The Island in Summer.

The Island in Summer.

Life in Bermuda in summer time must be very monotonous. Many families leave for England or Halifax, the big hotels are closed, and the New York steamer comes but once every two weeks.

I am told that the chief amusements are afternoon teas, "'neath the shade of the sheltering palm,' and a little playing at tennis or golf, and, of course, sailing and bathing. In winter everything is more lively. Every week there is a dance at the hotels, where English army and navy officers, resplendent in gorgeous uniforms, are galore. Gay sailing parties are made up daily, to cruise about on the clear, blue waters of the inner harbor, among the many coral reefs, through which the native sailors steer with great cleverness. Unless one is very familiar with these reefs, many of which are hidden at high tide, he is very apt to get aground on one of them and wait until some tug comes along and pulls, his boat off.

For the tourists the chief delight is to drive over the lovely country roads, which cross the islands in every direction, leading through cedar groves, past quaint old houses with a few occonnut palms swaying in the breeze, or skirting the edge of some high cliffs, the big Atlantic swells smashing into foam many feet below you. Along the north shore the water is nearly always calm, as a long line of reefs breaks the force of the waves. Here, at times, the water will assume most wonderful that, from the brightest green to a deep indigo blue. It is so clear that from the bluffs you can plainly see the fish swimming beneath.

from the brightest green to a deep indigo blue. It is so clear that from the buffs you can plainly see the fish swimming beneath.

Much may be said, pro and con, for Bernuda, considered as a winter resort. Certainly the sea voyage from New York to the islands is apt to be very rough and disagreeable. Then one has a feeling of being exiled when there. Mails arrive only once every five days, and while there is a cable from Halifax, as well as a wireless telegraph station recently installed, the local newspapers publish the most meager reports of the world's news.

What is the first meal in the day?" asked the teacher. 'Oatmeal," piped Johnnie.

Without doubt many of the wittleisms of children are aconscious, but so, for that matter, are those of adults I once boarded with a perfect Mrs. Malaprop. Her constant misapplication of terms was a source of boundless mirth to her boarders. We used to gather in each other's rooms after dinner and retail the convulsively funny things our landlady had said. She informed us that she was going to have the walls of the dining-room rehung with "cartilage" paper; that her cousin had just had her portrait painted by one of the old masters; had her portrait painted by one of the old masters; that her grandmother had a picture of Napoleon Bonaparte in his "aesophagus;" that her son had attended a masquerade on the previous evening dressed in the "garbage" of a monk; that her aunt had a cloak lined with real "vermin." Once we were speaking of leprosy and she remarked that she knew a girl in Hawaii whose brother was a "leopard," and at another time when we were discussing the killing of mice she said: "I never kill anything so long as it shows signs of life." One day she asked me if, when I went to the library, I wouldn't get her that cook book of a Mr. Holmes that she heard us talking about. On further inquiry I learned that she meant "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." She also remarked that she wanted to read "Scott's Emulsion" when she found time. We had been discussing "The Lady of the Lake" at dinner.

While these gayings were so absurd as to cause much

While these sayings were so absurd as to cause much merriment, nevertheless we felt an element of pity for the unconscious creator of it and therefore our fun was not unmixed with a feeling of compunction. The unconscious witticisms of children, on the contrary, afford pure enjoyment, unchecked by any scruples.

Dr. Macnamara, a member of the English Parliament, English cousins. Illustrating the literalness of cur little English cousins. Illustrating the literalness of children he quotes the following: "Define court of chancery," said a teacher. "It is called thus," replied the pupil, "because they take care of property there in the chance of the owner turning up." "A vacuum," said another child, "is nothing, shut up in a box." An optimist is a man who attends to your head; a pessimist, one, who attends to your feet, etc.

The eminent doctor credits this to an American boy: "Who was the first man?" asked the teacher. On replying "Washington" he was reminded of Adam. "Yes," he said, "If you count foreigners."

"Fair to middling," remarked Wally Wanereon, "but a trifle long for the matter that is in it."
"It's a story for girls," said Buster John, "and it does Buster John made no further criticizm, and Wally Wanderoon seemed to be reflecting. "I caught that chap and put him in there because I was told he was a great teller of stories; but he doesn't seem to be doing as well as his friends thought he would. He is getting long-winded, and I have no doubt he needs exercise, or some-thing of that kind. It may be that I am getting too old to appreciate that sort of thing, but I hope not. I have seen the day when I could tell a story myself. I don't mean by that that I could sit down and work it up in mind. I am so constituted that in order to tell a od story I must have facts to go on-not ordinary facts, but the truth as it appears to those who know something about it."

Then tell us one of that kind," said Buster John,

"I am afraid you would think I was drawing the long bow-stretching the blanket-chewing the red rag-or something of that kind. To look at me now you wouldn't think I was once young and sweet, would you? And yet that is the rumor I heard from those who could remember about it. They are all dead now, but they were not dead when they handed the rumor down to me.
One of them was my mother, and she said that if I had had my picture taken and some one had held it up to the light, sweetness would have oozed out of it just as naturally as rosin out of a pine.

THE RED FLANNEL NIGHT CAR

"Well, when I was about as large as Buster John bere, and still as sweet as ever, so far as I know, I went to visit my godmother. She belonged to a roving band of gypsies, and she and her companions happened to be camping near my father's house when I was born. Nocamping near my father's house when I was born. No-body asked her to be my godmother; she simply walked into the room, and announced that she proposed to take on herself the duties of such a position, and before any-body could say a word, she touched me on the forehead three times, turned around twice, sat down in the middle of the floor, and made some marks on the planks with her thumb nail, using her left hand, and there she was— having made herself, my godmother before a fish could bat its eye. That done, she made a low bow to the small company there assembled and went her way. The small company there assembled and went her way. The next morning, when my mother sent out to discover the name of the person who had made herself my godmother so unceremoniously, she and her companions had moved on. Not a sign of them was left, except the ashes of the fire that they had lit in their camp.

"This was a fine beginning, you will say, and perhaps you would be right about it. I don't remember what I thought of the time, but as the report is that I began to cry as soon as the gypsy woman left the house, and kept it up for some time, the probability is that I was somewhat angry at the way I had been treated. That is why I say that people should be very careful about the feelings of children. I have no doubt that grief at that time had something to do with my growth. If I had been consulted I think I would have been several feet

What were you grieving about?" inquired Sweetest

Susan, who was always ready to show her sympathy.

"That is the trouble," replied Wally Wanderoon. "I don't remember. If I did no doubt my mind would be easier on the subject. In your way through the world you should always take time to sympathize with those who have secret troubles. Mine are so small that I don't mind telling you about them, as you have seen.

"Well, as I was growing up my mother used often to tell me about my mysterious godmother, and she always left the impression on my mind that we had not heard the last of her. And the idea seemed to be that in some way this godmother, whose name no one knew, would finally make my fortune. This was what my mother thought, and she soon brought me to the same way of thinking. There was nothing strange about this. Nearly everyone has an imaginary ship that is always coming to port, bringing a fortune, and yet it always founders

"As for me, I had some very long thoughts, as chil dren will have, but I walted for my ship the same as other people. One day, when I was about the size of Buster John, not as tall, perhaps, but stouter, a dark-looking stranger came to our house and asked for my mother. She presented herself as soon as she could—she had to primp a little, knowing that a stranger had called and she was soon given to understand that my seed. -and she was soon given to understand that my god-mother was in the neighborhood, and had a strong desire to see me. Naturally my mother thought that all her dreams had come true, and so did I as soon as I had heard the nature of the message.

"I was keen to go, and my mother was as eager as I was, and yet she hesitated. She wondered why the god-mother hadn't come herself, as she did the first time, instead of sending. The reason was plain to me, for if she had sent for me the night that I was born. I should have had some trouble in putting on my clothes and finding my way to the camp and back again, for at that time, you must remember, I was quite a stranger in these parts. I knew nothing of the big cak tree that grew at the corner of the house, and I had not even seen the jaybirds that built their nests in its boughs every summer. In fact, I was about as ignorant as any one summer. In fact, I was about as ignorant as any one could possibly be.

"Well, you know how it is—my mother wanted me to and she didn't. She thought maybe my godmother had a fortune, or at the very least, a fine present for me, and then she was afraid I wouldn't come back. As for me, I wanted to go. After a boy becomes twelve years of age, he is ready to take almost any chance that presents itself, and therefore I begged and pleaded with my mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she he let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the meaning mother to let me go. While she hesitated the mean my mother to let me go. While she hesitated the measurer who had come from the gypsics—a tall, wildeyed looking fellow—stood and gazed on us with a peculiar smile on his face. Finally he grew impatient, and so he says, in a carcless sort of way: 'What shall I tell my mistresz?' 'Why,' says my mother, and there she stopped. Seeing her hesitate I ran and caught the man by the band and pulled him along. 'Come,' said I,

'the's willing' and away we went through the woods. 'she's willing,' and away we went through the woods the man walking fast to make up for lost time, and I running hard at his heels.

"We presently came to the camp, which was pitched in the midst of a great wood, and there I saw my godmother waiting for me with some show of impatience.

"Oh, and you've come, have you?" she growled. 'I would have waited the day out, if I were you. A pretty way to treat your godmother, and the only

Why, as to that,' says I, 'having never seen you ! fore, I have never felt the need of you; but I would have been here before now but for the fears of my mother.'

"'Oh!' she cried; 'mammy was afraid her pretty dar-ling would come to some harm,' she sneered.
"'She had her doubts about it,' I replied, 'but as for me, I had none. Ask your messenger. You are a quick-spoken lad,' she declared, 'but that was to be expected with such a godmother as you have, She certainly seemed to know her own merits and made no attempt to hide her knowledge.

"She was not what I should call a handsome woman Wally Wanderoon went on, "but she had her good points. For one thing she had long black hair that fell points. For one thing sae had non black har ten away from her head in great waves, and her eyes were as bright as those of a mink—and as black. I rather liked her looks myseif. There was nothing of the old crone about her. When she smilled she showed as prefly a set of teeth as this rubber doll of yours."

"Huh! of you think I'm a rubber doll you or mighty

"Oh, you'll do pretty well," remarked Wally Wanderoon complacently; "you'll do very well, indeed. I wish you had been with me at the time I am speaking of. That was—let me see, let me see—yes, that was three, no, four, hundred years ago the way you count.
The way I count it, it was only four years ago."

"Four hundred years ago!" exclaimed Buster John.
"Why this country wasn't discovered then."

"I may be mistaken," replied Wally Wanderoon, "but I don't think I said anything about this country. In fact, the story I'm telling has nothing whatever to do with this country.

"Oh!" Buster John cried, apologetically.

"Let me see—I was talking about my godmother. As was saying, she was a tolerably good-looking woman, was surprised at this, for I had an idea that godmothers must, in the nature of things, be old and some I said as much to the woman, and seemed pleased, for she smiled and showed her pretty

'I have several gifts for you,' she said, 'and it re mains to be seen whether you will appreciate them.'
She came to me where I stood, and placed her hand on my head and began something like this:

"It's the natural right of every man
To get rich if he must, or poor if he can."
"I leave you to judge whether, at my age, I could understand the meaning of this. I don't know that I understand it any better now; but I remember every work she said, and this was the way she began when she placed her hand on my head. Then she went on:
"Your eyes shall see in the night,

Your feet shall be swift in flight; Your arms and your legs shall be strong And the years that you live shall be long."

"As you may well believe, these presents, or promises made me feel very comfortable. I straightened myself up and tried to look taller than I really was. Then my godmother began to speak again. She held in her hand what I took to be a piece of red fiannel, but when she unfolded it, I saw that it was a red fiannel night cap, such as I had seen my great-grandmother wear.

"'Take this, she said, 'and guard it carefully. When you wear it at night you will have pleasant dreams, and in those dreams you will be able to foresee danger, and you will be able to forestell coming events. This fore-sight and knowledge will enable you to tell fortunes and to predict things."

'I wish," said Drusilla suddenly, "dat I know'd when wus gwine ter git dinner. "Will you hush!" cried "Will you hush!" cried Buster John. 'Why, you'd poil any story in the world."

"She doesn't bother me," said Wally Wanderoon; "not a bit more than that child there," he pointed Billy Biscuit, who was fast asleep. After rubbing his Wally Wanderoon resumed his story.

"My godmother, after telling me about the night cap, as I have told you, went on to say that with it on my head in the daytime I would know who my friends were and who my enemies, and that It would be benefit to me in many ways which I would find out for myself. In short, it was the most wonderful piece of flannel cloth that had ever been cut from a loom—or would have been if it had been woven, for when I came to examine it, I found that it had been knit; but its texture was just as fine and as close as a piece of cloth made on a loom. The only way I could tell it was knit was because it was all in one piece. If it had been cloth, you know, it would have had a seam in it somewhere.
"Well, my godmother gave me the night cap and a

Three of these are found more or less abundantly in Los Angeles county. Most plentiful is the Mule Deer, which is particularly abundant in the mountains and rougher footbills of San Deigo county. Oddly enough, it was first called "Mule" Deer by Lewis and Clark who first saw it on the Missouri River in 1804. In some regions, where the true Blacktailed Deer is not known, the Mule Deer is called by that name, but the difference in the two species is quite. that name, but the difference in the two species is quite generally recognized by Los Angeles county hunters. Second: The Black-tailed Deer. For this species we are also indebted to the Lewis and Clark Expedition, which found it "near the mouth of the Columbia River in 1805." This is strictly a Pacific Coast species, never being found east of the Sierras nor south of the Mex-ican line. It is smaller than the Mule Deer and its legs and body are considerably shorter than those of either of the other two. The color of the body is a tawny gray, shading into lighter beneath. of the tail is of a dull black, shading into white beneath and into the general color of the body above. The legs are dark and the gait is the same awkward bounding gallop as that of the Mule Deer with which it associates freely in its range within this county. Lewis and Clark say of this species: "This, like all those we have seen on this Coast, are much darker than those of our com-mon deer. Their bodies, too, are deeper, their legs shorter, and their eyes larger. The branches of the bnorter, and their eyes larger. The branches of the horns are similar, but the upper part of the tail is black from the root to the end, and they do not leap, but jump like a sheep frightened." Without doubt both the Mule Deer and this species were once very abundant throughout the valleys and foothilts of this county but that day is long past, never to return. The Mule Deer, however, seems to be in no immediate danger of extinction, especially as the reserve for shoulder the context and the second of cially as the season for shooting them comes at a time when the climate and their food supply compels them to spread over a large area of ground. The young are usually born by twos, whereas most deer have but one at a time, and this aids not a little in keeping up the Third: The Virginia Deer. This is the most graceful, Third: The Virginia Deer. This is the most graceful, the most beautiful, the best-known and most widely-distributed deer in the world, with the possible exception of the Reindeer. The range of the Common or Virginia Deer is from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from Central America to the Hudson Bay country. I have no doubt that it may be killed today in every State and Territory of the United States with the exception of the Alaskan Peninsula and our insular possessions. It is a lithe, clean-limbed animal with very large eyes, small ears, and branching antiers. A long, cylindrical body, siender neck, graceful head and long tail add much to the creature's beauty, while its flectness of foot and body, slender neck, graceful head and long tail add much to the creature's beauty, while its fleetness of foot and extreme wariness mark it as one of the true sportsman's most prized trophies. Like most other widely-distibuted animals, this deer is divided by climatic and other causes into many petty subspecies and varieties unnecessary of discussion here. It is the most easily domesticated of all the deer and is the species commonly seen in zoological gardens, deer parks, etc., posing under various names as this or that species. It is frequently called the White-tailed Deer from the snowy color of the tail, that part of the animal's anatomy being much in view as it covers the ground with that peculiar running pace which to the practiced eye at once separates it from either of our other deer, even at a distance. Its flesh is equally as good, if not better, than that of either of the other two, though for my part venison has little or no advantage over a wellcooked beefsteak.

In general the deer family in this section has not been well studied; in fact there are very few who know anything worth mentioning about Pacific Coast mammals in general, Dr. Jordan being about the only man who knows all about them from the point of view of the naturalist. There is so much of interest to be said of the fast-disappearing Antelope that I have reserved it for a future paper.

JOE JOLLY BOY.

AND HIS SURPRISING ADVENTURES IN JOLLY LAND.

By a Special Contributor.

NO. 6-HOW HE BUILT A HOUSE.

Next day, in conformity with what I had told the King of the Pigmies, I set out to build me a house. I selected a piece of ground opposite the palace, and the people helped me to cut a lot of poles for posts, and then lashed them near the top with strips of bark, and soon had the framework of my house ready.

Then I lashed other poles further down, and by weaving long grass behind them, and by using the same for a roof. I had my house or hut completed before sunset. I used mud to plaster over the sides and roof, and when the mad hardened the hut was water tight.

I left an opening for a door and hung a grass mat before it, and I made a bedstead of poles and stretched mats across the frame. No one in Jolly Land had ever seen such a house before, and great was the wonder as the people stood around it. When they saw me go in and out by the door, and took notice how handy it was, they clapped their hands and shouted as if it were some great thing. Indeed, the King came across and enterval by the door and said:

"Joe Jolly Boy, you are not only a giant, but the smartest man in the world. How on earth did you ever happen to think of a door like this? I can see that we shall learn many smart things from you, and I am glad of your visit." glad of your visit.

I must now tell you more about the people.

When you or I are introduced to a person we bow and shake hands. When the King introduced me to his lead-ing men they stood on their heads and waved their legs, We eat our soup from a dish with a spoon. The Pig-mies drank theirs out of the dish, and used their spoons where we use forks.

If one wanted to go up hill he got down and rolled up. In going down he walked.

When they bathed in the sea they swam on their backs instead of their stomachs.

When they climbed trees they went up feet first, and when they went out in their canoes they sat facing the wrong way to use their paddles.

These little people did many other things exactly contrary to what we do, and during my first three or four days with them I was much amused every hour in the

There were goats on the island, but all had long There were goats on the island, but all had long talls, like cows, and their horns pointed forward instead of back. The dogs were hardly larger than common rats, and were all bob-tailed, the same as rabbits. All the rabbits you ever saw had longer hind legs than fore ones. Nature made them thus so they could take leaps. There were rabbits in Jolly Land, but their fore legs were the longest, and when they started to run they hopped backwards.

The first time I saw one of them do it I laughed so loud and so long, and so many of the people laughed with me, that the King came out to learn the cause. He soon began to laugh, too, and we were a merry crowd for half an hour.

There were some animals I had never seen before and had to ask the name of. Among these were pigs. In-stead of having bristles, like all pigs I had ever seen before, they had fur like a woodchuck, and instead of rooting up the ground with their snouts, they scratched with their hind legs. There were many other curious and funny things to be met, and I laughed so often and so hard that my sides finally became sore.

One of the funniest things to me was that they should take me for a giant and think me so smart. I was neither larger nor smaller than any other boy of my age, but I could not make them understand i

It had been thrown aside because none of them know how to use it or were big enough to handle it. I sharpened the tool on a stone and then cut down three trees with it, and the people were so astonished that they even forgot to

THE BROWNS DESCENDED FROM A "WORTHY"

OF ENGLAND.

By a Special Contributor.

Stamford in Lincolnshire, which was the seat of the Brown family for 400 years and more.

The oldest son of Christopher Brown, for services rendered to the King, could appear with his head covered in presence of the King, his heirs and successors, and of all great men, lords spiritual and temporal, and all other persons whomsover of the kingdom. He ranked as one of the "worthies" of Eugland.

One of the principal ornaments of Stamford is All Saints' Church. This was built by John Brown, who.

One of the principal ornaments of Stamford is Ali Saints' Church. This was built by John Brown, who, with his wife, is buried there. A steeple was added to the church by their son William. A brass plate commemorates the fact and records that William Brown was a merchant of a "very wonderful richness." He was also Alderman, Sheriff and the founder of a hospital bearing the name. This was built in 1493 and liberally endowed by the founder. It is still flourishing, and in the chapel may be seen the marble figures of William Brown and his wife, he in a long gown and she in elegantly flowing robes, with a dog at her feet.

A certain Capt. Pelig Brown married Mercy Dennison, whose father, Capt. George Dennison, was wounded at the battle of Naseby. He was carried into the castle of Bowadil where, in true romantic, medieval fashion, being nursed by the daughter and helreas of the house, Anne, he loved and married her. Her dowry was as many pounds in gold as her weight, which was ninety.

Boned Smelts.—Epicures declare in favor of the large smelts, as the flesh is firmer than that of the smaller sort. Split each fish, and, by removing the backbone with care, the smaller bones will come away also. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a bot frying pan and brown, but do not burn. Have the fish well dried and slip them carefully into the hot butter. They must not be cooked too fast. When brown on both sides, they should be done through. Pour a little of the butter over them when serving. If it has all cooked away, brown a little more and add quickly while the fish are still hot. Serve very hot, in a nest of parsley. Smelts prepared after this receipt have a "snap" peculiarly their own. Some cooks broil the smelts first and pour melted butter over them afterward. Either way brings good results.

Filleted Flounders.—If properly prepared, these can hardly be distinguished from the English sole, famous on both sides of the water. They average about a pound and a half each, and one fish will yield three nice fillets. and a half each, and one has mit yield three hice lines. The butcher will do the boning without extra charge. Each fillet is dried, rolled in a beaten egg, then in sifted crumbs, then back into egg, with a final dip into the crumbs, after which they are dropped into boiling fat and cooked like croquettes. A better way is to have one of the wire baskets made for this purpose, dipping it into the boiling fat, so that the fillets will not break.

the Lion, in 1632, and settled in Waterlown, Ct. Thomas. Brown and his brother, Rev. Edmund Brown, were born in Bury street, Edmunds, Suffolk, England. They came to New England in 1637, and were among the original proprietors of Sudbury, Mass., to which they gave its name. "The name, ordered by the court, is that of an old English town in the county of Suffolk, near the parish of Bury St. Edmunds."

Edmund Brown was the first minister of the church of New England, Sudbury, and one of the most distinguished clergymen of the time. He had a large library for those times, numbering 180 volumes. He owned Creamed Fish in Shells.-Use white fish left over from oiled piece of the night before, preferably haddock d. The former has the higher flavor. Remove skin and bones. Do not flake, but use a silver knife and cut into small bits, like crab meat. This is important, as, when shredded, the fish becomes wooly and loses firm-

ess. It should have been salted in the first cooking.
It is important to have the sauce for creaming of the consistency of thick cream. Thin sauce means a failure of the entire dish. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a snucepan and when it bubbles, stir in the same measure of sifted flour. When the mixture is smooth, stir in half a pint of milk, added slowly. If the milk is a fourth cream, so muca the better. Stir carefully until all is smooth and like a custard. Add salt and white pepper to taste, set aside to cool and, if needed, season the bits of fish. Serve in shells, with a sprig of parsley.

Oyster Fritters.—These are the old-fashioned sort, for which Delmonico was famous in his early days. Choose plump oysters and drain. Heat to the boiling point one cup of juice and one cup of milk to avoid curdling, and stir together. When this has cooled, add four well-beaten eggs and salt to taste. Sift into this about one-half pint of flour and a teaspoonful of baking powder. The batter should be of the consistency of griddle cake batter. Envelop each oyster in a deep spoonful of batter, and cook in mixed boiling butter and lard, ladling the boiling fat over as if frying an egg. The oyster will puff up and quickly become brown. Serve at once on hot plates with bits of lemon. The oysters may be cooked in deep lard, like croquettes, but the use of lard and butter in a shallow pan follows the original receipt. Another member of the family to win renown was en. Jacob Brown, who distinguished himself in the Var of 1812. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1775, tulle, the slight bandeau and dip giving extremely good lines. This same style is seen in the most delicious pinky-red geraniums, as well as bachelor buttons; in fact, any flower that is preferred is used, and most charming effects are derived. A charming hat was of a gold gauze cloth, which carried a very broad crown covered with frill upon frill of champagne colored lace, each one standing ouncrisp and fresh. The upper and lower parts of the brim were folds of white tulle just showing the binding of gold gauze. The bandeau of tulle showed a piping of black, which was extremely good, and was finished by a rolling white plume and base of tulle.

Directly in the resette bow of red velvet ribbon, with soppy buds, mixed in with some cut The under brim was of folds of red

Another model in this delicious champagne had really as a foundation a white straw, with champagne had ready as a foundation a white straw, with champagne lace over the brim, which had an application of pink and blue forget-me-nots on it. Two tiny pipings of French blue velvet were put over the lace and finished with tiny bows on one side, while on the left a feather shading from champagne into white curled its insidious way and dropped well down on the hair. With the tiny blue bows on the right side was a bunch of little pink roses, while the under brim was accomplished most gracefully by folds of champagne and blue tulle, and finished by a second plume. The fastening on of the plumes was by ornaments of champagne enamel

Another which lingers lovingly with me had the per brim and crown made of alternate rows of a bfall mohair in effect, and a passementeric of champagne and white batiste, and ornamented with two plumes of champagne color, shading into pure white, each fastened with ornaments set with turquoise and brilliants. The un-der brim was of the champagne tulle, and rolled quite a bit on the left, where it showed the little bunch of roses running in the Gold of Ophir tones, and used with a soft louisine ribbon which was tied in little bows.

One Leghorn I was privileged to see carried extremely graceful lines on the picture-hat order, and had a broad lace drapery over the top of the brim, which only left the straw of the crown visible, the lace ends falling most gracefully down on the hair. A white plume and a bunch of roses which carried these same glorious Gold of Ophir tones, and gleams of steel in the ornaments, gave just the right last touches.

Many turban effects are seen; one which is demanding especial attention is the Lichenstein, a particularly graceful model. One was done in the most mysterious way, by applying green tulle over blue tulle on the crown part, while the rest of the bewildering beauties were carried out with shaded green "ramie," a new straw which is carrying much before it, while touches of a delicious turquoise blue louisine ribbon was maneuvered into fetching bows on the left side.

Another genre, or French turban of white straw, had the crown projecting over the brim and a fold of green velvet covering the joining place of crown and brim. This same green in the shape of tiny leaves was sewed at regular intervals over the top of the crown. On either side of the hat on the upper brim, really directly above the ears, were bunches of green leaves, and the most fascinating little berries which carried pink, black and white colors. A decided bandeau was necessary on this hat, and it was of the green velvet, a large bow of the same appearing in the back on the hair.

'In the tailor hats possibly nothing is more chic than severe toques, or turbans, of straw with some Mephisto quills, which are the sauciest affairs, and quite (do not be shocked) "devillsh" looking, to use the hat-builder's parlance. Other good models are ones of a heavy shiny straw, perfectly flat, put on bandeaus, the trimming being accomplished by using birds so flat as to suggest being pressed, while further back are tightlytied bows, the ends carried down over the brim. nder part of the brim is composed of the ubiquitous olds of tulle, and another bow of ribbon boasting of cut ends rests on the hair. In the case of a blue hat in this model, the birds are almost iridescent, and ribbon will be in two shades-a French and a dark navy blue. A brown one was very good, and had blue ribbo and tulle and the most enchantingly shaded green birds It is an excellent style and destined to appear on the best dressers. Another shape, the "flat-iron," is claim-ing much admiration, and it is certainly unique. One in a curiously mixed straw of blue, green and touches of red, had in way of trimming two stiff, short quill effects on the left side, and a quaint rosette of red velvet directly in the back.

Materials for Shirt-waist Suits. THE materials for shirt-waist suits make them more to be coveted than ever. An entirely new material of English make, but boasting the Japanese name of "Nappe," has an uneven fold, with flecks of a closer weave sprinkled on. Tiny drops of black on a white ground make one of the most stunning, and then, too, linen and batistes, when they boast embroidered designs are to be the goods for the coming season. The designs are nearly always extremely heavy looking, suggesting those on the new repoussé silver work. The edges of the leaves are often raised up almost a quarter of an inch, which seems incongruous with the filmy background. The chrysanthemum design is exceedingly popular, and one of the most effective, as well as one that is new this season, is the cherry blossom—great enorm mous trumpet blossoms put on all over the skirt, a single blossom appearing on each seam, at a distance simulate the circular flounce. They are at once bold, yet most beautiful. The same large blossoms appear on the front of the bodice, and on the bouffant of the sleeves. The front tablier effect, continuing around the bottom of the skirt, is exceedingly smart, especially so when the bodice's entire front is a mass of work, the same appearing on the bouffant of the sleeves. The white on white is extremely good, and by far more practical in the long run, but a variety of white embroidery on blue is very chic also. Collar and cuffs in sets are one of the many manias on the market this season, and their use is most pleasing on the shirt-waist suit. Linens are used with most satisfactory results, butcher's linen being especially good. They launder admirably. The French importations are most fascinating. They are the est eccentric in shapes, and made of odd weaves linen, or piqué. The stocks, turnovers and even the handkerchiefs, boast of the heavy embroidery. same kind of ornamentation most fascinating blouse patterns are being imported. These sport designs of flowers and dragon flies over the entire front, as well as separate pieces for collar and cuffs.

The eyelet-hole embroidery is carried out at great length on the robe gowns, batiste in linea color with grass finish being one of the chosen fabrics. Braiding is coming in again, and while its recall does not inspire me personally with any great possibilities, yet its popularity soon will assure its success. The batistes insure the most dainty gowns, yet there is a new linen, which, when inset with the heavy, coarse laces, makes stunning gowns, and very serviceable ones as well. On many of the batistes appliqués are applied in the way of trimming the whole design outlined with a white braid cord.

Another genre of batiste shows a bold all-over design of chrysanthemums, done in delicate colors. It must be said very little of this must be used in connection with the plain, as it is too elaborate to be pressed with advantage into too great service

Box Coat of Shantung.

THE smartly-tailored jacket, with strapped seams, and otherwise extremely plain style, is seen more lately than for seasons past, but the most vivid recollections one retains, after a shopping tour, are wraps which seemingly scorn to fulfill their humble mission as purveyors of warmth and comfort. They are resolved down to being only frame works, on which are hung the most gorgeous trappings of lace, drawn work, embroideries, and pendants galore, with the whole effect a most giorified success. Shantung is taking the place of taffetas, which has so successfully held their own for the past seasons, and wraps of both the simple and ornate genre are sharing equal honors. Properly lined and trimmed it has much to recommend it to those desiring useful, yet at the same time a pleasing-looking wrap, for it is on the best of terms with modern methods of cleaning, and the term "shiny" never occurs to it. The illustration shows a delightful method of treatment to accomplish the very best results, and its style is so simple that with care it may be duplicated most accu-rately. Velvet is much used in its beautifying, the most popular colors being a royal blue, dull rose, and brilliant emerald green, which need only dull gold buttons to make the effect perfect. Great developments are looked for this coming season, and a fabric as delightful as this, can outshine even our fondest dreams.

THE ROSE.

LBEIT in this land where all may have flowers, there will be but few who will not choose to have a place for the queen of flowers, the Rose. In this article I shall deal only with hedge and porch roses, the climbing roses which adern alike, the State over, the home of the working man, or the elegant mansions of the rich. I read recently of an Eastern rose fancier who had raised in an enclosed porch, in a space ten and a half by fifteen feet, over eight hundred fine roses. All in pots and with expense reduced to a min-rose hedges. Especially has success been attained in the Single Cherokee, a notable example being found at the residence of H. W. Puinam, Esq., on Fourth and Maple streets, San Diego. The entire block surrounding this handsome home is a beautiful garden inclosed by a hedge composed of Cherokee roses, single and double, with a sprinkling of the tiny single Lady Banksia. An excellent opportunity is given here for the comparison excellent opportunity is given here for the comparison of the varieties. The Single Cherokee, with its great pure white roses and glossy green foliage, is the favorite, for while the Double Cherokee is a more constant bloomer it has not so fine a foliage, a requisite in a hedge rose, and it has also not so pure a color or form. The Lady Banksia mentioned, and which is at the north side of the block, is an interesting variety, but a shy bloomer here, and not nearly so effective, even at the height of its season, as is the Single Cherokee.

imum, furnishing summer from October to June, while the weather was freezing outside! No doubt he had reason for self gratulation, but compare this with roses the year around in Southern California! Take a rose hedge like that of DeWitt B. Williams of La Mesa, San Diego county, on this page. Never a month in the year that you cannot gather roses at "La Bonita," and the photograph shows nearer eight—thousand than eight hundred roses while no one. I am sure has ever tried hundred roses, while no one, I am sure, has ever tried to estimate the annual production. The variety used in this magnificent hedge, which is at the west edge of an orange grove, is the Double Cherokee, a very desira-ble hedge rose.

Rose-planting Season.

Roses may be planted at almost any season of the year in Southern California, if careful removal and handling are insured. About San Diego and Coronado, quite the most effective and enjoyable hedges are the five-foot runner, which is not the least unlikely to be secured in the first season, under reasonable conditions. For the best results in rose hedges, 'then, "Don't crowd!"— Soil for Roses. Roses prefer a heavy soil, which doubtless accounts for the extremely profuse bloom found in the gardens of valleys like those of Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Pas-adena and like places. Near the sea, as at San Diego, when the soil is light or sandy, as it is in many beau-

Amateurs are apt to err in this regard in their eagerness to see a completed hedge, often planting their roses five feet or less apart, the result being an unwhole-some crowding in later years, and insufficient room for root growth. All climbing roses send out long runners, and if the plants are ten feet apart this only means a five-foot runner, which is not the least unlikely to be

The Size of Windows.

One more important feature in connection with this atyle of architecture, which is too often overlooked, is the size of the windows. Windows should be wide, not only for the sake of the effect given to the outside ap-pearance over narrow openings, but from the point of view on the inside, a sash in a too light window whose width is greater than its height, always renders more pleasing results.

California being a semi-tropic climate, air and sunshine are principal items to be looked after. Where zero weather is to be contended with, one cannot construct a house on such a liberal scale as the same house can be put up in our climate, viz.: Large-size windows, open arches between rooms, large vents in attic, etc.

dows, open arches between rooms, mag, etc.

The heating of the California house is often over-looked, to the discomfort and unhealthfulness of the family, and the best and most economical method of warming and ventilating a small eight or ten-room residence is by means of a warm-air furnace. Such a furnace can be put in at a cost not to exceed $75, and when properly installed the oil-burning furnace gives good results, at a very great saving in the cast of fuel. Distillate at 7 cents to 8 cents per gallon is the cheapest fuel in the market.

feature. Three colors are ample. Take, for instance, the house in question; the body is lemon yellow, with white trim and a green roof. Good architecture can be absolutely spoiled in the improper selection of the paints.

Inside Pinishing

In regard to the inside finishing of a model up-to-date home, too often had results come out in the selection of such minor details as door and window trim. For instance, too many mouldings of a different style are often used, instead of a uniformity of the same style of moulding, which brings harmony and feeling to the general character of the room itself. Another feature of note in connection with this style of building is the arranging of the doors and windows to admit of the tasteful placing of furniture and the hanging of pictures. Too often no particular system of study has been given to this important detail. The best results can be obtained by having the doors and windows line up at the top to admit of the picture moulding being mittered over and around the head casings of both windows and doors. This detail assists you, when the decorator comes in to obtain pleasing results by decorating from the picture mould up, including the ceiling, one tint; In regard to the inside finishing of a model up-to-date the picture mould up, including the ceiling, one tint; say, for instance, two shades of green, the lighter shade for the ceiling, and a trifle darker shade for the walls. In reference to the plumbing, economy can be practiced, and at the same time the best results are obtainable from a simple system. For instance, in the house illustrated, the plumbing is so arranged that the main stack, or drain and ventilation of the system, may be placed in a way to enable all the fixtures to surround this main artery. In this particular instance there are no fixtures (of the seven in all) that are placed over seven feet from the main stack. The bathroom is al-

No inquiries are by mail, it should be remembered that matter for the section of The Times is in the hands of the printer a force the day of publication.]

How Long Have You to Live?

T THE request of The Times, a life-insurance man has furnished a copy of the following table, which is the American insurance table of mortality, that is to say, according to estimates, based on a try, that is to say, seconding to estimate, based on a very large number of cases of how long a person at a certain age may expect to live. Of course, this is only the rule, to which there are numerous exceptions. If you "go it blind" and follow the cocktail route—otherwise the "broad path that leadeth unto destruction" you may not expect to reach these limits. Whereas, if you take good care of yourself, and read regularly the "Care of the Body" department of The Times, you may have a chance of fooling the experts, by largely exceeding the length of time which they allot to you.

In this connection, the following sensible letter from r. Walter Lindley to a professional friend, published in the Southern Practitioner, is of interest:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 23, 1903.—My Dear Friend: In looking over the life of a man, it seems to me that he should do his best work between the ages of fifty and sixty-five; previous to that, his life has been an educa-

Your having consulted me professionally impels me Your having consuited me professionally impels me to take the fiberty of writing these few lines. The only thing that interferes with man's reaching his greatest usefulness in the years from fifty to sixty-five is his health. I noticed, before you were sick this time, that your hand trembled much more than at your previous visit, and other evidences of your not being quite yourvisit, and other evidences of your not being quite your-self. Some people attribute this to age, but, as we are of the same age, I refute such an assertion. When you told me that you were now "riding in the cold water wagon" I was very glad, and took it as a good example for all of our age to follow.

If you and I are going to accomplish what we aim at we must from now on eat and drink to live, and not eat and drink for the pleasure there is in eating and drinking: consequently, our cordials and cocktails must be of milk, and our extra dry of the apollinaris brand.

In regard to our diet, it should be steaks, chops, good roasts, eggs, vegetables and fruits, with toast and milk, and very little of condiments, and no rich pastry. Added to this, a reasonable amount of fish and raw oysters.

Smoking should be limited to three cigars daily.

The next important thing is sleeping. We must have, after fifty, eight hours sleep out of the twenty-four.

If you and I will have the nerve to follow out this course in life we will be well and happy and prosperous fifteen years from now, unless the whole world is car-ried away by some seismic or cataclysmal catastrophe, which would ring the curtain down for us all.

Hoping and believing that two decades hence will find you in excellent health and spirits, I am, with great es-teem, your sincere friend, WALTER LINDLEY.

Hearing that an establishment of this kind had been founded on the Colorado Desert new been founded on the Colorado Desert, Indio, which is quasi-benevolent in its plan. The Times wrote to the founder, N. O. Nelson of St. Louis, and obtained the following particulars in regard to the enter-

"I established a camp here for consumptives beca

the climate is peculiarly favorable totally dry, 20 feet below sea level, yielding abundant oxygen, clear and warm winter days.—I made it a camp instead of a san-itarium, because open air is the best remedy for con-sumptives. I intend it especially for people of moder-ate means, who may either bring their own tents and housekeeping effects or rent them at small cost, or may board cheaply. On the ranch there will be self-supporting work for such as can do more or less labor. who have no means will be kept without charge and some will be provided for by friends.

"I bought 125 acres adjoining the station and have most of it ready for planting—irrigation by artesian wated. It will be beautified by trees, landscaping and come public buildings and cottages. It will have attractions for well people and there will be houses on one to five-acre tracts for convalescents and others who se to remain.

"Tuberculosis is the white spectre. California is overrun with it. Favorable climate and economical maintenance is needed by the many unfortunates drawn here by mistaken ideas prevailing in the East about the coest climate. I live in a tent, work out doors, eat with the well and sick and feel better than at a fash-ionable hotel. We use such fixed precautions about dishes, expectorating and disinfection that no danger is hoursed.

W. Hold Bird writes as follows:

W. The popular belief (which is unquestionably founded upon fact) is that California is a health resort for "all the ills that flesh is helr to."

The great majority who come to these places afflicted with this dread disease, secure most unsanitary quarters—too little artificial heat, too little sunshine and too little dry, pure air. This is largely due to the expense of living. It were better not to have come at all than to go into a cold, damp room in Los Angeles and subsist upon a diet entirely lacking in the hourishment the hody needs. ment the body needs.

Then, a sojourn of one to three months will do little good to a case of developed tuberculosis. If life is worth anything, come to stay. Get occupied with something in the proper locality and stay until you can see your shadow, at loast. This leads to the naming of a placeor places. In winter, the desert east and south of Lot Angeles is the best location, and as every desert rail-Angeles is the best location, and as every desert railroad station is not fitted with hotels or habitation even, the writer can only suggest two places, namely: Indio and vicinity or Imperial and vicinity. Both these places are on the Southern Pacific Railway, in what is known as the Colorado Desert. No atmosphere is drier or purer. The soil is fertile and productive; the lands are reasonable in price and you can live in a well-made and well-pitched tent with safety and comfort. The writer lived in a tent with his family of five persons an entire year when he first came to San Diego county.

Another healthful valley where the rainfall rarely exceeds three inches is Owens River Valley, on the east side of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

It is doubtful if there is a place in the United States better adapted to the killing of tuberculosis than the dry air of Owens River Valley. This valley is about 100 miles long and three to five miles wide. The grandest mountains in America flank it on either side—clear brooks of pure mountain water flow from perennial snows into the valley. Its fruitful lands are cheap. An excellent people inhabit it. They have frosty weather in winter. It is about 3500 feet above sea level and the summers are perfect. Any railroad agent can ticket you to Bishop or Independence via Ogden and Reno. Either of the three places I have named are better than any cemetery, no matter how it may be platted. Only come in time, with plenty of pluck, at least a few hundred dollars after you get here, and remember God helps those who help themselves.

What Children Should Know.

A York World:

"Children have a right to the truth. It is dangerous, it is criminal, to refuse it to them. Our insane asylums and reformatories are monumental proof of the fact. Rice as Food.

Rice as Food.

N AN address delivered before the Rice Association of America, recently in session at Houston, F. N. Gray observed that the fact that the people of the United States do not eat rice is shown by the statistics that a population of 80,000,000 consume-less than five pounds per capita per annum of the 400,000,000 pounds of clean rice now produced annually in the United States. That this population will eat rice is shown by the fact that wherever this cereal has been properly introduced a great demand has been immediately created. Among those of the South who are familiar with rice, the percapita consumption is 100 pounds or more per annum. It has been practically demonstrated by a great railway corporation that there are no less than 200 different ways in which rice can be cooked in a most palatable form. "Rice properly manufactured," the speaker declared, "could enter-into competition with wheat, oats and other cereals universally sold and known as breakfast foods. Moreover, rice flour, made of broken or cheaper rices, compounded with certain proportions of low or cheaper grades of wheat flour, will make a bread white, nutritious, wholesome and acceptable to any man's table."

It should be remembered, in this connection, however, that as shown in an article published in this depart-

man's table."
It should be remembered, in this connection, however, that as shown in an article published in this department, where the composition of various cereal foods, including rice, was given, rice is not, of itself, a desirable food, where it forms a large proportion of the diet, for the reason that it is composed mainly of starch, which makes heat and force, but is lacking in nitrogenous or muscle or flesh-forming matter, as compared with other cereals. For this reason, rice should only be used in combination with highly nitrogenous food, such as milk, eggs, cheese, beans or meat.

No Strength in Stimulants.

No Strength in Stimulants.

The following, in regard to the non-nutritive quality of alcohol, is not according to Prof. Atwood, but it is true, nevertheless. It is from the Hospital:

"The idea that alcohol or any other stimulant can ever impart strength must be abandoned. A stimulant has a certain effect on the circulation, and this may enable the person who takes it to exert more strength temporarily; but the energy that he uses comes not from the stimulant, but from his own blood and tissue. A similar mistake is made in the administration of a stimulant to relieve a feeling of depression or sinking. An injurious reaction always follows. Alcohol is harmful also in diseases of the kidneys or of the liver, but it seems to be good for diseases of the lungs, and its effect on appetite and digestion may be good when properly employed. When 'stimulants' put one to sleep and quiet agitation, they are doing good; when, on the contrary, they raise the pulse-rate, and cause excitement and wakefulness, they are doing harm."

A Repulsive Beverage.

THE extent to which some people will go in their determination to secure a stimulant is extraordinary. France, already cursed with the absinthe habit, is now threatened with another evil, in the drinking of kerosene, which habit is said to be increasing so rapidly that measures are being proposed to combat it. It is said that the importation of kerosene for drinking purposes among the Indians of some South American countries has become quite an important industry.

TOOTH TALK

Free Examination.

Free Examination.

If I made a charge for examination and a lvice there are many people who would class me with those dentists who charge a very extraordinary price for a very ordinary sort of work. On the other hand, in making no charge for examination, I run some danger of being classed with those whe are known as "cheap dentists," which is just as bad if not worse for my reputation. Still examination without charge has, on the whole, many things in its favor. The merchant is only too glad to let you examine his merchandise to your heart's content before a purchase is made. The lawyer wants to hear a statement of your case before he accepts if. And why should a dentist charge for what is likely to benefit himself as well as the patient? The great disadvantage is that many are led to anything. I can only say that every examination believe that a free examination does not amount to anything. I can only say that every examination I make is just as therough as if a large free were asked, for the impertance of a careful examination cannot be over-estimated, as on it depends the formation of a correct plan for the treatment required. Not only should the extent and character of the decay be noted but a number of qualifying conditions should be known, such as the structural quality, the physical appearance of the fluids of the mouth, the general chemical reaction of the oral secretions, etc., etc. I am always giad to meet those who read these weekly talks and extend a cordial invitation for those who desire examination to call.

Perfect Plates.

Perfect Plates.

The dentist who is an expert plate maker is an exception—not the rule. Plate makers are born—not made. I believe that I have a natural faculty for plate making. Of course. I avoid a great deal of trouble by absolutely refusing to make real cheap plates which are not only cheap but really dangerous. I could write an entire talk on the dangers of cheap plates, but I think that most people know a great deal of it already. I charge a fair price for a satisfactory plate—by that I mean a plate that fits right, looks right, masticates right and is durable. Those who are wearing poor fitting plates are invited to call. Discomfort from poor plates can often be rectified by a dentist who understands.

Crown and Bridge Work.

Crown and Bridge Work.

I use twenty distinct styles of gold crowns which is about three times as many as the ordinary dentist uses. My gold crowns are extra heavy, which emphasizes the durability. My system of adaptation of the crown to the root is also a special feature of what many have been pleased to term the Covington system of dentistry. In all crown and bridge work, my Prephylactic treatment plays an important part. With this treatment I can do a great many things that the ordinary dentist cannot do and Prophylactic treatment makes the operations of crowning and bridging easy to bear and assures the highest possible class of work.

Filling the Teeth.

Here is where the manifold advantages of Prophylactic treatment are most notable. If you will have one tooth treated and filled by my system you will never go elsewhere to have work done.

URROUNDINGS have much to do with the display of intrepldity. Men do things in company that they would not do alone. No requirement of active military service demands such faithful and courageous performance of full duty as guard and ontpost work in the field. It is not play to stand night watch in a typhoon, as many of our men in the Philippines have had to do. There is plenty of time to think at such work. Fancied security will sometimes serve as well as though it were real. There was a little expedition from San Fernando, north of Manila, against the town of Porac which the Filiphos were holding. Two correspondents accompanied it. Both represented Chicago papers, and both had been under fire all that they thought was necessary to establish their status as war correspondents. There had been three of them, but Tom stayed in town and let Dick and Harry go to the Tom stayed in town and let Dick and Harry go to the front. It happened that the fight did not begin where it had been expected, and the two newspaper men found themselves in a very awkward position. Bullets were singing around in what they were sure was very close proximity to their heads. While they were looking for a good safe place they ran across what looked like a stone wall, and promptly got down behind it. When they had recovered their breath, Harry said to Dick: "A stone wall is a great thing in a strange land, Dick."

Dick responded with what was intended to be an elo-quent apostrophe to the wall. "O glorious stone walf?" he began. "Preserver of life!" he continued, waving his hand toward the wall. It was during this period of service that Col. Hayes, then a bugler, 16 years old, saved the life of Fitzhugh Lee. This, he says, is the story of the incident: Lieut. Lee and Hayes had been to see Sam Houston take the oath of office as Governor of Texas at Austin.

On their return it was learned that Indians had made a raid, killing a few settlers and running off some cattle Lee took twelve men and Hayes, and started after them. He struck their trail the next started after them. He struck their trail the next night, and followed it for more than fifty hours, at the end of which they came up with the Indians on a plain near a timbered ridge. The command charged the indians, and in a short time had the band on a run.

The Indians scattered, and two, of them made for the timber on the right. These two, one the chief, were followed by Lee, Hayes and a trooper. Lee and Hayes happened to see an Indian dash for a patch of rocky remaind. The treater was left in charge of the horses.

a bright red, and hung it on his gun. A moment later, Hayes heard loud talking, and turning around, saw Lee and the Indian in a hand-to-hand battle. The Indian had shot Lee through the arm with an arrow, and had jumped upon him from behind, before Lee could use his pistol. In the struggle, the pistol fell to the ground. Hayes went to Lee's rescue, but was afraid to shoot lest he should hit the wrong man. Lee at last got hold of the Indian and shot him through the jaw. This did not disable him, however, and when it was about all up with Lee, Hayes fired and killed the Indian.-[New York

Dick Gower's Fighting System.

INCOLN'S great good sense was shown in his mak-Lincoln's great good sense was shown in his man-ing Dick Gower a lieutenant in the regular army. Dick had shown his bravery and his capacity among the western Indians, but was rejected by the board of military martinets at Washington, because he "did not know what an abattls, or echelon, or hollow square, was."

Well," sharply said the dilettante officer with a sin-eye-glass. "What would you do with your command gle eye-glass. if the cavalry should charge on you?'

Dick was there. "I'd give them hell, that's what I'd do; and I'd make a hollow square in every mother's son of them." Lincoln signed his commission, and Dick made a famous soldier.-[National Magazine.

Kitchener's Zeal in War.

No MAN ever kept his own counsel better than K. when fighting was afoot; there was never any leakage of information, because there was never any infor-mation to leak. Once when the enemy threatened our line of communications I expressed some anxiety about our wires, which were laid, for all the world to see, as a ground-line along the desert, glistening in the sun and ground-line along the desert, ginseling in the said and bearing a meaning even to a dervish, which is saying a good deal. K. told me to ride down to the river bank and say if I felt happier. Down I went, and after dillegent search discovered a second wire cunningly laid under the bush and sedges. As I was about to ride back I saw a steamer pushing off, and asked the young engineer officer on board what he was about. It turned out that he had personal instructions from K. to lay a third line of telegraph on the other bank of the Nile, and no one in the army, but the chief and this young officer had wind of the matter. Assurance was made not doubly, but trebly sure. I always feel a confidence amounting to certainty that when K. arrives on the bank of the Styx he will saunter up with a Berthon boat under his arm. To think of his being dependent on the good will of an ill-conditioned ferryman in the passage of an unfordable river is not an idea that one's mind is able to contemplate for a moment.—{Blackwood's Magazine.

Forty Acres for a "Yaller Dog."

O NE of the most entertaining and most profitable speakers at the negro conference this year was a woman, Mrs. Lucy Nelson of Dadeville, Ala. "Well, it was this way. When I started I didn't have nothing at all but jest a little yaller puppy dog. I took the little dog over to my brother-in-law's. He had eight little bits of pig, oh, jest so little, and I swapped the puppy with him for one of the pigs. It was such a little pig it didn't look like it could live, but I nursed it good, and I prayed to the Lord to make that little pig come forward to do me good, and the pig lived and graw. The first year I turned her out, and when she came back in the fall she brought me seven little pigs with her. That was my start. I never had to but any meat since. This winter I've killed three hogs, and I've got another at home now ready to kill. I've got forty acres of land now, all paid for, and a home, and it all

How Jimson Went to Bed.

YOUNG Jimson and his wife went out to the country the other Saturday, telling the domestic that they would spend the night at Jimson's brother's. Arriving there, they found that Jimson's brother's family-in-law had descended upon him from all parts and in legions. so that there was not even a mantelpiece to sleep on; so after dinner they came home.

"Jimmie, I gave you the key this morning, and told you particularly not to lose it."

"Yes," said Jimson, "and called me back when I was halfway downstairs, and took it back. Where is it?"
"On the bureau, of course," said Mrs. Jimson, cheerily.

Isn't it nice that I remember where it is. I can just see where I put it.

"If you had an X-ray arm to put through an X-ray loor, as well as X-ray eyes," said Jimson, with gloom, it might be better. Can your Roentgen mind suggest

The Way it Will Be.

The low moon hung above the hemlocks on the distant horizon, and the little birds twittered sleepily upon their nests in the great trees of the garden. How True Merit Was Recognized.

HERE was at Amadan a celebrated academy, of which the first statute was: "The academiclans shall think much, write little, and speak the very least possible." It was called "The Silent Academy," and there was not a true scholar in Persia who was not ambitious to be admitted to it.

Dr. Zeb, author of an excellent little book, entitled "The Baillon," learned in his province that there was a vacancy in the Silent Academy. Thereupon he set out, and, upon arriving at Amadan, presented himself at the academy, and sent this note to the president: "Dr. Zeb humbly requests the vacant place." But the doctor and his note arrived too late, for the place had already been filled.

The academy was annoyed at this mishap: it had received, a little unwillingly, a fine wit whose light and lively eloquence called forth the admiration of the court, and it saw itself reduced to refusing Dr. Zeb. the scourge of prattlers, and such a philosopher? The president hardly knew how to communicate this disagreeable news, but, after considering a little, he filled a large cup so full of water that a drop more would make the liquid overflow, then he signaled for the candidate

Dr. Zeb appeared with that simple and modest de meanor which always attends true merit. The president arose, and without offering a single word, showed him with a look of disappointment the emblematic cup-that cup so precisely full that nothing could be added to it. The doctor understood the inference-that there was no longer a place in the academy; but, without losing courage, he thought he could make it clear that a supernumerary academician would derange nothing. He saw a rose leaf that had fallen from the vase, and he laid it delicately on the surface of the water, and did it so well that not a single drop overflowed.

At this ingenious answer they all clapped their hands, and, setting aside the rules for that day, Dr. Zeb was received by acclamation. Thereupon he inscribed his name in the register, and it only remained for him to pronounce some word of thanks, according to usage. But, as a truly silent academician, he conveyed his thanks without saying a word. He wrote in the margin the figures 100—the number of his new fellow-members; then, putting a zero before the number (0100,) he wrote elow: "They will be worth neither more nor less."

The president replied to the modest doctor with as much politeness as ready wit. He put the figure 1 before the number 100 (1100,) and wrote: "They will be worth ten times as much."—[Translated from the French by

THE surface of Lakes Chalco and Xochimilco, Mexico, are literally dotted with floating farms. The lakes are situated about ten feet higher than the Texlakes are situated about ten feet higher than the Texcoco Lake, and separated from it by several hills. Lake

The larger islands are mostly surrounded by tall poplars, planted in rows along the edges, thus forming a firm boundary. Undue shade is prevented by lopping off the side branches. A Cavern in the Prairies.

T A SPOT eleven miles southeast of this place, in the A TA SPOT eleven miles southeast of this place, in the level prairie upland, is an opening about forty feet in diameter and sixty feet in depth. By clinging to its rocky and precipitous walls a person may descend to the bottom and there find the openings to the two caves, one leading westward and the other to the east. For years this cave has been known as Rock Prairie Cave. It is one of the most striking natural curiosities in the Chickasaw nation. The caves are of unknown length and through one rushes a subterranean stream of great depth in places and of key coldness. Exploring parties have ventured into these labyrinths for hundreds of yards, but the danger of becoming lost has prevented a thorough examination of the underground passages.

The cave leading westward is easiest of access, and contains a number of spacious chambers. The room is about seventy feet square and fifty feet from the floor to the ceiling. The floor is obstructed with huge bowlders. The darkness and stillness are intense. Picnic parties sometimes go there, and with a large bowlder for a table eat their luncheons in the glare that east uncanny shadows along the massive walls.

Men have waded in the stream until the water reached their chins and then gone in a boat to points where were unable to touch bottom with the longest cars. A farmer carried his boat into the cave several years ago to follow the stream to its end. At a depth estimated to be 200 feet below the surface of the ground is a natto be 200 feet below the surface of the global across the ural bridge formed by a huge stone that fell across the stream. The water plunges underneath this bridge like a milirace. A boat can be pulled over the bridge, however, and launched on the other side. About 100 feet below the bridge the stream widens into a broad, deep pool, with a high vaulted roof. Beautiful stalagnites and stalactities adorn the chamber. Two hundred feet below this pool the passage is difficult. It is claimed that this cave has been explored for a mile.

The stream is believed to find its outlet at a spring about three miles from the entrance to the cave. The spring is of great size and volume and flows with remarkable swiftness. In the rainy season this spring boils and gushes as if choked with the flood of water that pours from its mouth. The stream in Rock Prairie Cave rises when there is a heavy rainfall in the sur-rounding country, and the increased flow of both spring and stream at such times is taken as evidence that they are connected.—[Oklahoma State Capital.

At present there are about 210 prisoners there, and they include two princes, one count, two barons, one general, four bishops, sixteen common soldiers, fifty-two officers, 124 priests and one shoemaker. They are treated with severity, and undergo solitary confinement in gloomy cells. Many prisoners become insane after a brief period, while the weaker ones soon die from want of light, air and proper nourishment.

The prisoner most recently sentenced is a priest amed Cvietkoff, and the offenses for which he there are typical. The Captive Bat.

A SMALL wooden box on the third floor of Sadlers, Bryan & Stratton Business College, at 10 and 12 North Charles street, holds captive a bat of the ordinary "leather wing" species which, according to all ac-counts, has had the remarkable experience of being immured within a brick wall for thirty-two years, and yet lives to his disapproval at any one who lifts the lid of the box to examine it.

The bat was discovered on last Wednesday walled up in a small cavity made by a broken brick. The cavity had been plastered over with mortar, and, while it is mad been plastered over with mortar, and, while it is possible that some air may have entered the miniature tomb, the entrance of food or light was practically im-possible. In the same cavity was also found the dead body of another bat. This one was dried into the semblance of a piece of black cloth, which rapidly disintegrated when exposed to the air.

The live bat, according to the statement of Albert Parks, a carpenter, who discovered it, appeared to feel quite lively and flow around the room. Blinded by the light, it knocked against a rafter, fell to the floor and was captured. The cavity in which the bat was found is said to have been closed up and not reopened since that part of the building was erected in 1871.—[Balti-more Correspondence New York Sun.

Mines and Prospects.

PROF. W. L. WATTS of Los Angeles, for thirteen I years assistant in the field to the California State Mining Bureau, now engaged in private work, has issued a circular entitled "Some Data Requisite for Mining Reports," from which the following is an extract. It will interest those who are engaged in developing mining claims in this section:
"The first thing to be considered about a mining prop-

"The first thing to be considered about a mining proposition is: Is it a mine or a prospect? If it is a mine, is it one from which ore can be profitably extracted? If not a paying mine, all suggestions as to its being made to pay by further development should be carefully scrutinized. If it is a prospect, it must be borne in mind that its value is prospective, and that such value is very much less than that of a mine in which the dimensions of a remunerative ore body have been ascertined. As far as circumsiances will permit, a report on tained. As far as circumstances will permit, a report on a mine should cover the following points: The topo-graphical and geological features of the mine and the district in which it is situated, and the character of the district in which it is situated, and the character of the mineral deposit, both with regard to its structure and composition. The report should be accompanied by maps, cross-sections and photographs, showing the dimensions of the property, the topography, workings above and under ground, the structure, and the known and probable exient of the ore body. Average samples of the ore body and of the different materials composing the ore body should be taken in a sufficient number of places and carefully assuyed. If the ore is free-milling, the relative value of the free gold and sulphurets about the given. should be given. In the case of other ores, there should be an analysis showing the composition of the ore, and the metallurgical process most suitable for treating it should be designated. In the case of smelting ores the question of fluxes must also be dealt with, and not only question of nuxes must also be dealt with, and not only the analysis of the ores, but also of available deposits of limestone and iron, must be given. The cost of labor, fuel and transportation, the supply of water and timber and the climatic conditions must be gone into. More-over, the probable output of ore and the cost of mining and treating the same must be set forth. Lastly, the history of the mine and the title should be carefully considered, and the record of mines should receive atten-tion which are situated on the same lead as the mine under investigation, or near by, and in a similar for-mation to the mine reported on. In cases where the lim-ited amount of development entitles a proposition to be classed only as a prospect, as many as possible of the points mentioned should be dealth with and especial regard should be paid to geological details. It is often expedient to make a preliminary reconnoissance of a mining property before examining it in detail; but it is unwise to invest in a mine without an extensive examination of the same, and, if practicable, having a mill test made on a large quantity of the ore. In the case of amination of the same, and, if practicable, having a mill test made on a large quantity of the ore. In the case of placer mines, a contour map of the territory should be made and the probable course of the channel or channels should be delineated. Wells should be sunk to bedrock, and sufficiently close together to demonstrate the general character of the gravel. Most of the wells may be drilled; but some of them must be dug, in order that the character of the bedrock may be ascertained. The material taken from the wells should be carefully washed, each sample speaking for three feet in depth; all changes in the character of the material should be carefully noted, and different materials should be washed separately. Results should be given in values per cubic separately. Results should be given in values per cubic yard; the availabe water supply at different seasons of the year; the heads that can be obtained; full information concerning dumpage, existing ditches and flumes, and the possibility and cost of making others should be clearly set forth."

Gypsum in Santa Barbara.

"This establishment has secured the contract to build two mills for the Pacific Clay Company of Los Angeles, with mines at Corona, in competition with all of the great establishments of Los Angeles. This is an ex-cellent showing for Riverside, when it can enter the field against the old-established shops of a city of ten times its size.

"The castings in these two mills will weigh over fifteen tons, some single pieces weighing each a ton and a half. FIELD NOTES.

By J. W. Jeffrey, Agricultural Editor.

Local Botanist Honored.

B. PARISH of San Bernardino, whose classification of a plant fixes its identity with the botanists of the world, has announced a new species of Astragalus in the last bulletin of the Southern California Academy of Science. He has named the new plant Astra-galus Brauntonii for its discoverer, Ernest Braunton of Los Angeles. It was found in the Santa Monica range near Sherman, growing in washed, decomposed gran-ite, at an altitude of about 2000 feet. The discoverer of this new species has just sold to the botanical section of the Department of Agriculture about seventy mounted specimens of plants peculiar to the Southwest. The bulletin in hand presents a fine cut of the new Astragalus. Mr. Parish has discovered another new plant at Rabbit Springs in the Mojave Desert, giving it classification and description in the bulletin.

Scutellista Increasing.

FOR the last few months the State Board of Horti-culture through State Entomologist Craw has been colonizing Southern California with the South African fly, said to be a mortal enemy of the black scale. There is something new to be said on the introduction of this parasitic insect. Mr. Craw's office has asked for a shipment of black scale from Los Angeles county with which to feed the scutellista in the breeding cages at San Francisco. Mr. John Isaac, a representative of the State Board says he is unable to find feed for the fly in the haunts of the black scale about the bay col-onized with the African parasite. If this good news my in the haunts of the black scale about the bay con-onized with the African parasite. If this good news continues to be verified we may have more definite hopes that the doom of our most destructive scale is at hand. More than fifty colonies of scuteilista have been lib-erated in Southern California. In one of them a third generation has been produced and now dozens of scales may be found on one branch, each containing a larva of the scutellists. Other colonies as carefully examined fail to show one living specimen of the parasite. Thus the orchardists are up before a waiting proposition again with better prospects, but few results. There are literally millions in this to the fruit growers of the south literally millions in this to the fruit growers of the south if their hopes are not quenched by the usual failure of black scale parasites. One fact remains, however, beyond doubt. Southern California can fulnish food for a line of scuteillista cages reaching clear around San Francisco Bay and then not miss the black scale required in the northern breeding activities. Meantime, the good work of extermination should continue along the old lines, as long at least as one search after another for the African fix continues futiless. African fly continues fruitless.

Curing Citron of Commerce.

A N inquiry has been received regarding the curing of the rind of the lemon citron, the answer to which may be of interest to those experimenting with this may be of interest to those experimenting with this fruit. Before assuming a yellow color the citrons are picked and placed in a cask filled with brine. The liquid is renewed several times during the month the fruit is immersed. When ready for preserving the citrons are removed and boiled in fresh water till they are softened. They are then cut in halves, the pulp is removed and the fruit is again immersed in cold water until it becomes of greenish color. After this process it is placed in earthern jars covered with hot syrup and allowed to stand thus for two or three weeks. The final process requires the fruit to be boiled with crystallized sugar as long as it will absorb the sweetening, when it is in the: long as it will absorb the sweetening, when it is in the candied form of commercial use.

It would be folly to induce California growers to raise the citron for Eastern markets, but there are a few growers supplying the home demand at a profit.
There is no duty upon prepared citron, and it is imported in brine from Corsica, landed in New York for four cents a pound. The Corsicans are said to lose money at that, but as only four or five firms in this country are engaged in manufacturing candied citron from the imported article, we must not take their state-ment on this point as conclusive. One Los Angeles firm is engaged in preparing the citron for its own con-fections and there may be a fair future for the trade at home rather than import the article from Italy and bring it across the continent for use. The tree is tender and rather difficult of cultivation, but the yield is enormous. Specimens are grown fifteen inches long, the plant and fruit being necessarily supported by trellis. Do not start a citron farm without due investigation of the business.

Fumigating by Wholesale.

THE Times acknowledges the receipt of the biennial report of the Cahuenga Valley Lemon Exchange, 1901-2. From its pages some valuable information may be given to the fruit growers of Southern California, as they show that where lemons are grown successfully disinfection from insect pests must be followed closely. During the last three years 49,915 lemon trees have been fumigated, at a cost of $9303, or a little less than 18 furnigated, at a cost of $5005, or a little less than 18 cents per tree. The Exchange owffs its own furnigating outfit, having lately purchased twenty-five new tents at an expense of $590. The operations of this outfit of tents has been so successful that the tents have cost only $100 net and are worth many times that amount.

The actual cost of handling the lemons during the last two years was 43 cents per hundred pounds. Fruit cured and packed ready for market cos Beginning in 1897 with only eight carloads wood and Colegrove seems to be an ideal spot for the lemon, for, with all the vicissitudes of the markets the last 300 carloads sold netted the growers $1.47 per hundred pounds for all grades, the highest quality netting $2.01 per hundred. The report shows that the association is composed of eighty-seven members, owning 30.—

Progress in the Peat Lands.

F ORTUNE has favored the great celery sections of ORTUNE has favored the great celery sections of Orange county this season, weather and prices being far more proplitious than last year. Celery is selling at 14 cents and many of the growers are reported to be making $200 an acre at that price. At Talbert*everything is booming in farm development, a large community having gathered there within the last two years, and generally the willows of "Gospel Swamp" are falling before the march of agricultural progress. The products of this new section are sugar beets celery corn ucts of this new section are sugar beets, celery, corn and potatoes. A resident of that section was in Los Angeles investigating the apple business. He says the moist, cool lands of that portion of the county will be thoroughly tried to this fruit just as soon as the trees thoroughly tried to this fruit just as soon as the frees can be brought to bearing. He complains that the press and other advertising agencies have neglected this fer-tile section, and that tourists do not trend that way in spite of he fact that the peat lands are the richest of all the lunds of Southern California. Nature has in-deed side-tracked the Westminster country, as far as tourist travel is concerned, but The Times is pleased to see the real farmer developing this choice section so fast and would willingly lend a hand in publishing items fast, and would willingly lend a hand in publishing items of progress from this unique and exuberant section.

Choice land is selling at $200 per acre and is filling up so fast in the most favored localities that school facilities with difficulty keep pace with land improve-

Citrus-fruit Figures

A T present Riverside produces about as many oranges as did the whole of Southern California ten years ago. The present output shows an increase of over 400 per cent. during the last decade. The high-water mark was reached in 1901, when the citrus fruit crop reached the large figure of 24,900 carloads. From the latest figures obtainable, I give the total citrus products shipped in carload lots for each year beginning in 1893:

Competition will come from Northern California in-stead of Florida, Jamaica or Cuba. All the nursery stead of Florida, Jamaica or Cuba. All the nursery stock in the south is said to have been bought by dealers above the Tehachepi. One buyer is here now taking all the citrus trees offered at a price said to rule very high. He is loading 4000 orange trees at Alhambra now for which he paid 85 cents apiece. There is yet a long distance to an overplus, as the 20,000 carloads of citrus fruits delivered Fast last year lacked nearly of citrus fruits delivered East last year lacked nearly 8000 carloads of supplying the demand for oranges and lemons, that much citrus fruit having been imported in spite of the tariff levied upon importations. Should Northern California become a strong competitive factor, it will be upon an even basis with the south in cost of trees, expense of picking, packing, freight and selling. Only in value of land and cost of water will the north have the advantage. The later fruit of South-ern California will find less competition from other sections than will the early fruit of the north.

Tabloids of Fact.

OUT of 2500 acres of orange trees sprayed for red O spider with distillate, an examination shows that only five acres are affected with the spider. . . . The comparative cleanliness of nursery stock in Los Ange-les city is shown by the report that 1000 raspberry plants were found infected with scale in February plants were found infected with scale in February shipments, amounting to 87,729 frees and plants. . . . No damage was done to San Gabriel Valley nursery stock by the late frost, where last season the destruction was general. . . Plenty of red spider was found on an orchard in Azusa, recently sprayed with distillate. Compare this statement with the first one distillate. Compare this statement with the first one in this paragraph and see how large the variance between the conclusions of two trained observers. It will show the difficulty of forming a conclusion from the facts presented. . . A dozen authorities recommend the sulphur-lime-paste formula for killing red spider. Manager Lindley of the Slauson company says the past adheres to the fruit and makes it difficult to clean. . . More eyes are searching out the life-his-tory of the codling moth, more specimens taken and preserved, more systematic records will be made throughout the State this season than ever before. . . . Or-chardists are preparing for the time when no infected fruit whatever will be allowed to leave the orchard on which it is grown. This season witnesses the manag-ers of packing-houses giving voluntarily information of infected fruit and asking for investigation. . . . A total of 174,000 bearing citrus trees were sprayed or fumigated during the season in the Pasadena district, a prominent association reporting only one carload of fruit washed so far, as a result. Old or New Oats and Hay.

S EVERAL correspondents have of late inquired why Several correspondents have of late inquired way it is that veterinarians and successful horsemen generally advocate the use of old oats and hay for horses at this time of the year. One inquirer, for instance, states that "it is well known that there is more nourishment in new oats and new hay than in old" and that it seems to him "the sheerest folly not to take advantage of that fact." We are not so certain that this is a fact, after all. Indeed, we are inclined to think that the statement quoted is not true. In any case, taking up the hay first, there are thousands of eggs of insects and parafirst, there are thousands of eggs of insects and parafirst. ment quoted is not true. In any case, taking up the hay first, there are thousands of eggs of insects and parasites still alive on the stems and leaves of new hay that when taken into the stomach of the horse develop and cause trouble of many sorts. Then new hay just made must go through a variety of sweating and fermenting processes and surely no one will maintain in the face of what is generally known that such changes in food composition can be good for the digestion of any animal. In the case of new oats the sweating process cuts a most important figure, and the gestion of any animal. In the case of new oats the sweating process cuts a most important figure, and the amount of water that is in the grain when new carries no nutriment with it at all. The sweating and subsequent drying of grain takes from it much that is injurious to the equine stomach, and what is more the food substances in all grain are in a more highly con-centrated form owing to the absence of water. Many of the most valuable horses on earth never get a bite either of new hay or oats and among those are the horses that are required to race, to make their supremsuch as rye and barley and wheat, barley alone can be considered as at all a desirable horse food. Rye and wheat have been fed with a measure of success, more especially with the latter, as exploited in this journal by especially with the latter, as exploited in this journal by Prof. Henry and others, but they are dangerous for the novice to try. Some rye is better than no grain at all for horses, it is true, but it will prove costly provender if it is not fed with the utmost caution in its new state. Too much caution can hardly be exercised in changing from the old to the new crop, and in the case of both hay and oats it is always well to make the transition as gradual as possible by mixing the old with the new and gradually increasing the proportions of the new from time to time until the horses have become thoroughly accustomed to it.—[Breeders' Gazette.

G EORGE F. THOMPSON, United States Department GEORGE F. THOMPSON, United States Department of Agriculture: The word industry is very elastic, and it may be necessary for one to explain what he means when he uses the word. With reference to the Angora-goat industry, I know that the industry failed when goats were first introduced, principally because there was no machinery in this country which could manipulate the mohair. I readily acknowledge that previous to three or four years ago there were large and vious to three or lour years ago there were lade and increasing flocks of Angora goats in the State which you name in your article; but I also am aware of the fact that the mohair which the great majority of these animals was preducing was of a very low grade, and many times sold at a price which was below its cost. notwithstanding the cheapness of its production. There was very little good mohair produced until within the last few years, and the freight rates were so great as to almost exclude it from the markets. Two years ago, at Kansas City, I met some of the Two years ago, at kansas City, I met some of the most extensive breeders of Angora goats in the United States, who actually did not know that kemp was a deleterious feature of mohair. They did know that the manufacturers objected to it, but considered this objection a whim. They were breeding for goats with long hair and much of it, giving very little attention to fineness and freedom from kemp. As I said in my remarks at Kansas City last October these records had learned. at Kansas City last October, these people had learned very important lessons, and this resulted in goats better covered with long and fine hair and a very great diminution in the percentage of kemp. The result was an increase in prices for their product and a demand for every pound that could be produced. These facts were impressed upon the people by the personal rep-resentative of the Sanford Mills, which is the largest manufacturer of mohair goods in the United States. Since then the modalr has very much improved in quality and the manufacturers will take every pound of it that is suitable for their work and will pay better prices than they have heretofore. Last fall the Sanford mills was enabled to say, what was impossible before that time, that they were manufacturing plush from domestic hair which could not be distinguished from the finest Turkish hair. While this does not represent the entire clip or any large amount of it, it does show that our people are rapidly building up ther. flocks to equal the best in the world. The demand for mobair goods is so great that all of the mills state that they are now unable to buy all of the mohair they des re. Ventilation in Incubators.

IT is the popular idea that ventilation evaporates the moisture from eggs during incubation, and so it does to a limited extent, but the main cause is the pressure in the egg due to the growth of the chick and the shrinkage of the shell. Eggs, during incubation, get rid of the excess moisture more because of the pressure within than on account of the ventilation. At best the ventilation can be set of the pressure within than on account of the ventilation.

tile eggs during incubation, look at the infertile eggs in the same machine which only perceptibly shrink in size and weight. The danger of getting the air cell too large is more imaginary than real. The lack of sufficient ventilation fails to carry off the gases arising from the eggs, and the natural conditions and actions of the eggs, are interfered with, the chick fails to develop the egg are interfered with, the chick fails to develop naturally, hence wet, weak chicks with an unripe appearance.

It is very evident to anyone who thinks that mois-ture and ventilation are so mixed that the influence of one is taken for the other. Excessive applied moisture has exactly the same effect as the lack of ventilation— the heavy, muggy condition of the air blocks the expelled or evaporated moisture from the egg. Another proof of the pressure within eggs during incubation is the enlargement of the air cell as the incubation pro-

I dispute that the air cell is for the purpose of furnishing air to the chick except just before it pips the shell. The division between the air cell and balance of egg is air and moisture-tight. If it were not tight, it would fill with moisture. The chick could not possibly use the air. Even its movements and different positions would dispute the theory. Just before the chick pips the shell it usually breaks through to the air cell, but not always. The first real breathing of the chick is after it pips the shell, and from that time until it makes further effort it is accustoming itself to real air. The air cell has a purpose. It helps form a pressure in the other end of the egg, it holds the contents of the egg intact, it forms a back stop, and makes it possible for the chick to brace for action. Ventilation is just as important as the temperature in incubation. Ventilation does the same work in incubators as elsewhere. In incubators, as in houses, the question of ventilation is settled when we correctly draw a line between plenty of air and drafts of air.—[Orange Judd Farmer. Silo Saves Space and Labor.

THE question of economy of storage-room is entirely in favor of silage. Less room is required for storing

THE question of economy of storage-room is entirely in favor of silage. Less room is required for storing the product from a certain number of acres in the silo than in a barn in cured condition. Hay placed in the mow will take up more than three times as much room as the same quantity of food materials put into the silo. In the case of field-cured fodder cern the comparison comes out still more favorably to the silo, on account of the greater difficulty in preventing the thick corn stalks from spoiling when placed under shelter.

Another reason why the silo has been adopted generally is that an acre of corn can be placed in it at less cost than it can be put up as cured fodder. To derive full benefit from the food materials in the field-cured fodder corn, it must be run through a feed cutter in small proportions at a time; the corn must in most cases be husked, cribbed, and either ground, cob and all, or shelled and ground. In siloing corn, the whole plant is now, as a rule, run through the cutter and filled into the silo at once, thus doing away with the separate handling of ear corn. Careful experiments with milleh cows, conducted by several of our experiments with milleh cows, conducted by several of our experiment stations, have shown that silage thus made from corn cut "ears and all" has produced somewhat more milk and butter than dry fodder and ear-corn, handled and fed separately, the product from the same area or land being compared in both cases.—[Cultivator.

The association idea is to concentrate honey in large warehouses, advance the grower something on his crop and wait for a rise in price when the market is poor. The association is incorporated and sells its shares to the members, each incorporated and sells its shares to the members, each 160 stands of bees taking $5 worth of stock. The members are not compelled to ship through the association, but must pay one per cent. of price received when they ship independently in carload lots. The association was organized last December with headquarters at Los Angeles. It has 13,000 colonies pledged and promises to be a factor in bee keeping in the State. The purpose is to join the national association when strong enough,— time ago the famous course was threatened with destruc-tion, as the railway to the Engadine had to pass through it. But the company, with commendable foresight, bridged the run, thus saving from extinction the chief attraction of St. Moritz.

For the championship the toboggans used are known as skeleton Americans. These are made out of a single board, with open steel runners underneath; and for the last two years an innovation has been introduced in the shape of sliding seats. This improvement enables the rider to shift his weight easily from the front to the back, or vice versa, for steering purposes. He has also a better control over his machine, and, what is bet-ter still, by moving his body in different positions a terrific speed can be attained.

It seems hardly credible that the 1500 yards are covered in sixty-seven seconds, which is the record: The pace near the "Church Leap" is terrific, fifty miles an hour being attained; and down the straight run called the "Shuttlecock" the pace becomes absolutely maddening—eighty-seven miles per hour having been attained.

There is a wonderful arrangement for timing, even to the tenth of a second. This is done by an electric ap-thread is broken which stops the clock. Telephones connect all the different parts of the run, and the whole connect all the different parts of the run, and the whole is managed from the conning tower, which is a wooden erection high up on the hill, from which the whole course can be viewed.

The riders jump on their machines head foremost. The reason for lying on the machines is to avoid losing pace by offering resistance to the wind, which would be the case if the rider simply sat on the machine. So much for racing at St. Moritz. This is for the elite of the tobogganing world; but for the ordinary sportsman a run through one of the glorious pine woods appeals to his sporting instinct. or other impediments placed in their way. It is, however, a sport which, when once indulged in, can never be forgotten. It is the king of winter sports:

There is in French Switzerland one of the most glor-lous natural courses that Helvetia can produce. It is at Les Avants, in the canton of Vaud. This place is some six miles high up above montreux, amid the most beau-tiful scenery of the canton. If one be so disposed, it is possible to go up to this place by a funicular railway, but to do so is to lose half the fun of the adventure. The ideal way is to leave Montreux at nine o'clock in the morning, and, with your toboggan slung upon your shoulder, start for Les Atants, which, after a three hours' grind will be reached. It is well to take lunch there; after which a short run can be made near the hotel, just to test one's machine. After about haf an hour of this kind of sport the serious run has to be contemplated. From the hotel to our starting-point is some two miles through the fields and over a high reach of mountainous land. At last we arrive at our starting point, mount our toboggan, and let go, confident in our

For the first mile or so the descent is somewhat steep, and a great pace is immediately got on. On one side are the glorious pine woods, and on the other a deep em-bankment, which, however, is not very dangerous, as bankment, which, nowever, is not very unigerous, as the snow is usually fairly deep, and so should an acci-dent take place one falls into soft snow. On, on we go, through pine forests, round corners, down steep hills, where the pace becomes maddening, up small inclines with the pace we have got on, then down another hill, with the pace we have got on, then down another hill, and so on, until we come to a glorious, straight run of a full mile and a half. We let go our toboggans, fearless of the result. Quicker, quicker, quicker! The devil of excitement fills our breasts. From one side to another we swerve in guiding our flying runners. We laugh at accidents, we think of the moment, not of the future. When the pace is simply terrific a kindly incline retards our speed: and so on by easy stages we reach tards our speed; and so on by easy stages we reach

HORSE CLIMBED A STEEPLE.

MARVELOUS PERFORMANCES OF HORSES AND THEIR RIDERS.

[Tit-Bits:] Some of the feats of horsemanship on ord are so marvelous as to be almost incredible they not supported by the unimpeachable evidence of so many who actually witnessed them.

It is not many years since a reckless Dane made a wager that he would ride his horse to the summit of the spire of St. Saviour's Church, in Copenhagen; and, impossible as the feat may appear, he actually won his wager and descended to the earth in safety. The contemporary accounts of this mad performance are in the highest degree thrilling, with their picture of the blanched, breathless crowd looking up with straining eyes at the horseman, growing smaller and smaller as he wound his way round and round the dizzy narrow-ing steeple, expecting every moment to see horse and rider dashed to pieces at their feet, until at last he stood silhouetted against the sky on the topmost pinnacle, and waved his hand triumphantly to the crowd so far beneath him.

To understand this feat at all it is necessary to say that the spire was climbed by a steep and narrow stair-case, which winds around it; but think of the daring, the courage, and coolness necessary to accomplish such a climb, when the most trifling slip or loss of balance would have meant a swift and terrible death.

A similar feat was performed by that adventurous monarch Ferdinand VII when he rode his favorite horse to the top of the tower of Seville cathedral. This, how ever, was a less hazardous performance than that of the Dane, for there is a fairly wide inclined pathway which climbs the tower; although to the spectators it seemed sible that the King could ever emerge from the

There is an account of a feat of horsemanship which seems more wonderful than either of those described. It is stated in the records that in the year 1600 a man rode to the top of St. Paul's on his horse Morocco, to the amazement of thousands of onlookers. If this feat ever had any existence outside the imagination of its chronicler, it is probable that the ascent was made by a staircase which may have been a feature of old St.

Paul's.

Almost equally wonderful are the feats recorded of a pair of thoroughbred Arabian horses, the property of Prof. Holloway of Wyoming. These horses have been trained by their owner to make divês of seventy feet and more into a lake. "At a signal one of them starts up an incline at a quick walk until he reaches a platform seventy-feet above the lake below. The professor is standing on the shore. is standing on the shore, and as the horse looks down

At the sound of his voice the horse,' without a second's hesitation, leaps from his pinnacle and, flashing through the air, disappears in a cloud of apray, from which he quickly emerges and swims briskly ashore."

It is doubtful whether any horseman, however daring and expert, can excel the skill of some Cossacks. When riding at full gallop they will pick up a child from the ground and toss it high in the air and catch it repeatedly like a ball. They witl, also at a gallop, leap off their horses, pick up any small object, and without checking the horse's speed leap in a standing position on his back.

the horse's speed leap in a standing position on his back.

They will ride their horses down precipitous cliffs, on which there scarcely seems footing for an agile mountaineer, or leap them thirty feet down into a river; while a common feat is for a Cossack galloping at full speed to enatch a needle and thread from one of his fellows and thread the needle in less time than would seem possible in an armchair.

Few of these performances, however, are more astonishing than that credited to John Leech worde his horse into an upstairs dining to the horse into an upstairs dining to the dining-table. expressing this opinion of the British Trade-Mark Office when eventually he goes up against it.

To begin with, the officials in charge at this office seem to suffer from even more than ordinary British conservatism and distrust of original ideas and methods of procedures. In the second place, the rules governing the granting of advertising devices are as stern and unbending as the homely building which houses this cumbersome section of the Patent Office machinery. Oddly enough, American manufacturers have been probably the greatest sufferers from this state of things.

British trade-mark rules are a good deal more arbi-

British trade-mark rules are a good deal more arbi-trary than those prevailing in America, where, prac-tically speaking, any device can be registered. In England, to use the stiff wording of the law, the trade-mark must be "divorced from any meaning in respect to the goods advertised," and "must be neither descrip-tive, commendatory nor geographical." To say that this rule is enforced gives no hint of the relentlessness with which it is hourly grasped by the hilt and brought down upon the schemes of the luckless manufacturer—English and foreign alike—who dares to try to get out of the

How Trade-marks are Rejected.

Here are a couple of instances.

When the inventor of a soap, in the name of which the word "sun" figures, applied for permission to use the name, he was told sternly that he mustn't even dream of such a thing. Abashed, and a little dumfounded, he ventured to ask why, and was urbanely informed that the suggested name was "descriptive," a fault with which the office had simply no patience.
"This is the way of it, they said, with the air of one unmasking a villain, "soap makes things clean, or bright. Sun makes things bright, too. There! It can't be al-

The proprietor of the soap was, however, an obstinate, determined sort of person, and he took the matter into court and won his suit.

A kodak company had a somewhat similar, but even A kouse company had a somewhat similar, but even harder time. When it applied for permission to use the word "sollo" in advertising a sensitive paper, it was withheld. Curiously enough, it seemed that the sun was again the cause of all the trouble. The Trade-Mark Office insisted that, as the paper was affected by the rays of the sun, and as the sun's most popular nick-name was Sol, the company's catch-name was "descripname was Sol, the company's catch-native," and, therefore, quite impossible.

The company promptly appealed from the decision to the Board of Trade, who upheld the Trade-Mark Office. From this body the case went to the first court, and still the verdict was the same. Ditto in the second court. It was not until the question was argued before the House of Lords, sitting—as the highest court of the appeal, that the company won out. There the Lord Chancellor remarked that such a restriction was "absurd." And the framers of the new bill take a similar view of the mat-

A Myriad of Queer Devices.

The new home of the Patent Office, finished only a few months ago, though it does not compare with the vast and handsome building at Washington, is infinitely more up to date than the system it shelters. It is big and airy and the library is a handsome big room, with over three miles of selving, on which repose over 100,000

Among the specifications contained therein are many relating to unusually crack-brained devices. There one of a ship which its inventor intended to run means of windmills fixed at the top of the masts. There is an interesting process for extracting gold which another genius felt sure, from its beautiful yellow color, must exist in straw. There is a plan for a combined gun and plow—the handles of the plow forming the barrels of the gun-the idea being that, should an honest plowman be attacked by deadly enemies, he would not be without a serviceable weapon.

Americans Lead in Patents.

In the "American corner" of the library are shelves upon shelves of fat, yellow volumes, all marked "U. S. Patents," and no wonder, for the British Patent Office grants more patents to American inventors than it does to those of any other foreign country—3189 was the number last year-Germany coming next and France next.

In the library you find the inevitable little army of "inventors"—practically every one of the seven ages of man represented among them—pouring over the records of patents to find out whether the idea upon which so many of their hopes for the future are founded, has occurred to some one else already. Inventors get cour-teous treatment at the patent office. There isn't anyone to say to them as Dickens, in "Little Dorrit" made Mr. "Look here! upon my soul, you mustn't come into the place saying you want to know, you know."

How Dickens Grilled the System

In Dicken's time an English patent, considered merely as a document, was a portentous thing. It was enseed by hand on a parchment sheet of about the size of a big map of the United States, and bore a round wax seal fully as large as an ordinary blacking box, enclosed in a tin case greatly resembling the last-named article. To obtain a patent took almost as long as it does to get money out of Chancery, and cost nearly as much as a stateroom on a crack ocean liner.

What made Charles Dickens maddest, however, was the necessity that existed in his day of bribing every body that had anything whatever to do with the grant ing of a patent. He wrote:

"Look at Lord Chancellor, the Privy Seal, the Clerk of the Patents, the Lord Chancellor's Purse Bearer, the Clerk of the Hanaper, the Deputy Clerk of the Hanaper, the Deputy Sealer, and the Deputy Chaff-Wax. No man in England could get a patent for an india-rubber band, or an iron hoop, without feeing who has invented a novelty which he all of them. I went through thirty-five stages. I began with the England may be inclined to with the Queen on the throne. I ended with the Deputy Chaff-Wax. Note—I should like to see the Deputy Chaff-Wax. Is it a man, or what is it? Further, I agree that the whole gang of Hanapers and Chaff-Waxers must be done away with, and that England has been chaffed and waxed sufficiently."

IN POPPY FIELDS.

O wonderful golden treasure! O wealth of the sun and dew! Where Phoebus drives for pleasure, All day his charlot through;

Where the lark sings ever for gladness, Between the blue and the gold, Where is no room left for sadness, And sorrow finds no foothold!

O lark, 'mid the popples singing, Thy wings on the nest afold! If we knew but how to be bringing Golden song to a nest of gold!

O lark, singing high in the heaven.

Dear lark, if we only knew

That sunshine is love's best leaven, Our song might ring pure and true!

THE LAWYER AND THE WOMAN.

A lawyer who has charge of the collection of rents of a large tenement was recently visited by an old Irish woman, who, after much persuasion, had been induced to come downtown and pay her rent. The lawyer's office was on one of the upper floors of a large office building. After the rent had been paid and the receipt given, the old woman was shown out into the hallway by the office boy. The lawyer found her in the hallway a few minutes later, when he had occasion to go out. She was wandering about opening doors and otherwise acting in a strange manner.

Ten Per Cent. Raise in Wages, Sliding Scale, and Steward of Conciliation are Acceptable to Miners, but They Kick About Weighing of Coal-John Mitchell Says Men Will Abide by Decision.

March 21.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The award of the Anthracite Strike Commission on the questions involved in the strike of 1902 does not meet favor with the mine workers. Principally their dissatisfaction is upon the issue of the weighing of coal, for this was the question upon which they fought the hardest and on which they maintained their six months' struggle before the board of arbitration was named by President Roosevelt.

At headquarters of district No. 1

At headquarters of district No. 1 several of the executive-board members were in conference with President Nicholts during the morning, and while they were extractions, and while they were extractions and president with the morning of the laws against child labor in the mining region would. award is not satisfactory is that it leaves the anthracite mine worker much below the bituminous miner in the conditions governing his work, especially as the latter, without a strike; has within the past few weeks obtained concessions in wages and workng hours which are superior to those mine workers readily appreciate the effect of the award, but he looked for no strike trouble of consequence among them. The merchants and business community generality regard the award with satisfaction and are confident that the industrial unrest of the anthracite region is allayed for several years at least.

I. H. Burns of counsel for the inde-pendent operators, was interviewed on the award of the commission, he said: "More important than the 10 per cent. advance in wages is the, provision for a board of stewards of concilla-tion, to settle disputes arising out of an interpretation of the commission's award. , "In my opinion it will give the non-union men the right to have repre-sentation on this board, in case they form an organization. I felt that it would be impossible for the con to frame a scale in regard to weighing, since both sides rejected the commis-

MITCHELL SATISFIED.

DETROIT (Mich.) March 21.—"The decision of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission is on the whole a decided victory for the miners, and I pleased with it." said President J Mitchell of the United Mine Worker Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America, in an interview tonight with an Associated Press reprocentitive. "The anthracite miners of Pennsylvania have reason to be much pleased with the commission's award, and I am sure they are," he said.

In reply to a question as to whother the miners were given as much as had been hoped for. Mr. Mitchell added, after an instant's deliberation, "I do not care to say."

"The most important feature of the award," he continued, "is, of course, the increase of 10 per cent, siven to the miners. This will result in an annual increase of wages of 10,000 anthracite miners of Pennsylvania of $6,000,000.

miners of Pennsylvania of $6,000,000. The sliding scale provided for by the commission is very satisfactory, inascommission is very satisfactory, mag-nuch as a minimum of $4.59 per ton is ixed. With white ash coal at $5.50 per con at tidewater, the increase provided in the sliding scale will be equivalent to 20 per cent. more in the miners was disappointed because the commis sion did not recognize the union forsion did not recognize the union for-mally, and he replied that he was not, because the decision of the commis-sion and its wards were in themselves recognition of the power and in-fluence of the united mine workers. "After the increase of wages given the miners," said Mr. Mitchell, "the most important awards from the min-standpoint, are the ones fixing hine-hour day, and providing for a board of conciliation. The award gives a nine-hour day, with ten houra' pay, directly to 90,000, and practically all of the other employes of the anthracite mines will get a nine-hour day, by reason of their comrades' shorter hours."

Nicholls during the morning, and while they were evidently annoyed that this weighing of coal issue was not more broadly dealt with by the commission, so as partially, at least, to meet the demands of the mine workers, they said the pledges made to abide thereby would be kept.

One of the reasons advanced why the award is not satisfactory is that it.

President Mitcheli's attention was called to the statement in the com-mission's report that conditions in the mining region do not fully justify the adverse criticisms made before the commission by the miners' representa-

IBY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-A.M.1 WASHINGTON, March 21.—The re-port of the commission appointed by the President last October to investigate the anthracite-coal strike was made public today. The report is dated March 18, and is signed by all the nembers of the commission who are Judge George Gray of Delaware; Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright and Brig.-Gen. John M. Wilson, both of his city; Bishop John L. Spalding of llinois; Thomas H. Watkins of Pennsylvania, and Edward W. Parker of syrvania, apa Edward W. Parker of this city. The report is to be illus-irated, and it will be a companied by the testimony taken by the commission, but thus far only the report proper has been printed. This alone covers eighty-seven pages of printed matter.

In brief, the commission awards a general increase of wages amounting in most instances to 10 per cent.; some decrease of time; the settlement of all disputes he arbitration. disputes by arbitration; fixes a miniof the anthracite mines will get a nine-hour day, by reason of their comrades' shorter hours."

"The provision for a board of conciliation," he added, "will result in great good, and I am much pleased with it. them. Such things are, to a great extent, you know, the results of one's point of view, and mine is perhaps prejudiced."

While he admitted he thought the commission's recommendation that the coal and fron police be withdrawn would be a good thing. Mr. Mitchell refused to discuss the effect this might have on conditions in the mining resion.

"How will the miners receive the decision of the commission that in case of a deadlock in the board of conciliation, to consist of six perhaps and the miner or miners directly intersected, or is of a scope too large to be settled, shall be referred to a permanent of conciliation, to consist of six persons, appointed as hereinafter provided. That is to say, there shall be persons, appointed as hereinafter pro-vided. That is to say, there shall be a division of the whole region into districts, in each of which there shall districts, in each of which there shall is exist an organization representing a majority of the mine workers of such district, one of said board of conciliation; shall be appointed by each of said organizations, and three other persons shall be appointed by the operators, the operators in each of said districts appointing one person.

"Until I have redd the entire report," Mr. Mitchell said, in concluding the interview, "I cannot comment on it or discuss it at any length. It is mainfestly impossible for me to do this, but I repeat that on the whole the awards of the commission are very satisfactory and a decided victory for the men. The increase of wages ig the most important of these, of course. Next in order are the nine-hour day and the provisions for a board of conciliation."

"Will the miners stand by the commission's report and award?"

BECAME ALL-NIGHT AFFAIR. (BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—AM.)
SAN FIKANCISCO, March 21.—Sixteen of the puupils of the senior class of the Cogswell Polytechnic School were adrift Cogswell Polytechnic School were adrift on a becaimed yacht outside the Heads all last night while their parents worried, believing they had all been lost. There were eleven girls and five boys in the party, and the mother of one of the girls went along as chaperon. They were the guests of Prof. Barton Cruickshank, the principal of the school and the owner and captain of the yacht. It had ben planned that the party would be given only a short cruise about the bay, and the boys and girls should be at their homes at 6 o'clock, but the yacht became becaimed, and no response was made to the signals of the party. Finally darkness fell upon the yachting party, and a long night of anxiety, both for those, on the yacht and their friends on shore followed. The alarm for the safety of the party spread, and anxious inquiries were made all night. This morning when day broke the little craft was seen of shore, and a launch was sent to tow her and her anxious, hungry passengers to the city. The yacht was docked shortly after noon.

SANTA ROSA, March 21.-Word has reached Luther Burbank, the fa-mous horticulturist, that the most careful experiments carried on in Ireland have proved the Burbank po-tato resistant to the potato blight, which has been the cause of such terrible famine and suffering in that country. The experiments were carried on by a Californian, W. J. D. Martin of Shasta county. Mr. Martin is confident that the Burbank potato will soon be raised exclusively on the Emerald Isle, and that then no famine need be feared.

Demand Punishment of Police Officials Responsible for Attack Upon Them, but are Unable to Get Satisfaction from the Premier.

IBY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-A.M.1 BUDA PEST. March 21.—(By Atlanti Cable.) Two of the students who were in jured during the rioting yesterday evening o the occasion of the celebration of the anal disturbances enlangered the safety of the general public.

The Premier subsequently made a statement to the House based on the official reports on the riots. He said the police officials had performed their duties with heroic self-sacrifice under most difficult circumstances. He felt it his duty to uphold them, and he would not allow Parliament to be tarned into a student's convention.

Fubscquently the Kossuth deputies bitterly complained in the Diet of the action of the police demanding the dismissal of the police perfect, and reproached the government for posting the police posts where they were likely to provoke a further collision with the attudents. The uprofar became so great that the sitting was suspended. Upon its resumption Premier Szelj anhounced that the police would be withdrawn, that a strict inquiry would be made, and that anyone who had exceeded his duty would be punished. The students tonight paraded the streeta but several deputies urged moderation and the evening passed without disturbances.

LORENZ COMING BACK.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
NEW YORK, March 21.-[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prof. Lorenz, the noted sur-geon of Vienna, will return to the United States in April. While in New York, Lorenz was offered numerous opportunities of practicing his wonderful art and of earning a small fortune in fees, but he did not take advantage of these opportunities, preferring to devote the little leisure he had in aprule in other American cities he ited. His important private case—that of little Lolita Armour of Chicago— which was the occasion of his journey to America, took up but asmall part of his time. It is understood the doc-tor will visit Chicago soon after his ar-rival to remove the cast from his Chi-cago patient and to supervise the after treatment. It was the intention of the family to take the child to Vienna for that purpose during the approaching summer, but Dr. Lorenz's decision to summer, but Dr. Lorenz's decision to revisit America obviated this neces-sity, and it is believed better results will follow the change of plan.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Acting on Presiden Roosevelt's suggestion about the pro tection of American game, Secretar Wilson reoposes to send some of his ex perts into various parts of the United States to work during the coming summer on this general subject. Owing to the fact that the State laws cover this question in most sections, there are comparatively few places where United States officials can exercise any au thority. But it is proposed to do active work in Alaska, where the Federal laws govern. A man has already been detailed to visit that Territory for the purpose of making a full report upon the kinds of animals and birds that are found there, and also to sugges means for their preservation. It is not the intention to restrict the killin-

Prebably Eighteen Months Will Elapse Before Machinery of Actual Construction Will Be Placed in Motion-Some of Necessary Preliminary Steps.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) WASHINGTON, March 21 -- [Excluive Dispatch.) The reaping of profits through the construction of the Panama Canal by the United States is now engrossing the attention of all thos who may become beneficiaries. Manu facturers in almost every line of industry are arranging with all others in the same line to maintain a system of prices that will prevent rulnous compe-tition. There will be sufficient work for all without underbidding Many delegations representing manufacturers in various branches have already been here, consulting the plans of the 1sth mian Canal Commission. They are computing just what will be needed, how soon they can supply it, and at what price. The government is regarded as certain pay, and no allowance need be made for losses.

All details for furnishing supplies will be completed long before the ne-cessity arises for their use. Members of the recent canal commission believe that it will be eighteen months before the machinery of construction can be placed in motion. Nothing whatever can be done at present except the per-fection of legal details necessary for transferring the Panama property to the United States after Colombia shall have ratified the treaty. When this has been accomplished the President will name seven men who will compos a commission to supervise the building of the canal. The President does no

SEVERAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

The commission also makes a number of recommendations, which may be summarised as follows:

The discontinuance of the system of employing the "coal and iron police," because this force is believed to have an irritating effect, and resort to the regularly constituted peace authorities in case of necessity.

A stricter enforcement of the laws in relation to the employment of children. That the State and Federal governments should provide machinery for the making of a compulsory investigation of difficulties, similar to the investigation which this commission has made. The commission expresses the opision that with a few modifications the Federal act of October, 1888, authorizing a commission to settle controverses between railroad corporations and other common carriers could be made the basis of a law for arbitration in the anthractic coal mining business. The commission, however, takes a decided position against compulsory arbitration. On this point they add a quite lengthy commentary which closes in the following language:

REASONS FOR FINDINGS The commission then takes up the demands of the mine workers and the demands of the mine workers and the answers of the mine operators, giving in detail the reasons for the findings. In a general way, they say that the conditions of a mine worker, outside the mines, does not justify to their full extent the adverse criticisms made by their reports. They also find that the social conditions in the mining communities are good, and they full to find that wages are so low among the miners as necessarily to force them to put their small children to work. The commission also finds that the average daily rate-of earnings in the anthractic regions does not compare unfavorably with that in other industries.

On the subject of the recognition of the Mine Workers' Union, the commission says that they do not consider that this subject is within the scope of the jurisdiction conferred on them. They do say, however, that "the suggetion of a working agreement between employers and employes, embodying the doctrine of collective barbaing, is one which, the commission believes contains many hopeful elements for the adjustment of relations." Further on, they say: "The present constitution of the United Mine Workers' of America does not present the ceive the punishment due to such most inviting inducements to the operators to enter into contractual relations with it."

IT MEANS DEAR COAL.

UNION NOT A PARTY. The commission reports more than once their incapacity to make an award on the demand of the miners for a recognition of their union, because, they say, the union is not a party to the submission. Attention is called to the fact that Mr. Mitchell appeared before the commission as "the representative of the anthracite coal mine workers," and not in his official cancelly. They also call also coally a submission of the coal mine workers," and not in his official capacity. They also call attention to the fact that the agreement to arbitrate was reached between the operators and a coal miners' convention. The commissioners say that "trades unionism" is rapidly becoming a matter of business. If the energy of the employer is directed to discouragement and repression of the union, he need not be surprised if the more radical ones are the ones most frequently heard. They express the opinion that differences can best be settled by consultations by the employer with a "committee chosen by his employes," but they add that "in order to be entitled to such recognition the labor organization must give the same recognition to the rights of the employer, and of others, which it demands for itself and for its members."

They add: "The union must not undertake to assume, or to interfere with the management of the business of the employer,"

They also pronounced as untenable the contention that "a majority of the employes of an industry, by voluntarily associating themselves in a union, acquire authority over those who do not so associate themselves."

BLOOD-STAINED STRIKE.

Touching the effect of discrimina-tory lawlessness, boycotting and black-listing, the commission states that during the continuance of the late strike, disorder and lawlessness ex-isted to some extent over the whole region, and throughout the whole region, continuing the commission period. Continuing, the commission

"The resentment expressed by many persons over the presence of the armed guards and militia of the State does not argue well for the peaceable character or purpose of such persons. No peaceable or law-abiding citizen has reason to fear or resent the presence of either.

"It is also true, and justice requires the statement that the leaders of the organisation which—began and conducted the strike and notably its president, condemned all violence and exhorted their followers to sobriety and

OAKLAND, March 21.—A torrent of oil from the wells baptised the Standard Oil Company's great new pipe line today, at Eakersfield, and 20,000 gailons of that murky fluid are on their way to the water's edge at Point Richmond.

The first drop of oil was poured into the pipe at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. No Standard Oil official is able to say just when the oil will reach Point Richmond, but it will be at least two weeks. The builders want to test the line thoroughly as the oil moves, hence the delay. The oil test is being preceded by a test with water, the water being but one section ahead of the oil. The pipes, which are eight-inch, are subjected to a pressure of 799 pounds to the square inch.

played was presented yesterday by Taylor.

Jones in right field made an unassisted double play. With Ross on second and Dillon on first in the fourth inning, Hollingsworth sent a short fly to right. Jones, by a great sprint, ran up and caught it and, continuing on to first, doubled Dillon by stepping on the bag. As there was one out before, this retired the side.

Hanlon made a fine stop in the fourth. Ross hit a hard one over first base, and Hanlon, by the aid of his long arms, knocked it down, but could not get it to the bag in time to head off acoss, who is a sprint runner.

A Saturday crowd of about two thousand people watched the performance and had a big lot of sport in the good and bad plays.

Bloody Hold-up by Three Masked Bandits, George A. Griswold Killed, and Three Passengers Wounded-One Highwayman Shot, but All Escaped-Henderson Fired and Ran-Thrilling Accounts of Crime.

Three masked robbers held up loaded Santa Monica car last night, after barricading the tracks, just beyond the city limits near Rosedale Cemetery. A pas-senger opened fire on them, and started a fusillade from the deses, in which one passenger was killed, three passengers and

After emptying aneir revolvers the robbers fled into the darkness of the open fields. The re-sistance prevented their robbing the passengers, and they left force very soon after the hold-up

After blocking the tracks the three robbers boarded the car, and shouting curses and threats, commanded the passengers to throw up their hands. The leader of the trio took the open front end, ordering the half-dozen men seated there to go inside. The two confederates took ap positions at the rear door.

the robber chief repeated his demand. At this, Charles A. The two robbers standing at the rear doorway trained their revolvers into the ranks of the innocent passengers, who sat with hands in the air, and of these one was killed and another shot through the hand. The car was riddled in a dozen places.

of the fenced right of way at this for three blocks in each direction. Toward the city small groves ward the city small groves afford quick refuge from view, and weeds obscure the vision in the fields on each side. There is no habitation within a quarter of a mile of the scene of the robbery. Motorman Charles Currin and Con-ductor F. M. Meister were in charge of No. 63, the car which was held up. They left the Fourth-street deor No. 63, the cas which was head up. They left the Fourth-street depot at 8:25, and arrived at the spot just a few minutes before 9 o'clock. The car was bowling along down the grade at a lively rate of speed, when the powerful headlight revealed the obstruction placed across the rails by the robbers. One of the steel T-rails distributed along the track had been swung across the rails, and on top of this had been piled a large miter-box and cement barrel. Currin applied the brakes, and approached the spot slowly, bringing his car to a stop ahead of the debris without seeing any persons about.

SHOOTING BEGINS.

At the instant the car stopped, the masked leader of the trio sprang out-of the darkness, and to the side of the of the darkness, and to the side of the car at the front end. He is described as being of short and stocky build, but so far as could be seen young and clean-shaven. He wore a plain, white handkerchief across the lower portion of his face. Waving his revolver back and forth along the length of the car, with a sweeping motion, he began yelling in a loud and evidently youthful voice:

"Hands up: Hands up! Get your hands up, every one of you.

Seizing the upright handle he then swung himself up onto the car step, standing directly in front of a young passenger who sat on the side seat. This young feilow was either half asleep or intoxicated, for he made no motion to obey the robber's command. The robber pushed his gun under the Rash Henderson escaped all of his antagonist's bullets, but two of the men on the seat beside him were wounded. E. T. Pierson of Sawtelle was shot through the groin and J. C. cunningham of this city had his leg punctured. At the third shot from Henderson's revolver the robber toppled backward and fell into the weeds beside the track. It could not be seen where he was struck, and as he made good his escape, how seriously the robber was injured is unknown. Henderson felt helpless with his empty gun, and fearing a renewal of the attack, left the car and started running across the field toward Pico street. In the darkness he ran into a barbed-wire fence, and when recovered from his fright sufficiently to note his surroundings he discovered a horse and fence, and when recovered from his fright sufficiently to note his surroundings he discovered a horse and buggy hitched close by. Henderson was so thoroughly frightened that he immediately tore off in another direction, fearing that if he approached the rig he would have to do battle with another confederate. This rig in the center of the field undoubtedly was the means of the robbers' escape.

Few of the people on the inside of he car knew of the presence of the two men on the back platform until the bullets began singing around their ears. The first warning they received of danger was from Conductor Meister, who was starting to speak to the motorman, and was just inside the front door when he noticed the obstruction on the track ahead. The car quickly came to a standstill, and looking downward through the window the conductor saw the bandit waving his gun. "It's a hold-up, he shouted, loud enough for every one inside the car to hear. Meister jumped back and sat down

Meister jumped back and sat down in the second seat from the front, stripping off his cap to escape being known as the conductor. Beside him in the seat next to the window was Dr. Barnes, and alone in the seat behind was H. A. Griswold, the Iowa tourist.

handed pistol duel on the front end of the car, there were even more exciting events inside the doors. The instant the shooting began outside, the two villains at the rear started their work of murder. Standing side by side in the doorway, the two masked demons started shooting downward upon the backs of the helpiess, seated passengers. Almost every one of the thirty-odd men and women had their hands stretched high in air in obedience to the robbers' commands, but this proved no safeguard against the murderous assault.

MURDER OF GRISWOLD. "Throw up your hands; every G—d—d one of you—." This was the stern order that came with a torrent stern order that came with a forrent of curses from the two men at the rear. The passengers all expected it, and nearly every one compiled instantly. Griswold took out a watch especially prised by him, and started tucking it under his leg. His mother had evidently looked back at him at the first sign of trouble, for the silence was only broken by her exclamation:

"Oh, George; throw up your hands!"
Then the shooting began on the front of the car; the men at the rear took it up, and Griswold's head fell back on the cushion.

"My God, they have killed George," shrieked the mother again.

Across the aisle Dr. Barnes sat beside the conductor, with his hands high in the air. One of the bullets hit him in the back of his uupraised hand and made a painful wound.

The blood that flowed from these two wounded men poured onto the floor, and ran out into the aisle, forming a clot a quarter of an inch thick.

The robbers had emptied their revolvers, so they leaped from the steps and disappeared in the darkness.

"Why in hell don't you get your hands up?"

This young fellow might have then paid the penalty of his indifference had it not been for the action of Charles A. Henderson, who, with three or four other men, sat with their backs to the robber. Henderson was at the end of the side seat, nearest the door of the car, and apparently only at that moment realized what was going on.

Drawing his revolver, Henderson half turned and, with his arm over the back of the seat, began firing straight at the bandit. His first shot brought a reply from the gun of the desperado, and both men pulled their triggers as rapidly as possible. Henderson firefour shots, all he had in his gun, and the robber fired three times.

Charles A. Henderson, employed by the Bright-Crandall Company, a con-tracting firm, and living at No. 23014

South Spring street, took the first definite news of the hold-up to police headquarters. His testimony was con-sidered doubly valuable, in that he was in the very midst of the firing, and was the only person on the car who used a gun on the villains.

As will be noticed in the statement that follows, Henderson said that he thought he shot one of the robbers. Shooting under the greatest excitement, and believing that he was a target for the bullets of the highwaymen, he admitted that he might have misjudged, or that the robber may have received a glancing blow. It was not ascertained last night whether there was blood where the highwayman fell, or seemed to fall, before Henderson's bullet, but even if he were wounded, his companions would undoubtedly have borne him away.

"I was sitting on one of the front seats," said Henderson, "when I noticed the obstruction on the track. I immediately thought something was wrong, and jumped to my feet, at the same time transferring my revolver from my hip to my overcoat pocket. At that instant the highwayman in front put one foot on the step and raised his masked face about four feet from he. As he made this move he raised his gun and said: 'Hands up, hands up, everybody.

"I hesitated a moment, not knowing whether to shoot or mot. When I saw the gun pointed in my direction the temptation was too great, and I fired four times in rapid succession. There was a fifth cartridge in my gun, but it failled to explode.

"As I fired my first shot the highwayman doubled up—and fell to the ground near the step. I could not be positive that my bullet struck him, but it seemed to me that it must have entered somewhere in his abdomen.

"As he fell I saw flashes near the other car track, but could not make

His body was taken to the office of Dr. Case, corner Oregon avenue and Third street, Santa Monica, and at midnight was brought in a special car to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Griswold was prostrated by the shock, but Miss Funk bore the affiction with greater fortitude. She gave the following account of the shooting:

There were shots to the right and left, and right into the places where the men were slitting. I looked around and George's head sank over on the front of the seat. Everybody sat still, and then I rushed over to him and the blood was gushing out of the poor boy's head. He died instantly. Oh, it was horrible. We thought when they first called out. 'Put up your hands,' it was a joke, and even when George was shot I couldn't believe it."

OFFICERS AT WORK.

As soon as the news of the attempted robbery was received at the police station, every member of the detective-forze and a score of patrolmen were put to work on the case. For more than an hour, however, they were without any definite information as to the number of men who were engaged in the crime or any description of them it was not until the car returned from Santa Monica to the scene of the crime that anything like a straight story was secured and that was far from satisfactory to the officers because none of the passengers, neither the conductor nor the motorman could furnish any description of the robbets. All that they could tell was that the men had disguised their features under white masks or handkerchiefs. It was also stated that one of the men was unusually tall and the other two short or of medium height. How they were dressed and what kind of hats they wore no one seemed to know and there was prantically nothing for the officers to work upon there. A search of the location of the robbery showed nothing except a few footprints in the earth near the track, but they could not be followed any great distance for the reason that they led through an affalfa field in which no tracks were made.

Henderson, who fired at the robbers and who started the shooting could not be found until nearly midnight. Then he appeared at the Police Station and reported what he had done. The reason he had left the car was that his cartridges had all been fired and he would have been unable to defend himself further. He made his way to a street car as soon as possible but to do so he had had to walk more than a mile. His possitiye statement OFFICERS AT WORK.

To have searched the place last night would have been futile, for the reason that in the darkness there it would have been impossible to find anything. Several officers, including several of Sneriff White's deputies were sent to the several grading camps in that vicinity and a thorough search of them will be made at once in the hope of flading a wounded man if one of the ribbers was wounded.

"This is the most serious crime which has been committed in this part of the State in years," he said, "and we will certainly use every effort to capture those murderers. If a large reward will stimulate the effort to effect their capture we will make the reward large enough."

WESTERN UNION CODE 1901 EDITION

TELEPHONE MAIN 1077 Erkenbrecher Syndicate Real Estate and Mines Suite 301 Eurrier Building Los Angeles, Cal., March 22, 1908.

To Real Estate Investors:

Southern California, of which Los Angeles is the capital city, is a land of infinite resources and boundless possibilities; and to look at Los Angeles today, with its skyscraper office buildings and business blocks, it is difficult to realize that this modern metropolis of commerce and manufacture is practically the growth of but a score of years.

The average Easterner can no longer withstand the fascination of the West. To follow the setting sun, with him, is almost an impulse, and once started, the traveler is lured on and on, until, reaching the "City of The Angels" he realizes that a step further, and West is East and East is West.

Los Angeles, the 'Hub' of the great Southwest, towards which sight-seers, searchers for health and fortune-builders from the four corners of the earth are turning their footsteps, is planted in a perfect bower of beauty; north and east, as far as the eye can reach, are towering mountains, whose shaggy sides vary in hue with every hour; westward the land slopes to the blue waters of the mighty Pacific, while to the south are miles upon miles of orchards, rich with citrus and deciduous fruits.

Location and natural resources are responsible for the wonderful growth of this great Southwestern metropolis -- the city that showed the largest relative increase of postal business for the past year of any city in the United States; the city that led all others for the month of January, 1903, in the number of building permits issued.

Los Angeles is soon to have a new $200,000 club-house, to be erected by the California Club; and, what do you think! a $500,000 race-track, equal to the famous Latonia (Ky.) track.

Important buildings projected are: A six-story brick block, corner Ninth and Spring; five immense buildings to be erected by the Southern Pacific Co.; Edison Electric Co. to build an auxiliary steam plant of 7000-horse-power; a flour mill, an organ factory, new car shops, and a $150,000 hotel on Echo Mountain.

We say with other of our public-spirited citizens, "Watch us grow." But get in (you who are without the charmed circle) and share with us in the profits by investing in real estate. Come in any time and talk over the situation with us. Yours very cordially, he City Trustees last night accepted offer of R. G. Lunt of Los Angeles, the offer of R. G. Lunt of Los Angeles, representing a syndicate of bond buyrers, for the purchase of the city's water bonds, at a premium of $4065.66. The bonds were voted last December, the two branches of the issue covering $163,000 for the Hubbard water plant and system, and $85,000 for the Antill Plant, a total of $231,000. But two bids were filed. S. A. Keen, a Chicago broker, offered a premium of $5775, but his bid was defective, because it was on the basis of bonds bearing 4½ per cent. Interest, while the bonds are only a per cents, as stated in the transscript which was sent to prospective buyers. Lunt's bid was accordingly accepted, his offer being the sum of $235,005.66 for bonds of a par value of $231,000.

SQUABBLE OVER CUP. VENTURA, March 21.—That Press field-day cup, which Throop Polytechnic Institute holds and has refused on demand to give up, promises to create trouble for somebody before the incident is closed. The cup donors and owners say that Throop has right to the cup. The cup, the Free Press people say, was never given to the league at all, but any club winning it, and belonging to the Southern California Interscholastic Athletic League was entitled to hold it for one year only, when it was to be put up again for competition, and that the club winning it three times in succession was to become the owner. Throop won the cup once, and the interscholastic league has ceased to exist. Throop tried to revive it, but failed, as it takes five school teams to make a league quorum, and at the meeting which Throop called but three schools were represented—Throop, Pasadena High and Lox Angeles Normal. The present league, which displaced Throop and the Normal teams, is known as the Southern California High School Athelic Association, and is composed exclusively of high schools. The matter of cup ownership may be carried to the courts, if Throop does not yield. The Free Press characterizes the action of Throop as unsportsmanlike, and adds: "Throop's position seems to be that possession is nine points of the law, and the other point be hanged, though that one point be thapped in the matter."

LONG BEACH, March 21.—The question of ownership of the city's beach front is in prospect of early settlement, on a basis amicable to both the city and the company. At an adjourned meeting of the City Trustees Thursday evening, there was a discussion of the matter by members of the board and a representative of the company.

C. and other woman auxiliaries discend upon and capture the camp. These devoted women find ample reward in the realization that their little attentions afford some measure of happiness to the rapidly-disappearing oil defenders in their declining years. On Tuesday the John A. Martin Woman's Relief Corps took possession of Assembly Hall, and entertained the members of the post and their friends at an ice cream party.

On Thursday the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Union Veteran Legion provided for members of the legion and their friends an agreeable diversion in the nature of a box party.

WIRELESS ON THE ALERT.

The Alert, the government training ship, was passed by the Hermosa today in midchannel, where she lay at anchor. A note from an officer on board, addressed to General Manager New, gives the information that the Alert is equipped with a wireless receiver, adopted by the English navy, and will try to hold communication with the wireless station here while in this vicinity. It is not likely that this will be possible, because of the difference in the instruments, though signals may be exchanged.

The Hollywood News recently devoted an illustrated page to the little town of Sherman, west of Hollywood, where is located one of the power-houses of the Los Angeles and Pacific Railroad Company. Sherman is delightfully located, where the Santa Monica range runs down into low hills. This section is, undoubtedly, destined to become a place of considerable importance in the near future, as the vegetables are at present shipped every day from Sherman, mostly to San Francisco. Several houses are in cours:

The tract is just this side of the property upon which a syndicate of prominent Los Angeles people are going to spend about a quarter of a million dollars in constructing a first-class amuse, ment park, race track and country club. It is also in the immediate vicinity of real estate activity on part of Mr. Huntington. There is little doubt that this southern section of the city, with its fine light loamy soil, that makes no mud, is destined to be the scene of active development during the coming year, and that a transformation will be worked there as remarkable as that which has taken place in the upper Central avenue section around Adams street, during the past ten years. Eight years ago, when the firm of Grider & Dow laid out the Briswalter tract, on the east side of Central avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Thirtieth streets, people thought it was a long way out of town. Today, these lots are worth from five to six times as much as the price at which they were placed on the market. There is room for a large population in the section of the city known as Vernon, or South Los Angeles. All signs point to the probability that this section will within a few years become by the new firm is the subdivision and marketing of a tract of thirty-four acres, which they purchased on Central avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-sixth streets. It is known as the "Central-avenue Home tract," and contains 187 lots, which are placed on the market at prices ranging from $225 to $450, with a few extra choice loss running up to $800. The streets will be improved in first-class style, with coment curbs and sidewalks, and water piped to every lot. The soil is a sandy loam. Good sewage facilities are assured, as an outfall sewer runs across the property. There will be a moderate building clause, not too high to prevent the building of modest cottages. There is a five-minute car service on Central avenue, and the tract is less than twenty-five minutes' ride from the business center.

The Schofield Tract.

Alderson & Son report the subdivision of a block of land lying between Budong and Raymond avenues on West Jefferson street. This property has remained unsubdivided for years, while property some distance west of it has been placed upon the market. It is reported, also, that the streets of this tract have been graded, cement curbs and sidewalked. The 'subdivision is to be known as the Schofield tract, and it is located among some of the best tracts in the southwest. The West Jefferson Traction line passes the property which are the vicinity possess. Building restrictions have been placed upon the lots.

The tract is just this side of the property upon which a syndicate of prominent Los Angeles people are going to Henry D. Nelson has sold to Daniel Sample, through Nolan & Smith, 155x 165 feet, on the northeast corner of Olive and Eleventh streets, without valupable improvements; consideration named, $22,500. Bought as an investment, and for future improvement.

L. R. Smith, J. R. McGiashan and John Sinclair have purchased of Han-nah C. Madden, through Nolan & Smith, lots 1 to 22, inclusive, of the Menlo tract, comprising five acres, un-improved, on the south side of Wash-ington street, about 1200 feet west of Western avenue; consideration named, $10,000. Purchasers will resub-divide.

South Woodlawn.

Alex Culver, for himself and other property owners, applied to the Council recently for the extension of the Maple-avenue car line to and through the South Woodlawn tract. That section is now building as rapidly and as solidly as almost any other in the city. Upward of 256 houses have been constructed beyond the end of the Maple-avenue line within the past eight menths. Purchases of unimproved lots in that tract at prices ranging, from 3550 to 3750, and aggregating something over $10,000, are among the recent deals in that locality. Mrs. George Mitchell, who recently bought the northeast and also the southeast corner of Forty-second and Main streets, will improve one of the lots with a frame store building. Among other purchasers are William Dorn, O. Sassamen and Mrs. Jane Woose.

San Pedro and Winston.

San Pedro and Winston.

One of the small purchases of business property noted in the early part of the week exclusively in The Times, was that by which W. H. Obear secured from Nicholas Mercadante a lot 50x117 feet, on the northwest corner of San Pedro and Winston streets, with a two-story frame business building, having stores on the first floor, and rooms on the second floor; consideration named, 116,000. A fair price for an income-producing property that will never be worth less and will, probably, be worth considerably more money in a few years.

Justice and Frank Petit of Oxnarchave purchased the Frank Speai Rancho, near Bardsdale, in Ventura comprising 400 acres; consideration named, $35,000. A desirable property.

Messrs. W. F. West. W. L. and C. O. Lindholm have purchased of Messrs. Morgan, Hudson, Whomes and Sturtishent twenty acres, unimproved, on the northwest corner of Prospect boulevard and Western avenue, Hollywood; consideration named, $25,500. It is reported that the purchasers buy to subdivide, and that they will put in first-class street and similar improvements. Sale is reported through the agencies of W. H. Townsend & Co., and L. S. Mc-Kinney & Co.

Stiff prices, as previously offers have been refused for choice business properties that are greater than those properties can be made to the city limits, and west of Central avenue, for the purpose of establishing a thoroughly first-class track and amusement park. Such an institution naturally brings much business to a street railroad line, and the companies are all anxious to have it in their territory. A short time ago a Los Angelesman acting, as agent for investors, was looking around for a suitable location for a race track, and was about to recpay interest on, except by the making of such expensive improvements as can only be undertaken with safety by those who are decidedly strong financially. Close-in parallel business streets, and well-located cross streets streets, and well-located cross streets will eventually rean the benefit of this. streets, and well-located cross streets will eventually reap the benefit of this policy on the part of owners, which, to a certain extent prevents further development on principal business streets, but the immediate effect is depressing. The tendency of investment is toward new tracts, and in some cases tracts are placed on the market which are too far out to be desirable, and in which the quality and the quantity of the street work to be done is very uncertain. Desirable investments are to be had in well-located tracts, in which the best of street improvements are either made, or absolutely guaranteed to buyers, and purchasers should remember that in puting money into the other 'speckes of tracts, they do so at their own peril. More boom features are noticeable in some of the outside investments now being offered the public, than have been heretofore in evidence, and a word of warning at this time is certainly appropriate. Buying and improvement in the residence districts of the city continues active, and developments in those lines, which make will eventualy reap the benefit of this

New Firm and New Subdivision.

The real estate business continues to attract citizens from other lines of industry, and scarcely a week passes that does not see some accession to the ranks of the real estate agents. One of the latest firms to go into the real estate business is the Home Real Estate Company, which has incorporated. The members of the firm are Wilbur O. Dow, A. W. Ellington, C. H. Minton, James B. Baldwin and H. H. Kerckhoff. Mir. Dow has had much experience in the real estate business, having formerly been a member of the firm of Grider & Dow. Por several years past he has been engaged in mining, and has delayed going back into the real estate business until he could secure conditions that would enable him to maintain the reputation he has carned as a conscientious dealer, who gives his patrons a chance to make money. Mr. Ellington has conducted a successful dray business at the corner of Fourth and Important Acreage Deal. One of the purchases of the week that will, probably, exert a more far-reaching influence upon the advance-ment of values in the southern porment of values in the southern por-tion of the city, than any that has been reported for some time, was that noted exclusively in The Times of Fri-day, by which Epes Randolph, John A. Dunn, and associates, secured. from various parties, the 160 acres lying just south of Slauson ave-nue, and extending from Central ave-nue, on the east, to South Park ave-nue, on the west; consideration named $116,000. C. A. Summer has purchased of Frances Winstel, for an English syndicate, through the agency of Henry B. Spencer, forty acres bounded on the north and south by the lands of Peter Young and of E. J. Baldwin, respectively, and on the east and west by South Park avenue, and Main street: consideration named, $40,000. This is one of a series of purchases of acreage properties in this locality which Mr. Sumner has made recently for the same parties, and is no part of the property recently bought in the same neighborhood, but further south, by local investors, for a race track. It is reported that the acreage just purchased is to be subdivided at an early date.

Improvement and Subdivision Isaac N. Reed sells to Harry and Thomas Weiss, through Percy H. The Fall River Herald has discovered in the mass of measures now before the General Conart the following, to which it calls especial attention:

"Against injecting poison into a per-on without his consent."
"Against the sale of explosive latches." "To regulate the size of bricks."
"To regulate the size of stalls for horses."

"Relating to sale of articles said to be of solid gold."

"Pertaining to Chinese laundry checks."

"For greater safety of passengers on tow boats."

The Varian Press has recognity for the secondity.

The Vatican Press has recently its sued, under the direction of the Society of Saint Jerome, a first edition of 190,099 copies of the Four Gospels and the Acts, for circulation among the Italian, and the books are sold as low as four cents apiece. The introduction contains a most remarkable and conciliatory allusion to Protstants as "our separated Protestant brethren."

In a recent article a missionary to China tells how one native was martyred during the Boxer troubles. He was put into a deep hole which was then filled up to his knees, and he was ordered to recant. He refused, and the dirt was shoveled in until it reached his walst. Stil he was firm. Then he was covered up to his heck, and given one more chance, but he retused it. The hole was then filled up entirely, and the young Christian buried alive.

There is a native church among the Zulus of Durban which sends out every male member who is at all available, to do preaching. The church thus averages more than fifty meetings a Sunday.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prestration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydin E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MES. PINEMAM: - 'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so bleesedly helped and benedited. I have used Lydia E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. Indigestion America's National Disease Jo Indigestion is America's National disease. It is responsible for more sickness in America than all other causes combined. It is but one step from indigestion to dyspepsia and another to Catarri of the Stomach. Indigestion is the all absorbing cause of Catarrh of the Stomach.

Repeated attacks of Indigestion inflames the mucous membranes lin-ing the stomach and exposes the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete a poisonou solution, instead of the natural fuices of digestion. This is the condition of the stomach when it swells after eating. It causes heart-burn, headache, bad breath, sour risings and Catarrh of the Stomach.

The only way to permanently cure Catarrh of the Stomach is to remove the cause. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures indigestion and removes the cause of Catarrh of the Stomach forever. Stimulants or Tonics relieve for a time, because they deaden the nerves of the stomach. If they are much used the system requires them forever afterwards and they finally derange the liver'

Tablets containing soda relieve because of their alkaline effect, but their continued use destroys the secretory power of the gastric glands.

KODOL does not only relieve, but it cares permanently because it exercises no depreciating influence upon any organ, and by reason of its digestive, assimilative and nutrient properties, it nourishes and strengthens them all.

KODOL relieves inflamm. on of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and enables the glands to secrete the natural juices of digestion. This is wherein KODOL digests what you eat, and enables the stomach and digestive organs to transform all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of rich, red blood that makes health, strength, tissue, brain, brawn and bone. The use of KODOL produces a condition in which all the functions of the stomach and digestive organs are exerted with regularity and harmony.

No appetite, loss of strength, sour stomach, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, happily combined, in a most pleasant and palatable form, with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cut does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the Nature is willing that perfect digestion should be maintained, and a grateful stomach sweetly responds with growing appetite to the strength-ening effect of Kodol upon the digestive organs.

Venezuelan President Gives Up His High Office.

Surrenders His Functions to Head of Congress.

Officials at Washington are Surprised-His Retirement Only Temporary.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-A.M.] CARACAS, March 21.—[By South American Cable.] President Castro has resigned. He placed his resigna-tion of the Presidency of the republic of Venezuela in the hands of the president of Congress after reading the Presidential message.

In the ordinary course of events, President Castro's term would have ended Pebruary 20, 1908. He was elected President of Venezuela in Pebruary of last year for six years. February of last year for six years, nning February 20, 1902. Nor Castro handed over the exerise of the Presidential functions

NO COMPLICATIONS. (BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
WASHINGTON, March 21.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] No serious internanal complications are expected to low the resignation of President stro of Venezuela, although it is resignation was brought about by interests that are unfriendly to the United States. It was learned from perfectly good unthority tonight that Castro will coninue to be what he always has been In Venezuelan affairs, the complete dictator, and will exercise the office of President through his brother. It agotiations with foreign powers, alhegotistions with foreign powers, although that course will be subtly opposed by England and Germany. This government would be better pleased if Castro would really quit Venezuelan affairs. There is a large number of officials here who do not trust him in the slightest degree, and the United States would be better pleased if some strong man were in his place. It is not believed that any strong man will get hat any strong man will get als plac, and Castro will be as potent a sver.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The irst intimation received by Secretary Hay of President Castro's resignation

Hay of President Castro's resignation ras given him by the Associated Press dispatch announcing the fact. He would not discuss the matter, however, beyond stating that the news ras unexpected.

Herbert W. Bowen, Venezuela's plenipotentiary here, likewise not having been informed until shown the lispatch, said that until officially advised, he would be unable to give an raplanation or any views on the subject.

SNEAKS' WORK.

W. A. Hayes of No. 1241 Elysian avenue, reported to the detectives yesterday that during the night before a thief had entered the place where he was sleeping and stolen his trousers, containing $9.75, and his watch. The clothing and watch were found in an adjoining yard. Perry Huddleston reported the loss of a gold watch and chain from his room in the Leroy 'House, No. 424 South Hill street. He had left his door unlocked.

The death of Nathan M. Hallock, resident of the Merchants' National yesterday afternoon at the Pacific Hos-pital, resulting from an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Hallock started from his Eastern home on the 18th of Feb-ruary as a member of the Gates' Mexican tourist party. While in the Grand Cañon he contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. He arrived in this city last Tuesday. Mr. Hallock was 56 years of age, and unmarried. One sister survives him.

Stampede of Kingman Residents to New Gold Diggings of Startling Report-Miners Killed in Shafts by Fall

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) March 14.-It has been determined necessary to spend $100,000 more on the Prescott water and sewer systems and a special elecon to determine upon the issuance of this amount in municipal bonds has been called by the City Council for April 7, only taxpayers being eligible to vote, under the new law just passed by the Territorial Legislature. Eight heavy hydraulic pipe. The town restion of a steel standpipe. An auxiliary pumping plant should be put in about half way to Del Rio, to diminish the end of the line, and the outfall sewer must be extended a distance of two miles. The constructing quartermaster at Whippie Barracks has informed the City Council that the city sewer dump is too near for the health of the garrison. John Duke, a chronic litigant living below the city, has filed a claim for $15,000 damages, based on the location of the outfell several Months. location of the outfall sewer. He has kindly consented to give the Council until May 1 to pay the damage, though at a further cost of $1000 a month thereafter. Plans outlined by the City Engineer for the expenditure of the money realized by the bond sale show that the city will have the money realized by the bond sale show that the city will thereafter be guaran-teed a supply of at least 600,000 gallons a day of the purest of water. The Mayor and Council are still at loggerheads and the Council refuses to nfirm the Mayor's nomination of T. G. Norris as City Attorney. The Cocil has referred some legal matters E. E. Ellinwood.

Some time ago something of a flurry was known in Winslow by a report that it had been found to be in Coco-nino, instead of occupying the promi-nent position of metropolis of Navajo county. Investigation by surveyors showed the town safely located in county. Investigation by surveyors showed the town safely located in Navajo county, about three miles east of the Coconino line.

From Kingman is reported a veritable stampede of residents to new diggings, lately discovered about thirty miles to the westward. The first information of the strike came a few days ago, on the arrival of a Mexican prospector, with samples of ore he had broken from a ledge discovered by him and his brother a few days before. The rock is said to thoroughly sparkle with free gold. The Mexicans have sunk a few feet on the ledge and tell that it grows better with every foot of depth. The Indian Bureau is expending $5000 in the construction of irrigation works on the Navajo reservation. Six miles of canal are to be built to irrigate 1500 acres of land.

Fred Pomeroy, killed a few days ago by failing into a mining shaft, near Kingman, was a member of Troop B of the Rough Riders, rating as farrier. He was a soldier of the best class and had a notably good record in Cuba, He was highly respected in his home county, and the news of his death was received with the keenest sorrow. He was to have been married within a few weeks.

received with the keenest sorrow. It was to have been married within a few weeks.

Last week Paul Maguire was killed in a shaft of the Big Metal mine, near Kingman. While drilling in the bottom of the shaft he struck a piece of dynamite cartridge, which undoubtedly had been frozen and had falled to explode. The explosion killed Maguire instantly. Joseph Marines was drilling near by, but was not seriously hurt. He climbed to the surface and found Maguire's mother and sister at a ranch a mile distant. The three returned to the shaft, where the women climbed down, seventy feet, and tied the body to a rope. Marinez then hoisted it to the surface, later bringing up the women by the same mode.

Deputy Sheriff Lynne Parker of Apache county was shot and killed at Navajo Springs by a Navajo Indian. The affair appears to have been simply a case of murder for the purpose of revenge for a fancied wrong.

At Camp Verde last week an Apache Indian, about fifteen years old, shot and killed another Indian in a dispute which, concerned the lad's mother. He

Of Experience of the Right Kind of Circat Value. "Exact Cause" Counts for Much.

Experience and training of the right kind is of great importance in all branches of medical practice. It counts for much in the treatment of chronic disease. It proves by the results obtained, that a knowledge of different diseases, their successful treatment and cure cannot be had by guesswork, without a varied experience along these lines, an accurate diagnosis will be lacking, which is the foundation for "Exact Cause" treatment and cure. Those consulting me have the assurance that my diagnosis will be correct, because I do not guess. I use such means as will preclude the possibility of an error. I use the X-Ray in almost all work to become more thoroughly acquainted with the exact condition, so that I will be better enabled to apply by direct method, and thus give you what you meat daire—satisfactory results. MAYE BUYER FOR PED LOW GRADE REPORT MAPS

Prospectus The following is reprinted from our prospectus and fully describes the roposition we offer to homeseekers and investors.

Within the past three years the stock of the Maclay Rancho Water Company, operating in the San Fernando Valley, has been purchased by Los Angeles capitalists, who have developed a large amount of additional water and have made many improvments in the company's plant; which is now well equipped with over thirty miles of pipe lines and cement ditches, pumps, power p'ant, etc.

The Water Company which was organized originally as a Cooperative Association issued water rights to about 4000 acres of land, but did not develop sufficient water to justify bringing it under cultivation, and about three-fourths of the land and water rights is still unimproved. The greater portion of this unimproved land is first class orange and olive land, and with water for irrigation, it only needs improving to make it pro-

During the past two and a half years the water company has devoted itself almost exclusively to the development of water and to the improvement and enlargement of its plant-and with good results. Now that sufficient water has been developed and facilities have been provided for handling it, it is the purpose of the owners of the Maclay Rancho Water Company to bring this unimproved land under irrigation and thereby add to the income of the Company's plant and to increase the val

To accomplish this purpose the Water Company will improve this land in tracts to suit purchasers and will take all the care of the land and the improvements, where it is desired, until they are profit earning.

Both the orange and olive industries have been thoroughly proven in this tract. They pay better returns on the money invested than can be realized from any other use to which the land can be put, and it is these industries that we look to make this land equally profitable to the purchaser and the seller.

The improvement of this land by the Maclay Rancho Water mpany is taken up with the belief that the land can be improved on a large scale with better improvements and cheaper than it can be improved in small tracts, and that there are many people who want orange and olive orchards if they can have them without bothering with their care until they into bearing, and withou: paying the prices obtained for bearing orchards. The improvement and the cultivation of this land means the increased us: of water, increased dividends and increased values to the owners of the Water Company. And we can afford, and have made the prices such that they mean good seekers.

The first orange and olive trees were planted in this tract fourteen years ago, and although the growth of the industries was retarded by the lack of sufficient water for irrigation, and by the time required to thoroughly demonstrate the success of orange and olive growing in this district, there are at the present time in this tract and adjoining it some of the most valuable orange orchards and by far the largest and most valuable olive orchards in California. The fruit grown here is as good and brings as good a price as in any district in the State. The soil is rich and productive, and there is no FROST-NO SCALE, BLIGHT OR OTHER PESTS, which means incomparably much to the successful growing of oranges and olives This district has not received the advertising that has been given to many orange districts, as the majority of the orchards are owned in large trac's, either by peop'e who are con-tented to live here or by investors who are satisfied with their investments. And there is an incomparably smaller percentage of acres of bearing orchards for sale in this tract than in any other district in the State, which would not be true if the district did not have exceptional merits for growing oranges and olives.

All the land that will be improved and sold has been carefully classified and only As orange and olive land will be planted to trees, and only first-class nursery stock will be used in planting. A most every modern convenience afforded by a city can be had in homes built in this tract—bathrooms, patent toilets, etc., and the cost of a ten-acre orchard improved is less than cost of a sox150 foot lot in a desirable residence portion of the City of Los Angeles.

Rich and productive soil; water irrigation at low rates; a district free from frosts, scale, blight and other presented in the scale of the s delightful climate; pure water; warm days of sunshine; cool, sleepy nig splendid schools and churches; 40 minutes from Los Angeles. Water for domestic purposes, and land and improvements at the cost of bare land in o districts, are the inducements we offer to homeseekers and investors.

ORANGE ORCHARDS

The unimproved orange land in this tract with water piped or ditched to it, set out in orange trees with three-year-old roots and one-year-old buds, 80 trees to the acre, with two years' water for irrigation, and with all the care of the trees and the land for two years after planting will be sold at $250 to $275 per acre, according to the land selected.

The experience of growng or nges in this trac: is that the second year, a ter setting out three-year-old toots with one-years-old bads, the trees bear some fruit, but usually the yield is really not profitable until the fourth and sometimes the fifth year. Orange trees at this age and until they come into profitable bearing require close attention, and their future crops depend very much on the care they receive

For the benefit of those who cannot personally take care of their orchards after the first two years, we are preparing a schedule of prices to be charged for mplete care of the land and trees, which will be furnished on application.

OLIVE ORCHARDS

The olive land with water delivered to it and set out in olde trees will be sold at $175 to $200 per acre, and the land and the trees will be irrigated and cared for for three years without additional cost. Those who wish to have their orchards cared for after the first three years and until they come into profitable bearing can obtain a schedule of prices to be charged for the work upon application,

PROFITS OF ORANGE AND OLIVE GROWING

In estimating the profits to be derived from the orchards pr posed to be planted and sold, the past average yield of the bearing orchards now in the tract, and the average prices that have been received for the fruit is taken as the yield and prices to be expected in the future. If this comparison is unfair it unfair to the future, as the most unfavorable conditions in the past will not be re-encountered, namely -the lack of water for irrigation; experiments with different varieties of fruit and treatment of the soil. The orange orchards in this tract have averaged about 10 boxes of oranges to the acre the third year after having been set out; one box to the tree the fourth year; about one and one-half boxes to the tree the fifth year, with an increase of a little over one-half a box to the tree each year until they are fourteen break between S. P. Creasinger, he of "barrel-of-money-to-loam" fame, and his attorney, W. H. Shinn, Esq.

On the eve of a $20,000 suit by the Red Cloud Mining Company, of which he formerly was president, Creasinger finds himself without the assistance of the lawyer who has been in his employ for several years, and, furthermore, he is defendant in a suit filed by the same attorney for services rendered.

Ever since last February Mr. Shinn says he has been trying to break away from his client, but he had so firm a grip on the bear's tail that he was un-able to shake lears grip on the bear's tail that he was un-able to shake loose from the critter. Creasinger says everything is lovely between him and Shinn, only the law-yer "got huffy too soon."

Shinn says he has tried for many months to reach an understanding with Creasinger, but that the barrel-of-money man refused to pay attention to communications.

"He always was a great one to 'stave off' people," says Attorney Shinn.
Shinn enumerates twelve suits in which he has been retained by Creasinger lately, many of them still open, Among them are actions brought against Creasinger by Josefa Pico y Bernal de Gottliebson for the recovery of $125,000 for alleged fraud in a Mexican land deal, and by numerous other plaintiffs, the total amount of the lot being $145,534.

For effecting a settlement between reasinger and the Red Cloud Mining company, Shinn claims he was entitled a about $3000, only a part of which he as been paid, he avers. He assigned he claim for the remainder to A. C. tine, in whose name suit has been filed or recovery of the amount.

Company, Shinn claims ne was entitled to about $3000, only a part of which he has been paid, he avers. He assigned the claim for the remainder to A. C. Hine, in whose name suit has been filed for recovery of the amount.

HARD WORK TO LET GO.

After trying in vain to induce Creasinger to release him as attorney, Shinn applied to the court to have professional relations severed, and finally compromised with Creasinger by agreeing to permit the matter to run until tomorows.

In preparation for the fuffillment of the agreement of Creasinger to settle the matter at tomorrow's meeting. Attorney Shinn yesterday handled up the papers in which the interests of Creasinger are concerned, and upon their delivery to the barrel-of-money man today, the attorney and the client would not pay for-services rendered, neither would he release the attorney.

Shinn claims he was in an awkward position. He says his client would not pay for-services rendered, neither would he release the attorney.

Creasinger seemed to have a high opinion of the legal acumen of his inwyer, and he was loath to let him go.

During the tangle in Red Cloud and other affairs, that came up while Creasinger was in the East, Shinn says he devoted his entire time to "barrei-of-money" affairs. He says he warded off creditors and performed other valuable services, and then was unable to obtain full compensation.

Creasinger says there were other bills to pay besides that of the attorney.

Creasinger also insinuated a few things about Shinn yesteday that would not look well in print, although he said he would not "knock" the attorney for the world, He said that Shinn is not the only attorney in the land.

He is a philanthropist, he says, and claims to have extended his benevolence into the affairs of the mining company to an extent that is undreamed of by the people who have brought the action against him. It is claimed by the piaintiff in the sensational suit, that Creasinger, then president of the Red Cloud Mining Company, cheated the company on the purchase of mining claims, and on the sale of stocks, and purposely got the company in a hole, in order to make blood money getting it out again.

Creasinger represents to the company that he paid 75,00 shares of the company's stock for the claims; is alleged to have actually paid 50,000, and kept the other 25,000 shares, then worth 10 cents a share.

Creasinger had charge of selling the treasury stock, but is alleged to have sold customers his own stock instead under representation that it was treasury stock. In six months, he is alleged to have sold 100,000 shares of his own stock at 50 cents a share. Result, company runs behind and $10,000 has to be raised to carry on mines.

Creasinger hencevolently offers to raise the $10,000 if the company will issue shares of stock to Warren Gillelen. The latter is alleged to have turned the stock back to Creasinger. was—and has sold The Times regularly for three years.

Most people didn't know that there was a Jimmie Frank, but many did know a tousled, freckled-faced, energetic urchin of about twelve winters, who might have pased by that name.

Last Thursday Jimmie Frank quit the newspaper business and went up a notch. He has stepped from the asphalt to the cabin of a private yachtail in one bound.

Just whether he ever really had a faither or a mother, Jimmie does not know, although he is sure of having possessed at one time, a bunch of younger brothers and sisters.

These tots all depended on Jimmie for support, or if not for actual support, for friendly and fatherly care and advice. The Frank tribe lived down in a little hut on Macy street, near the river, and it was hard siedding to make things go at all times. However, a sister who worked at the American Can Company's factory, on Anderson street, was a good housekeeper, and the domestic affairs of the wee multitude prospered in good shape.

Teres have changed since. Jimmle's big sister has been "sent for" by an aunt living in the East, and the rest of the youngsters have been adopted or are boarding out. That leaves Jimmle free to follow his own free will—and the sea.

A year ago he went to Pasadena for a while, and shouted the news near the Hotel Green for a few winter months. One of his regular customers was an old British sea-dog. Capt. Winthrop Murray. Capt. Murray was visiting a friend of his, Dr. L. W. Thorpe, now of this city, and frequently met Jimmle in his early morning rambles.

His fancy was pleased with the sturdy freedom and self-reliance of the little chap, and he promised him, among other things, that he would some day take him for a sail in his yacht. Then he went away, and probably forgot all about it.

Jimmle didn't forget. He came back to this city, and kept a close watch on Dr. Thorpe—and Dr. Thorpe also knew just where Capt. Murray was. So when the English tar came back to Los Angeles last week, Jimmie was "put wise" and watched every chance to get to speak with him. Capt, Murray's yacht, the Trafalgar, was being put to rights in San Francisco Harbor, as Jimmie walk new your ship?" This was the alarming question fired at the visiting seaman, as he walked down Broadway the other morning. Jimmle was not in the least disappointed when he was told that that was almost out of the question now, as the Trafalgar had a full convolument.

Engineers say that the task is by no means a difficult one. Color is loaned to the report that the Santa Fé has been approached for an accommodation by the fact that from Barstow on into the desert along the proposed route of the Sait Lake rails and ties are being distributed by the tens of carioads, whereas, from Barstow back to Riverside the route even has not been determined.

HURRYING BRIDGE BUILDERS.

HURRYING BRIDGE BUILDERS. bridge across the Santa Ana River has been progressing rather slowly, and it was only this last week that J. Ross Clark, vice-president of the road, had several long conferences with the company's engineer, H. Hawgood, urging him to stir things up and lose no time in completing the stupendous structure. This fact is but one of many to show that the company has very suddenly gotten into a rush about a project that has been jaunting along very slowly for two years, until there was little wonder that the public should become somewhat dublous of final results.

The latest news, however, is a complete explanation, and well may it give impetus to a rapid achievement of another transcontinental line for Los Angeles.

DINDINGS OF THE COAL STRIKE COMMISSION.

The report of the Anthracite Coal pission is published in this moraing's dispatches. The report is unanimous, all the commissioners signing it. Republicans of that city, in planning the programme for the President's contemplated visit, had studiously ignored

As is usually the case in the settling Mayor Harrison, and had left him out of controversies by arbityfation, both addes gain some points. The miners are awarded an advance of wages of put upon the city's Chief Executive, about 10 per cent. A "silding scale" the President objected to being made a is also provided for, which will advance the wages of miners when the Culiom and Hopkins to the White selling price of anthracite advances beyond a certain minimum. The hours of labor are shortened somewhat, to disapproved of the arrangement, to respect that Mr. Harrison be made a member of coal and other disputed points which pertain more directly to the percentage and that he has accorded exercise consideration due. which pertain more directly to the practical operation of the mines, and which will presumably be satisfactory to the mine workers, if not wholly so form Mayor Harrison personally that

While the vital point of the controthe nature of things, be barred out entouched upon this question, the deci-sion is against the United Mine Workcontroversies through a permanent joint committee, to be known as a "board of conciliation." For the pur-pose of creating this board, the whole districts, and from each of these dis-tricts the miners and the operators are question is to be referred "to an umpir-to be appointed, at the request of said rd, by one of the circuit fudges of United States, whose decision shall be plan is provided by means of which all tating a strike, which invariably

Another provision is that "there of the miners or mine workers of any colliery or collieries to limit the out-put of the mines or to detract from the quality of the work, unless such limitaion of output be in conformity to an nent between an operator or ting a majority of said miners in

The demand of the unions that non-union miners shall be discriminated against—and even refused, in effect, the right to live—is emphatically turned down in the commission's report. This demand is so monstrous, and so utterly enable, that no other disposition could have been made of it, with any appearance of justice. This point, how-ever, is the crux of the entire controversy. If it had not been raised by Mitchell and his men, the strike would probably not have occurred, or it would at least have been comparatively easy of settlement. The inculcation of habits of thrift is certainly an important and desirable feature of youthful training, especially in a country like this, where money is spent so freely, and often so wastefully. If children were taught the value of money, and how to save it, we should not see so many useless wrecks floating around, nor would the records of the mercantile agencies show that more than 20 per cent. o employers association for the purpose of res, sting the extortionate demands and absurd regulations of labor unions in that place. In Los Angeles it has been in force for about two years. As usual, Los Angeles leads all other cities of the country in amount of school savings, and in number of depositors, for the time it has been using the system. There are now between six and sever thousand depositors, they having deposited up to date $41.45, and have withdrawn $15.367, leaving to their credit a balance of $26.278. Quite a creditable showing this for the little financiers of the future. The system works well, and a great majority of works well, and a great majority of the principals and teachers appre-ciate the educational value of the plan, and do all in their power to aid it. There are vague rumors flying around of the possability o, a disastious financial panic in this country, during the coming fall. BOERS IN MEXICO.

A Party from South Africa Holding Lands Under Advisement-Meantime

Delivering Lectures.

The trekking Boers are of the elusive sort. Every now and then there are rumors printed in the public press of a new trek of the Boers from South Africa. Reports of the intention of large bodies of these people colonizing in the Northwest comes one day, and another day their destination is given as the Southwest. Various parts of Canada have been spoken of as being attractive to them, and again it would appear to be their desire to buy large tracts of land in Texas, in Sonora, in Lower California, and many other places. But, up to date, no tangible evidence has come to light of the Boers making good any one of these reports. The rumors, however, are still flying in the air, and the latest spot on the continent to be favored as a Beer habitation, is Old Mexico. There are all kinds of Boer generals, colonels, captains and commandants down? there at the present time, the privates probably waiting for word to come later. Big

SAN BERNARDINO, March 21, 1993.

—[To the Editor of The Times:] The infamous Jim Gray has left town, thank God. And he was a very lucky man to get away with a whole hide. While here he walked 'nto the store of Mr. Ham, on Third street, made a 5-cent purchase, and laid down a little blue card that read: "Members of trades unions patronise you; in return they ask that you do not patronize the Los Angeles Times."

To say that Mr. Ham delivered that 'individual in man's form' a lecture on Americanism would be putting it middly, indeed. 'Jim looked like 20 cents and made his escape without much ado. For once he got up against a man that was enough for him. But while Gray has left town he has also left in his trail an drganized gang of boycotters that will now proceed to make life miserable for the business community, until checked by the authorities. After securing the town for make life miserable for the business community, until checked by the authorities. After souring the town for a week he succeeded in getting a lew of his kind together last night at the Labor Hall, where they wrangled and chewed the rag until nearly morning, and when Gray left the hall he suilingly told the gang that if he found that he hadn't done damage enough this time he would come again. This same gang had their methods looked into last season by the postal authorities, and were given to understand that they must keep off of Uncle Sam's grass. Therefore they had best tread lightly and "look a leedle oudt."

Delivering Lectures.

Boer generals, colonels, captains and commandants downs there at the present time, the privates probably waiting for word to come later. Big tracts of land have been shown the visitors, honors are being heaped upon them, and they are delivering lectures to the people at the usual price of admission. But, as yet, they have not bought any land.

The Boer party now in Mexico consists of Gens. Snyman, Fouché, Joubert, Viljoen and Kritzenger. Col. Milan, Commandant Jangwhoed and Capt. O'Donnell. They do not claim to represent any sndicate, but are act. ing for themselves and their friends in South Africa. Who refuse to take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain. They have been received in public audience by President Diaz, who welcomed them to Mexico, and considerable attention has been shown them by Minister Mariscal, and other government officials. While at the capital the third degree in Masonry was conferred on Gen. Viljoen by Totse Lodge, No. 214, F. and A.M.

A letter from Mexico reports the party now there as giving the glassy eye to one. "Gen. 'Saul Pierson, not of the United States Army," but an impecunious adventurer, engaged in working" the railroads and posing eye to one, "Gen. Sail Flerson, not "of the United States Army," but an impecunious adventurer, engaged in 'working" the railroads and posing as a land-seeking Boer, He was recently haunting the hotels in Chicago and pretending to mean business.

Land agents in Mexico are indefatigable in their efforts to find a suitable location for these prospective colonizers and no end of propositions have been laid before them. They appear to be well inoculated with proverbial Dutch Quiton, however, and have, as yet, given no signs of having made a choice. It is barely possible that they will leave Mexico when their lecture tour is at an end, and change their minds entirely about locating there.

Possibly these alleged "embattled farmers" are merely dealers in hot air.

An editorial recently photosend in this paper under the caption "Down With the Boycott" has elicited from an esteemed contemporary an inquiry as to how the Democrat and Chronicle proposes to go to work to down the oycott.

city. No active step whatever need be taken to down the boycott. All that is necessary to kill it is that it shall be ignored. To ignore a boycott is not very difficult unless one is unfortunate enough to be a coward. It ought to be, in theory at any rate, far easier for free and self-respecting American citizens to ignore a boycott than to obey it. A boycott has no force of its own. It derives its strength solely from the cowardice and subservience of those who submit to it. It has nothing back of it, not a shadow of authority, not even physical force.

A boycott is a ban of excommunication proclaimed by persons who have no authority, nor semblance of authority, to proclaim such a ban, nor any power, legal or physical, to enforce it. Why should any one heed it? From another point of view a boycott is an imperative order issued by a few American citizens to the great mass of their fellow-citizens. These few citizens are entirely unrepresentative and unauthoritative persons. They have no claim whatever upon the obedience of their fellow-citizens and no power to compel their obedience. When they issue their peremptory orders to everybody in general not to do this, that or the other perfectly proper and legal act, they are, rightly viewed, absurdly presumptuous. Why should hundreds of thousands of free American citizens humbly submit to be ordered around by perhaps a dozen or two American citizens, clothed with no power or authority whatever to make rules and regulations for the conduct of their fellows?

There is no reason under the sun why anybody but the boycotters themselves should pay any attention to a boycott order. And if nobody but the boycotters should pay any attention to a boycott order what would become of the boycott. To down a boycott all that is needed is that nobody should heed it.

But music is music, and not "mere noise and fury, signifying nothing," as my of friend. Bill Shakespeare once casually remarked.

You human creatures make just as big mistakes when you lower musical taste in the community as you do when you reduce the moral taste to the gutter-snipe level. In these days of education, general advancement, abundant opportunity and splendid progress, it beats me why "you all" should be satisfied to listen to alleged music that bears no more resemblance to the real thing than a bear trap does to a grand piano.

The government of the United States is constantly needing money to do business with. Only a short whie ago there was an internal revenue tax on about every old thing there was in the way of papers, checks, and things of that sort, and today we hear mutterings in favor of an income tax. But here is a pointer for the tax collectors of the nation—let them tax every composer of a rag-time song ninety-nine per cent. of all he makes from the sale of nation—let them tax every composer of a rag-time song ninety-nine per cent. of all he makes from the sale of the infernal truck, and put in jail every mother's son-of-a-gun who sings the blamed things, or plays them on a piano, fiddle, dulcimer, hand organ, oboe, bassoon, clarinet, trombone, concertina, bass viol, organ, melodeon, jewsharp, or other instrument of torture when shooting rag-time upon the ambient air, and the problem of funds for governmental purposes will have been solved.

Yea, composer fellows, give us Eagle people and your fellow-sufferers down in the jam there some real music, and not syncopations about bad coons, and gay coons, and fly coons, and dancing coons, and chicken-lifting coons, night in and night out, at music halls and all over the wide land this side the great, deep drink. In the name of all that is sweet and sacred in music, give us some songs that will live until the singer of them can go across the road and back, at least.

of course, it wouldn't have taken any more wind and wear to have played something else than it is tak-ing to wheeze out "Mollie Shannon," but the bandmaster seems to have

Say, fellows, you may not think that music counts for much in that busy and trying old world that you are digging holes into, and building houses on, and running wheels over and paving with asphalium, and laying some some in and paving with asphaltum, and laying sewers in, and stringing telephone lines across, but that is exactly where you are committing one of your numerous errors—for as sure as you live, good music makes for character. It is educational, as well as editying, it is unlifting, as well as debasing, it is unlifting, as well as debasing, it is a vital force in the world that lies out yonder in the sumshine, and that is going rolling along in the same old pathway between the stars to an end about which it is useless to speculate.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

There was no sequel to the midnight track-laying flasco yesterday and no steps were taken by the authorities. A communication has been sent to Councilmen by the Municipal League regarding the terms of franchises.

PAILWAY OFFICIALS ALLEGE MIS-TAKE IN ORDERS.

No Aggressive Steps Taken by the City Authorities Who are Mystified

by the Action of the Company's Repair Gangs-Municipal League on

Officials of the Los Angeles Railway Company say that the midnight track-laying of Friday night was entirely due to a mistake in orders given the repair gangs. City authorities are at a loss what to think, and no steps whatever have been taken. The only result of the episode at the City Hail has been to cause a search of the records for possible franchise concessions, that were granted in the long ago. find any franchise running south of

Jefferson street on Main street, and that as far as he was aware, the company had no right whatever to tear up the street across the Southern fear up the street across the Southern
of the Maple-avenue, San Pedrostreet and Central-avenue franchises, revealed no right possessed by the company to cross the steam tracks, as attempted Friday night.

In May, 1857, a franchise was granted to John C. Lynch, beginning

ust east of the Plaza, and running south on Los Angeles to First street, on First street to San Pedro street, on San Pedro street to its junction with South Park (formerly Stanley) avenue, and thence to the south city boundary line at Slauson avenue. The portion of the franchise on South Park avenue was supposed to be dead beyond the hope of resurrection, as no attempt has been made to build on the street. However, the action of the company indicates a different opinion at street railway headquarters. The Central-avenue franchise was granted in 1891. It began at she Junction of Main and Marchessault streets, ran on Marchessault to Los Angeles street, on Los Angeles to First street, on First to San Pedro street, and over Wolfskill and Central avenues to the south city boundary. The boundary was then about where Thirty-eighth street is today. Although the franchise could not be unearthed yesterday, it is presumed that another concession has been granted, either by the city or county, allowing the company to run as far south as Slauson peny to run as far south as Slauson avenue.

An index of fanchises showing the streets covered by the several grants is now being prepared by the City Clerk, and this is to be followed by an abstract of franchise, both city and county, which will enable the authorities to trace the routes of franchises in something less than a week. This improvement in the records has long been needed as the only way to find what right a company has to a street at present is to read all the franchise ordinances passed since Los Angeles became a city. If the companies could be forced to file a notice of assignment every time these franchises ordinances much of the jug-

LIFE OF FRANCHISES.

Members of the Board of Public Works yesterday received letters from the Municipal League signed by A. B. Cass, president, and C. D. Willard, secretary, suggesting that, with a view to future municipal ownership of the Bircet-railway system, the term of all new franchises, especially extensions secretary, suggesting that, with a view to future municipal ownership of the street-railway system, the term of all new franchises, especially extensions of old lines, should be such that all franchises will expire at the same time. The letter follows:

"Acting on a request from a number of members of the Municipal League, we venture to suggest to you, as a member of the Board of Public Works, that the term of the franchises that are a mere extension of the main system should be such as to make them to incide with the period that the main franchise has yet to run. In other words, the grant for a franchise for an extension would terminate in the same year as the grant for the main line.

"This practice is coming to be very generally observed in other cities, and has been in vogue in Chicago for many years. As a consequence of this policy in the latter city, when recently the franchise for the original system ran put, the franchise for most of the connecting lines terminated at the same time. A few had been omitted and hees omissions have been the cause of sonsiderable disturbance in the effort to readjust matters, either under new franchise or under municipal swnership, as the case may be.

"These extensions are so plainly a part of the original system and so thoroughly dependent upon it for their walue, that they should be given no life apart from that system. Their berm therefore should exactly coincide with the remaining period of the original franchise.

"While not attempting to advocate at this time any plan for the municipal swnership of the street railways, we hevertheless contend that no unnecessary obstacle should be placed in the tway of such a plan in the future."

QUESTION DISCUSSED.

President Bowen and CouncEman McAleer discussed the communica-

President Blowen and Counceman McAleer discussed the communication yesterday, and reached the conclusion that the suggestion should be acted upon in some way. It was thought that some date might be fixed leyond which the life of franchises should not run. President Bowen suggested that the best way to arrive it this date would be to take the average life of all the franchises extant and arrange the terms of subsequent grants, so that all franchises should

MUNICIPAL STRAWS.

A further postponement of the bond sale is being considered by the Finance Committee of the Council. It is probable that June 1 will be the date finally set. At the last session May 15 was decided upon as the date of sale, but it has been found that the semi-annual payments can be made to greater advantage on June 1.

Councilman McAleer will recommend to the Council tomorrow that the Street Superintendent be instructed to construct a walkway along the east side of the Pasadena-avenue bridge across the Arroyo Seco, for the accommodation of the children who attend the Swain-street school.

At the session of the Fire Commission yesterday morning it was decided to have the fire department turn out in the Fiesta flower parade, May 8. The date of the semi-annual inspection was changed to that date also. Commissioner Kuhrts called the turn on Maj. Diss. Phelan Calls on Snyder.

James D. Phelan, ex-Mayor of San Francisco, called on Mayor Snyder yesterday morning. Mr. Phelan has been touring the southern part of the State for the last three weeks, but expects to leave for San Francisco today. Speaking of the new charter Mr. Phelan said yesterday: "I am watching with interest your charter experiments. San Francisco has incorporated the initiative and referendum in the charter, but not the recall. The only use made of it so far was by the gambling element which succeeded in having a measure proposed by the Supervisors against gaming submitted to a vote of the people. From the utterances of members of the Supreme bench, I am inclined to think that the initiative will be declared unconstitutional as soon as it is carried into that court." Mr. Phelan says San Francisco is making thorough preparation for the reception of the President during the three days which he will spend in the Bay City.

Ancient Order of Zig-Zags.

Habitues of the City Hall will do well to steady their nerves and watch the devious and mysterious windings of the Ancient Order of Ziz-Zags, which has been revived among some of the city employés. Zealously guarded are the secrets of this most noble order, and the identity of the members are kept a profound secret. It can be stated, most positively, however, that the organization is entirely devoid of any political significance, as deputies of all political beliefs belong to the society. Although the order is spoken of in whispers as the Zig-Zags, it is creditably stated that an even more mysterious significance attaches to the real name of the organization, which is said to trace its identity back to Zadie Zantippe, the respected wife of Socrates. Be that as it may, there is widespread currosity among the deputies in the city's prownstone front to find out the ourgoves of the new order.

That they were disobeying a city ordinance in their interest are a second to the control of the

aide of the business center, almost every day, but nobody can probably recall when one of these was arrested. The two little fellows brought in yesterday had no idea they were disobeying any law by accepting the opportunity to make a little spending money. Yet they were forced to spend several hours in jail, and must return to the court on Monday, thus, owing to their industry, they must also miss school on that day. If there is to be no more discrimination than this, the Juvenile Court cannot get into operation too soon.

Frank Holland was before the Police

Frank Holland was before the Police Court yesterday on a charge of vagrancy, to which he pleaded guilty and will be sentenced on Monday. Holland is the man who recently married a woman, and located her down in the "cribs," and within a few days took out a license to marry her sister.

G. W. This last expression, "in relation thereto," will receive notice later on Defendants deny that either of these constituents has been shown. With reference to the first of the constituents, which I have named, the difference between the government and the defendants' counsel is this: That the government contends that it is sufficient if the illegal purpose existed in the mind of Jules Dallagiovanni, while the defendant contends that such illegal purpose mut have been in the mind of both the girl. By the court—In the case now on trial, United States vs. Mme. Baron, the pending motion is a motion for peremptory instructions.

The third section of the act of March 3, 1875, which is the statute in controversy, reads as follows: "Section 3. That the importation into the United States of women for the purposes of prostitution is hereby forbidden, and all contracts and agreements in relation thereto made in advance or in pursuance to such illegal importation and purposes are hereby declared void: and whoever shall

It will be observed that the first clause forbids the importation into this country of women for purposes of prostitution. The second clause declares void all contracts and agreements in relation thereto made in advance or in pursuance of such lilegal importation and purposes; while the third clause of the paragraph creates two distinct offenses. The first offense is the illegal importation into the country of women for the purposes already indicated. The second offense is the holding of any woman to purposes of prostitution, in pursuance of her illegal importation and the contract or agreement in relation there.

The offense charged by the indicament in this case is the second offense; there is bottless to the second offense; there is bottless to the second offense;

geles banker, now gone before, expressed to the editor of this journal the opinion that Los Angeles was destined to become a great financial center, drawing money from all over the United States, a center of heavy financial operation (Including life insurance.) where great industrial and commercial operations may be financed. There is no good reason why his prediction should not be fulfilled. A beginning has been made by the establishment of a first-class life insurance company in this city, the second to be established on the Pacific Coast, tile other being located in San Francisco. Few people stop to consider what the possibilities are in this direction.

Roughly estimated, $7,000,000 is co'lected annually from California as lifeinsurance premiums, and sent East to build up Eastern cities. About half this amount comes back. The business constantly grows and since the outgo is first and the inflow only at the maturity of policies, the amount of business constantly increasing, this ratio is about right. Los Angeles is as well located for a lifeinsurance company as is Milwaukee. Milwaukee receives an inflow of money amounting to about $30,000,000 yearly by Angels.

POMONA.

BROUGHT BLOWS. POMONA, March 21.—An exciting encounter occurred in front of the new library building this morning when H. C. Register, the contractor, struck in the face E. E. Armour, a druggist. The cause was hasty words resulting from a discussion about some earth, sand and debris that has been partly obstructing the Main-street sidewalk during the construction of the building. Mr. Armour, who lives near the library, stopped to ask Register to clear the sidewalk, and the latter stated he had a building permit to occupy part of the sidewalk and street during the erection of the building. The conversation waxed warmer, and Register passed the lie to an assertion made by Mr. Armour, who plated his bicycle near Register and told him to be cureful how he talked, whereupon the latter struck out with his fist, hitting Armour and raising welts on his cheek and forehead as the two men went down together in the dust.

Armour is a small man, partially crippied. He is confined to his home, and Register has been arrested on a charge of battery. Register has been set for Tuesday morning before Recorder Lee.

HOW I CURE WEAK, PUNY MEN.

Give me a man broken down from excesses, dissipation, hard work, or worry, from any cause, which has sapped his vitality. Let him follow my advice for three months and I will make him as vigorous in every respect as any man of his age.

I will not promise to make a Hercules of a man who was never intended by nature to be strong and sturdy. Even that man I can make better than he is; but the man who has been strong and has lost his strength I can make as good as he ever was. I can give back to any man what he has lost by abuse of the laws of nature.

A man who is nervous, whose brain and body are weak, who sleeps badly, awakes more tired than when he went to bed, who is easily discouraged; inclined to brood over imaginary troubles, who has lost ambition and energy to tackle hard problems, lacks the animal electricity which the Dr. McLaughlin Electric

The whole force a vitality in your body is dependent upon your animal electricity. When you lose in any manner my Belt will replace it and cure you. DR. McLAUGHLIN—Dear Sir: I suffered for several years from lumbago and general broken-down feeling. In this condition it was hard to make my run as engineer on the S. P. Railread. After using your belt for two months it entirely cured my siltents, and I've had no return of the pain since. I feel far better than I have for years, and shall ayways recommend your Belt, for it restored me to health. Yours truly, Letters like that tell a story which means a great deal to a sufferer. They are a beacon light to the man who has become discouraged from useless doctoring. I get such letters every day.

My belt has a wonderful influence upon tired, weak nerves. It braces and invigorates them, and stirs up a great force of energy in a man.

Give me a man with pains in his back, a dull ache in his muscles or joints, "come and go" pains in his shoulders, chest and side. Sciatica in his hip, Lumbago, Rheumatism or or any ache or pain, and my Belt will pour the oil of life into his aching body and drive out every sign of pain. No pain can ever where my get is worn. HENTON, DR. M. C. McLAUGHIAN— Dear Str. I have only worn the Belt for six weeks, and it has done fine in my case. Every in and weakness has left my log, and I am as well as ever. Now, what does this mean to you, dear reader? If you are not what you ought to be, can you ask any better proof to make you try it? Is there a remedy which is as simple, as easy to use, as sure to cure, and as cheap as Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt? I have not seen one. You must try it. In justice to yourself and to those who look to you for their future happiness, try it now. Act this minute. Such a matter ought not to be delayed.

Men's Diseases Doctor Harrison Cured

The tendency among men to neglect minor ailments is responsible for many a blighted life, Happiness and safety demand that skilled medical aid be sought upon the first manifestation of weakness er other disorder in men. Neglect means the encoming of aggravated conditions that will in time involve the general constitution. During my sixteen years as a specialist in men's diseases, I have met with every possible complication of private ailments, My success in effecting permanent cures has never been approached. I have acquired the understanding and perfected the methods that enable me to accomplish results such as have been regarded

"Weakness"

Sixteen years of observation in actual practice have proven to me that "weakness" is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, etc., without the giving of a single internal dose, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years I have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that I accept for treatment. I am equally certain that no treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

Varicocele

The perfection of my method of curing varicocele is no less than a marvelous achievement, and affords a striking example of the wonderful possibilities of the mild and gentle forms of treatment. Equally forcible, it demonstrates the folly of resorting to surgery in the treatment of this disease. I cure varicocele in one week without cutting or pain and seldom is it necessary to detain the patient a single day necessary to detain the patient a single day from his business. A cure is a certainty in each instance, normal circulation is sestored, and the natural processes of waste and repair are again established throughout the organic system, why suffer variococle and endanger your health and manly power? I offer you a radical cure, and my treatment is independent of the harsh, painful and dangerous features that characterize the methods usually employed.

Cures

We do Not Ask for a Dollar Until You are Cured Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt.

Our Success in Curing Diseases of Men is Unquestioned and is Without Paratlel on the Pacific Coast. It is due to Our Perfect Method of Curing Men.

We are so well known throughout California and Arizona that t is unnecessary for us to publish our credentials. Our success in curing alling men has been phenominal; our cured cases armbering into the thousands. Our good reputation has been well earned. We are proud of the fact that we are known as the Specialists whose large business has been built upon 'merit," whose word with a patient is sacredly kept, who promise nothing we cannot absolutely make good. As has been often stated by us-our success comes from the fact that we are educated physicians-our ability to cure is based on just that education. It has shown us how to profit with experience until our work has become perfected and simplified, thus bringing about the best results, gratifying to our patients as to ourselves. It is easy, so easy for men to say on paper they can cure, easy to boast of their work, what they have done, what they can do, etc., but to the ailing man such talk should count for naught unless they can have actual proof of his ability to do all he claims. "It is just this fact" we want men to consider, for "Dr. Harrison" is always ready to show hundreds of cured cases, thus proving his ability to do just what dreds of cured cases, thus proving his ability but his honesty. We oughly convinced of not only his ability but his honesty. always welcome men who come to see us. We are glad to give them a plain talk, explaining their cases truly and fully, giving them just the advice needed. We wish men to understand that we are not boasting pretenders to skill we do not possess -we are specialists in "men's diseases;" for many years we have given special attention to this class of troubles and so thorough has been our work, so varied our experience, so happy the results, that we feel we are justified in saying to the public, that "we honestly excel in this work." If we have done good work, making a success in our specialty. we only ask the credit that is our just due. Never in America were Such Handkerchief Bargains.

Folks will buy them to take away. Folks will bny them for Christmas time. Folks will buy them for the children. Folks will buy them to send East. Every Weman will buy plenty for her ewn personal use.

Of Importance to Every Woman.

The story of these handkerchiefs is full of interest. Some one recently told a Hale buyer that a certain manufacturer needed money. Within a day this manufacturer had sold his entire stock of 15,000 dozen handkerchiefs to the seven Hale stores. Never did any retail organization buy so many handkerchiefs at one time. There are more than 500 different patterns, and not one of them that isn't charmingly new and exquisite in design. Think of this, more than 106 patterns are here at 31/c. The very nicest ones in the lot we have marked at 121/c. You can imagine what a bargain it was for us.

Tomorrow all the seven Hale stores will begin at the same moment the sale of these handkerchiefs; the same styles, the same prices, at all the stores at the same time. The biggest newspapers of the entire State will apread the news of this transaction all over California. No one will care whet her they need handkerchiefs. Everyone will bny; buy for themselves, buy for other folks, buy to keep, buy to give away.

Thirty salespeople will sell nothing but handkerchiefs at Hale's tomorrow.

In Hale Garments at Hale Prices.

All That's Rich, Dignified, and Exclusive

It's to be a wonderful season in our garment department. It has begun so. It could not be otherwise. No woman who detects true style can help seeing the difference between Ha'e garments and the ordinary sort. No woman who seeks a fashionable, becoming, and serviceable suit, skirt or jacket can help feeling the thrill of admiration in inspecting the lovely garments on sale at Hale's. Prices seem out of all proportion of what you expect to pay. You see in some window a suit marked $50.00, and you'il find something at Hale's that is equally as stylish and becoming marked $25.00. You note jackets that seem pretty, yet when you have been to Hale's you find newer styles that are ever so much more pretty. It requires no clever salesmanship to sell Hale garments. The moment you see them you are delighted. Their becomingness, their perfect fulfillment of all that you have seen described in your fashion journals, the impertment prices that seem to just laugh at competition—but you would not think of buying anything

HOKE SALE HALED, PEDNO POS ANGELES There's so much said about wash goods it's a little difficult for us to lay before your mind our vast range of materials and new ideas. If some stores speak of ordinary fabrics with extravagant phrases, what shall we say of this exquisite, delicate material, shown exclusively by ourselves. Our stock is different-very different. Somehow there's more spirit and freshness to POMONA the patterns-there's more of that clinging beauty. Wonderful advances have been made in the art of mercerizing, so that many of the cotton goods have all the appearance and daintiness of silk. In fancy wash goods you will be fairly bewildered with the host of novelties. SANTA Remember constantly how exclusive the Hale patterns are. Prices are usually lower than you are asked for the every-day fabrics shown everywhere. You'll be particularly interested in this beautiful, favorite material. The Obscurity of Great Inventor.

There are, however, millions of people who have heard and enjoyed or are hearing and enjoying one of the grandest most ennobling and moralizing gifts the world has ever received, and yet it is safe to state that less than one thousand souls know or ever heard of the donor whose great invention has proven such a solace to mankind.

FLOGGING FOR "CRIMES."

Flogging, however, is the favorite punishment for serious "crimes." It is done with a cane, generally a knotted one, if no more disagreeable weapon is handy, and not a detail is omitted which is calculated to add either to the physical pain or the moral indignity of the beating. Here are the exact terms in which Admiral Cochrane, who called public attention to his nephew's case, in the columns of the Times described such a flaggelation: "This flogging was administered on the lower part of the back which was bared for punishment by the removal of the nether garments, and blows of great severity applied with a cane or stick in numbers varying from six to forty.

"A young officer last year, who received the latter number, fainted under the cruel severity of the punishment; but even six blows with the instrument employed are sufficient to make blood flow, as was constantly

The year after the Chicago World's Fair Muskel brought his ideas into something like working order, and attracted the notice of a German scientist, who earnestly requested an interview. At considerable expense Muskel went to New York City, and as the "professor" seemed interested and kindly disposed, the enthusiast not only explained his plans, but let him have the working model, which he had made after years of expense and toil into something resembling the shape of the completed device. at Leretto," confided Charles M. Schwab to a friend who met him in one of the gilded hails of the Partistan fashionable set. "This sort of thing wearies me to death. I detest it. It's no rest to me. In the old place where everyone calls me 'Charlie' I feel at home and can throw aside every care. I'm going back there just as soon as I can persuade my wife that's it's the best place for us."

The people of Loretto know that Schwab will be with them as soon after he sets foot on American soil as a fast train can take him, and preparations are already under way in the queer little village in the Alleghanisa to give the steel king a royal welcome. It doesn't take long for the entire population of Loretto to agree on anything, for there are only 20 souls in the place, and of the fitty-nine houses that make up the village six are untenanted. Every man, woman and child in Loretto is a Catholic. That is one reason why Schwab, the most devout churchman in the world, loves Loretto, and has spent a fortune building a religious structure that seems strangely out of place to the visitor who finds his way to this corner of the mountains, for nearly every building in the village is of the rural cottage variety.

To get to Loretto it is necessary to so to Cresson, five miles away. When you get off the train at Cresson it is only necessary to ask any child where "Charlie" Schwab lives to be piloted in the right direction. For Schwah, not so very many years ago, drove a hack and sold newspapers in the vicinity of the station and competed for the hackmen he is still "Charlie," and anyone who would address him as Mr. Schwab would be looked upon with suspicion. The drive from Cresson to Loretto, which Schwab will probably take in company with a procession of vehicles when he returns home, is along five miles of the most picturesque roadway in the country. It winds in and out through the woods, always on the up grade, until the sky line of Loretto bursts into view around a bend.

THE next attraction at this theater will be Charles B. Hanford, in "Taming of the Shrew" and "Much Ado About Nothing." The engagement opens tomorrow night, and is for the entire week. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Saturday matinée "Taming of the Shrew" will be presented, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings "Much Ado About Nothing." Mr. Hanford comes with high critical indorsement. He is an actor of attainment, and although his visits to the West have not been numerous, they have yet served to build up for him a numerous clientele. As Petruchio in "the Shrew" he has won deserved laurels, and his Benedick in "Much Ado" has been received with great acclaim everywhere. In THE next attraction at this theater

Between the Italians and the English Victorien Sardou is having a lively time over his forthcoming play, on Dante. The Italians think it unpardonable that he should have put the great poet on the stage, while Sir Henry Irving strains at the presence of a wicked Pope. The cast of Liebler & Co.'s "Romee and Juliet" has been practically completed, although four names are still in abeyance. According to the contracts already signed the cast will be as follows: Miss Eleanor Robson, as Juliet; Kyrle Bellew, as Romeo; Eben Plympton, as Mercutie; W. H. Thompson, as Mercutie; W. H. Thompson, as the friar: John E. Kellerd, as Tybalt; Edwin Arden, as Paris; Forrest Robinson, as Benvollo; F. C. Bangs, as Montague, and Miss Mary Shaw, who is now starring in "The Ghost," as the nurse. Of the four characters yet to be filled one will probably be with Jameson Lee Finney, who has been starring under Charles Frohman's management. Negotiations with Stuart Robson fell through for two reasons. The principal one being the state of his health, which is in such a serious condition as to render his appearance a matter of great doubt. The second was the amount of money which he wanted, a sum that would turn the highest-priced vaudeville artist green with envy. Another, keen disappointment was the failure of the physicians to declare Miss Clara Morris physically able to play the part of the nurse. The question was submitted to several medical experts, but all agreed that she could not undertake such a tour at this time.

DeWolf Hopper has called down on his big, round frame a veritable deluge. The offer covers the prize only as Mr. Hopper agrees to pay the winner the usual rovalties on the piece that he selects as the most suitable one. It is said that the offer has stirred up the embryo humorists to such an extent that even this early in the game Hopper is flooded with scenarios and

The remarkable resemblance between Charles B. Hanford, the Shakesperean actor, who comes to the Los Angeles tomorrow night, and William Jennings Bryan, erstwhile Presidential candidate, has been the source of some fun for Mr. Hanford. During his second campaign Bryan was swinging round the circle at a terrific pace, making half a dozen speeches per day. He was due in Waco. Tex., at a mass meeting which was advertised for 2 in the afternoon at the leading theater, where the James-Kidder-Hanford company was to play the same night. The train was late, and the audience impatient with the rather inferior flight of local orators became clamorous. Mr. Hanford, on the way to his dressing-room to make ware all was ready for the evening, entered the stage door about this time, and was dumbfounded at being seised by two men, hustied on the stage, and announced amid wild applause as "Mr. Bryan." While the audience was yelling Hanford found occasion to prove an allibi.

"You must de something for us," said the chairman.

"But I'm a Republican," protested Hanford. It was agreed finally that he should recite "The Star Spangled Banner," which put every one into a good humor again. At the end of the recitation Bryan appeared, and raised a good laugh by reterring te the actor as "my brother Dromio."

THE STORE YOU HEAR SO MUCH ABOUT

Spring's Newest Millinery Paris Pattern Hats $10.00 to $25.00

Easter millinery is here in profusion. The Paris pattern hats are making many friends. And when you consider that we price French millinery just as we do carriet tacks and cotton cloth (at a fair living profit) it's no wonder that women take most kindly to the chic millinery of Paris. Usually the fence of high prices encioses all the foreign hats—so that wemen of mederate means can only afford to leok over the fence. But our mode of pricing millinery has taken down the bars, and the coveted French creations are within the reach of almost every women who aspires to a Paris pattern hat.

White Coods for Confirmation Suits.

ANUFACTURERS and designers have vied with one another this season to produce weaves so dissimilar from those of previous years that it would be a physical impossibility for any one store to show all of the new weaves which can rightly claim attention. But with a buyer in Paris, another in Yokohama, one in New York and with our own unequaled corps of local buyers who make frequent trips to the manufacturing centers, we have been able to select those weaves which we are satisfied will be most popular this season. This week we shall specially feature the white goods, inasmuch as these dainty textiles are wanted for the coming confirmation classes and first communion dresses. White and cream goods are to be more generally used this season than ever before.

GOOD STORIES FOR CHILDREN---By Walt McDougall

Tos Angeles Sunday Times IV.

The Story of a Magic Bed on Which Frank Went to Arabia and Did Some Very Wonderful Things

RANK HANSON was a little boy who did not believe in fairies nor even in mermaids, but all of his brothers and sisters placed the firmest reliance in the stories that their Uncle
James told them about such things. Dot, the girl, was even fonder of listening to such stories than Paul or Kent or Rodman, and she always laughed was even fonder of listening to such stories than Paul or Kent or Rodman, and she always laughed when Frank said there are no elves or brownies and there never was an Aladdin's lamp at all. Now you'll see how Frank was undeceived and how he found out that lots of magic things still exist if we only know just how to find them. Mr. Hanson, his father, was a match manufacturer, but his business had fallen off tremendously of late, partly because other men could make matches cheaper and better by newer machinery and partly because Mr. Hanson spent too much time attending to his whiskers.

His whiskers were truly wonderful, and perhaps no one could blame him for devoting so much time to them, for they were two feet long and of a beautiful blue-black hue. At first he used to spend hours combing and brushing them and listening to the winter winds whistling softly through them, making an acolian music; but as his mind weakened, perhaps because too much of his strength went to hair, he got to braiding them and then arranging them in patterns and designs, tying them in fancy figures, true "lover's knots," "niggerheads" and the like, until finally he could shape his beard in the form of animals like rabbits, guinea-pips, turtles, hens, etc.

sume two hundred and twenty-nine distinctly dif-ferent shapes. Naturally, his match business lan-guished and almost vanished, but Frank attended to it after school, so that the factory earned a few hundred dollars every week, or enough to support such a large family of boys and girls.

UNCLE JAMES WAS A MAGICIAN

His Uncle James sometimes assisted him, but James Hanson was a queer man. Frequently he would disappear for many days and suddenly return without any explanation and stay with his brother for a week, when off he would go again. He always took his bed with him wherever he went, a narrow iron bed that folded up so that it could be carried, and he was always far more careful and particular about this bed than of anything else that he possessed.

Now I'll whisper a secret to you while nobody is

James Hanson was a magician, having learned the art from a wizard named Gilligan in his youth, the art from a wizard named Gilligan in his youth, and so he never had to work for a living, and this little ordinary-looking iron bedstead, for which no-body would give two dollars at an auction, was a magic flying-bed. All he had to say was, "Fly, you Bed!" and away it would sail to any place he desired to visit. That's why the bed always disappeared when James Hanson did. One morning James was pleading with his brother to stop toying with his whiskers and attend to business, and after listening patiently to him Mr. Hanson exclaimed: "I will stop, for I have an idea in which there is money!"

"I will stop, for I have an idea in which there is money!"

"What is ft?" asked his brother. "A noiseless whistle or a smokeless cigar?"

"Neither. It's a twirling umbrella. Just a couple of steel ribs like a pair of bicycle spokes, but by an arrangement in the handle it will twirl around so fast that not a drop of rain can fall on the man who carries it over his head."

"I guess you'd better stick to your whiskers," said James in great disgust, and he left the room. Next morning he had vanished. Frank went to call him and the bed was gone.

"Uncle James has gone again!" he cried. "Here again, back again, gone again to Gilligan. He has gone, bed and board, whatever that means."

But time passed on and Uncle James did not return. Finally when all had given up hope of ever seeing his genial face again the little iron bed was return. Finally when all had given up hope of ever seeing his genial face again the little iron bed was discovered, all mussed up, in his room. But he did not appear, and for days they wondered at this remarkable occurrence. After a time the bed was removed to the garret, where sometimes on rainy days the children played

Sometimes they were wrecked on desert coasts and almost starved, so that they, cast lots and decided to eat Dot, but help came before they turned cannibals. She was so sweet that sometimes they regretted that they had not been forced to sample her, but she was very, very glad it hadn't come to the worst. Sometimes the bed was a fort, a blockhouse or a castle besieged by the enemy on all sides, and noble indeed were the feats of the bold defenders, Dot loading the guns as fast as they were discharged at the enemy. It was a robber's cave, an automobile and even a department store at times, but strange to say they never happened to make a wish while in the bed, so that they never discovered its magic qualities.

FRANK TAKES A TRIP

One winter morning Mr. Hanson was trying to arrange his whiskers in the shape of a ship in full sail, and finding that the children disturbed him exceedingly at the task, he packed them all up to he garret, where they began to play at being a family of old-time gold-seekers on their way across the Rocky Mountains. Indians, bears and mountain-lions were everywhere, and the danger was so near that they were all huddled close together in the bed-wagon and Frank was growling so terribly to represent a grizzly bear among the rocks, that Dot became frightened.

Dot became frightened.

"Don't let us play at being Rocky-mountainers!" she said. "Let's be an excursion on the river in the good old summer time."

This was better, and while they were sailing swiftly down the river and admiring the scenery, Paul proposed to go in swimming, whereupon all but Frank, who was at the wheel steering the boat, jumped overboard and swam around on the floor buffeting the waves valiantly. Suddenly Frank said:

"I wish we were in some nice, warm climate. I'd

"I wish we were in some nice, warm climate. I'd like to be in Arabia this minute where the 4-trees and dates grow."

Instantly the bed, with Frank in it, vanished like smoke from the garret, frightening the children so that they almost fell down stairs to tell Mr. Hansen what had happened. He immediately went to the garret to see for himself, and the shock was so great that somehow it caused him to lose his re-

What happened to Frank after that was most interesting, and I would not have believed it if he had not told the story to me himself. He found the bed shooting through the air with inconceivable speed, so fast that he could scarcely see anything speed, so fast that he could scarces, the below at all. Sound travels, they say, two thousand below at all. feet per second, but the wonderful flying bed went even faster, so that before he really got over his astonishment and fright, for I must confess he was dreadfully frightened at first, he found himself in a warm climate and sailing along over a bleak and lonely mountain range, the mountains of Jebel Shammar, that towered over a sandy desert.

Jobel Shammar, that towered over a sandy desert. The bed slanted toward the earth after crossing the mountains and went slower an slower until it hovered over a narrow stream called the Wady Ermek, so called because it runs in a "wady" or valley. Here were so many date palms and fig trees that it was really like a forest, and along the tiny brook beneath the shade of the waving fringe of woodland he saw a dozen striped tents which he knew must be those of Arabs, for he had often pored over pictures of them in his geography.

Two little Arab boys saw him first, of course, for boys are always on the lookout, and they ran away yelling with fright. Then an old man appeared, a man so old that he walked with great difficulty, and when he saw the flying bed he fell flat on his face crying, "Allah! Allah! A genie!" Then came another man not so old but still aged, and he was also terrified, but he stood still, and, trembling, stared at the wonderful spectacle. He was clad in a gorgeous robe of red and yellow and wore a great curved sword at his side, and Frank knew at once that he must be a sheikh or chief of a tribe of Bedouins that roam the desert all their lives long. Of course he was pretty old, for that is what the word Sheikh means. He was a bold Arab, however, and soon his courage came back to him and he said:

THOUGHT HE WAS A GENIE

"If it is a genie, my father, then we are lost; but behold, it seems to me but a small boy upon the back of this strange thing that flies through the air!" The old man mumbled something, but still remained flat on his face. Then the Sheikh said to

Frank:

"My father is old and toothless, therefore his words are faint. Because he has no teeth he can speak only Gum-Arabic, O stranger from the sky!"

Frank, seeing that the old bed was gently hovering like a bird about to alight, whispered to it and directed it to descend beside the men. It instantly obeyed him and he found the secret of controlling its actions. It minded him just like a gentle horse. "What is this place?" he asked the Sheikh.

"This is the pleasant vale of Ermek," replied the man.

"And who are you?" added the lad.
"I am the Sheikh Omar Khayyam Guzzla, and this is my tribs. Here, lying prostrate before your highness, is my aged and worthy father, the ex-Sheikh of the tribe, who is now too old to do anything but smoke. Do not be offended because I do not fall on my face before you, but the fact is I have the rheumatism co bad that if I once fell down I would find it very difficult to arise again."

"I'll excuse you, of course," said Frank. "But you must instruct your people to be careful about it, as I always expect it. I am visiting your country to see how you live and what sort of schools you have and all that sort of thing."

"Have you had your breakfast?" asked Omar.

When Frank replied that he had caten nothing since supper the Sheikh clapped his hands, and instantly several slaves ran out of the striped tent and asked for orders. He bade them prepare a magnificent meal at once, and when it was ready Frank sat down to his first arabian repast, a number of dishes of fried dates, boiled figs, roc's eggs, Turkish Delight fig pasts and Mocha coffee.

HEARS ABOUT THE WHIRLBAT

Then he was introduced to all the tribe, for, after you have eaten with an Arab, he trusts you and admits you freely to the bosom of his family instead of taking you to a club and buying you a dinner like an American. His children were very vice, and Frank was instantly attracted toward them, but the curiosity of the Sheikh was so great that he had to leave them and answer his questions about the land from which he had come on this wonderful conveyance. When the chief had learned as much as Frank thought he could remember, he asked a few questions himself, for so little is really known about Arabia that all the mans have him have a second few questions himself, for so little is really known about Arabia that all the maps have big bare spaces on them marked "Sandy Desert," but where there are lots of little towns full of people, especially in Arabia Felix or "Happy Arabia." Around the valley in which the tribe was resting there was a good deal of desert land and great mountains with gloomy narrow vales into which the Araba were afraid to venture, for from the most ancient times they said they had been the haunts of goblins, demons and jinns or genie.

In former ages, even before Egypt had been settled and built up, this part of the world was densely populated; hundreds of great cities dotted the fertile plains, for the climate there was more moint populated; hundreds of great cities dotted the fer-tile plains, for the climate there was more moist and less arid, and the most beautiful as well as the most enormous buildings, perfect palaces, filled with treasure, stood on every hilltop. Gardens planted with rare and wondrous flowers, spice trees and fruits were everywhere, while immense arti-ficial lakes with vast walls of hewn stone supplied the tall-flashing fountains in the courts and gardens with pure water. Humming-birds, doves, butter-flies, buibuls and pheasants flitted through the green foliage and music was heard in the cool shades everywhere, but now as Frank looked out over the everywhere, but now as Frank looked out over the land he saw only crumbling ruins and gray, sullen sand under a blazing sun; and it was difficult to be-lieve that from this destroyed and lifeless land all the civilization once went out to Greece, Egypt, Persia, India and perhaps even China, thousands and thousands of years ago.

"Let us go into some of those dark valleys," he said to Omar, "and see what there is there. Perhaps some old palace may still remain untouched by time or robber bands and we may find some a tiques."

"Not much!" cried Omar. "I am too careful of my health. I've been hearing all about the things that are there, and I am satisfied with that. Don't want to see them personally at all."

"Well, I'll go alone," said Frank. "You may be sorry, when you see me coming back with precious things, that you didn't go along."

Then the Sheik's father, Ben Ali Haddem, spoke and said:

"Danger threatens the man who dare intrude upon the repose of the jinns. My father's grand-uncle once, long ago, went into one of those dark wadys where dwell the evil ones and when he returned he was a mad man."
"What made him mad?" asked Frank.

"He was crazy," replied the aged Arab. "He had left his mind in there. His hair was white as mine is now and he showed by his eyes that he had seen something awful, for he never lost that dreadful stare of terror as long as he lived. In fact, he only lived about thirty years after that and he was never lived about thirty years after that and he was never the same man."

"After all, I suppose there's nothing much to see in there," said Frank. "But I think I'll take a little trip around and see the country. So far I've seen nothing but piles of ruins."

"Shades of Jemshid!" cried the Sheikh. "That's about all you will see here! Allah has blighted the land with a curse and all is gone to crash ages ago."

"How did it happen!" asked Frank. "What caused all this ruin and devastation. Perhaps it was earth-quakes."

all this ruin and devastation. Perhaps it was earth-quakes."
"Earthquakes nothing?" said old Ben Ali Haddem. "It was the Whirlbat and no other."
"What on earth is a Whirlbat?" inquired Frank. "I've heard of dingbats and brickbats, but never of a Whirlbat."
"It is a dreadful midnight marauder, a winged terror that swoops down in the darkness and slays; a hideous, ravening, treacherous, cunning monster?" answered Omar, shuddering and looking furtively behind him as if he half expected to see the thing appear.

"What does it look like? Have you ever seen it?"
"Yes, twice. Once when it carried off my brother, Mohamet Yacub. A mere boy I was then, and in the twilight it swooped down and seized him and bore him away before he could say 'Jack Robinson.' although that was not what he would have said, of course, being a Bedouin.

"When did you see it again?" asked Frank.
"Two years ago in the autumn, when I was coming out with a caravan from Mecca. It came as before in the night and took my best camel-driver, Mike Fatima, as quick as a wink. I saw it quite plainly that time."

"What did it look like?"

"Like an enormous bat—a bat as big as seven-

President Rossevelt and the Crum affair, and half a dozen about the coal situation.

As for the Americans who travel here, it is only the Daisy Miller kind who attract attention to themselves, and Europeans, seeing their freedom and lack of conventionality, draw the strangest conclusions. For instance, here is the way we are parodied in an illustrated publication, which I picked up the other day (and the French flustrated is "the limit.") A picture of a young lady in a bathtub taking her afternoon plunge, the door opens, and the maid ushers in a gentlemen in full dress. The young lady looks up, and noticing the look of horrified surprise on his face, exclaims: "Ah, pardon, Monsieur, mais fetals deve en Amerique." (Ah, pardon, M., but I was brought up in America.)

There is, however, a series of letters now appearing in Le Ficaro, written by Jules Huret from New York, sent over there to write up America.

The subject that is more discussed than any other in the Paris dailies, is the ever-decreasing birth-rate in France, a subject of grave concern to the economists, and to the War Denartment particularly, and which furnishes the theme for some very splcy and interesting articles.

Apropos to this subject, I have noticed in the weekly statistife of births and deaths, that as a general average one-third of the births are tilegitimate.

Property pays 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. on the investment. Property has doubled in less than two months in many parts.

We are particularly speaking to the individual who thinks that the chance for meney-making has passed. We also want the attention of every man or woman, old or young, who can command a little capital, The enormous increase in the value of property in Los Angeles is the result of growth, yet at Ocean Park the precentage of growth is greater than in any other point in the state. This growth continues to increase-constantly faster-for not only are families moving from Los Angeles to this beautiful resort, but Eastern settlers are buying and building. No climate, no water, no location, no surf, no transportation, no conveniences in any beach resort begin to approach what you find at Ocean Park. More property has

SHYLOCK HOMES: HIS POSTHUMOUS MEMOIRS.

TORNEY FOR SOLOMON.

THERE was considerable excitement in Cimmeria over the threatened disruption of the Stygian Historical society. Like most other historical societies, this organization derived its membership from the most select social circles of the country, and when, as happened in this particular case, as the meetings of the irreproachone of the meetings of the irreproach-ables of the community broke up in a fierce fight, such as one might expect to witness in the saloon of a sailor's lodging-house, a veritable brawl the whole public was scandalized. It would lodging-house, a veritable brawt the whole public was scandalized. It would have been no more startling had the courtly Chesterfield, and the polished Duke of Buckingham, because of some slight disagreement, taken to pelting each other with petit fours and sandwiches at one of Mme. Recamier's delightful afternoons, and, indeed, stirred the society of Hades more deeply than it had been since the elopement of Romeo with Ophelia, some three years before. The papers were full of it, and for a good deal more than the proverbial nine days' wonder it was the chief topic of conversation at the clubs, cafes and private gatherings. The trouble grew out of the Columbus-Vespucci Controversy as to who discovered America. The society was about equally divided between the partisans of the two, with a small handful, constituting the practical balance of power between them, of believers in the pretensions of Leif Ericson, and at the annual meeting the issue constituted the line between the patforms.

three-ply distinction has always been good enough for me. Indeed, I found it hard enough to make one name without venturing upon three."

"I shall call you as you wish—er—solomon," said I, finding it difficult, even with his permission, to so address him fluently. "To what do I owe the very distinguished honor of this call?"

"I want you to help me out of a very difficult position," he answered. "You have perhaps discovered. Mr. Homes, that there has recently been a slight difference of opinion among the members of the Stygian Historical Society.—" members of the by a clety of America?" 1

"Over the disocvery of America?" I queried.

"Precisely." Solomon replied. "Over the discovery of America. The trouble that discovery has brought upon us people of the old world is such that I sometimes wish it hadn't been discovered at all. I saure you that I am personally glad that it was utterly unknown in my day, for I am sure I don't know what I should have done about the Monroe doctrine, if I'd had to buck up against it as my present prototype. William of Germany, has had to do, and, wise as I am reputed to be, I should be perplexed to know how to deal with the trusts."

"I?" he demanded.

"Well, yes, in a way," said I. "As far as getting married was concerned. I've always thought you were a sort of Matrimonial Montowist, and you carried it off rather well."

"Oh, that," laughed Solomon. "Perhaps you are first, Mr. Homes, I was "The whole question," I suggested.

"Yes—the whole er—question to me, and I don't know the first thing about it. Do you know who discovered America?"

"Well, no, not positively," said I. "I've never taken the subject up, seriously."

"But you have opinions?"

"Which are?"

I smiled. "My dear Solomon," said I. "I sell my conclusions, but my theories I keep wholly to myself. They may not be correct, you know.

"I'll but your conclusions," he cried.
"I need 'em."

"I'm flattered. Solomon," I answered.
"But I'm just out of conclusions today. Maybe next week I shall have a few. Why don't you settle the matter the why you settled the baby question? Just solit the continent in two, and let Columbus be the discoverer of one haif and Vesnucel that of the other, leaving New Jersey or the District of Columbia for Lelf Erieson?"

"It wouldn't do," said Solomon, thereby showing his real wisdom, "There isn't one of 'em cares enough about the country itself to protest against the deader. It wouldn't be a conclusion to the leaving the said of the other.

"I se you point," said I. "But I'll the be conclusion, in the leaving the said of the other. of that precise with when I spake of the trusts—and mideed! I haven't come here to discuss the trusts of the rest of the continuation of the Historical Society that I have in mind. We are all very much ashamed of ourselves over the unfortunate affair of two weeks ago, and we want to do the right thine He! "Serious have to together, and have agreed to arbitrate the question of the discovery of America. Columbus says he doesn't care a continental wind did it, and Vespucel says that after himself. Columbus is his favor to, and they are all willing to thay Leff Ericson for a place, so long as the Historical Society can be rehabilitated. There's a nice spirit in all the cames, and, in order to get together they have consented to able by the decison of the Arbitrator."

"I see, you point," said I. "But I'll help you, Solomon, I added, I'l should to feel, and to be able to say that I had helved you, the wisest man that ever lived. It will look well on my card—Detective by Special Appointment to Solomon the Great—"On, never, cried Solomon, with a most charming gesture, which quite tage there is no other reason."

"I've got to—or perish," said he.
"I've got to—or perish," said he.
"I've got to—or perish," said I. "I've got to—or perish," sai

he strikes me as the most troublesome character of the lot.2 And so Solomon left me. Now it happened that I myself discovered America, in a way, some years before coming here. Yielding to the temptation of fame. I had visited the home of the free and the land of the brave as a lecturer in the mid-years of my successful career and I knew something about the country, and based upon that knowledge, I felt sure I could cross-examine both Columbus and Vespuedin such a way as would elicit the real facts of their individual relation to the strenuous new world.

The following Thursday came, in due course, and with it, along about 11 o'clock in the morning, came also Solomon and the two witnesses. The first to go on the witness stand was Columbus.

leged to have discovered America." I asked.

"I am." said he, flushing a triffe with indignation at my use of the word "alleged."

"You have really been in America." I asked.

"Tush!" he cried in Spanish. "How futile such questioning! Of course I have."

"Did you land at Castle Garden or Ellis Island." I asked.

ing, anyway?" demanded Columbus, "Chesapeake River? Bay of Fundy? Never heard of 'em-before."
"That will do, Mr. Columbus," said I. "We shall need no further testimony from you. Now, Solomon, please call Amerigo Vespucci to the stand." The famous explorer was summoned and in a moment I had him also on the rack.

"Your name is Vespucci?"
"America Vespucci."
"Named after America?"
"Before it."
"Ah! have you ever been to America?"

versued flushed angrily.

"Certainly," he said, "How else could I claim the discovery?"

"That's what I wish to find out," I retorted, drily. "Now, Mr. Vespucci, I should like to have you state to me the essential differences between Philatence."

"Between what?"

"Hetween what?"
"Philadelphia and Madrid."
"Philadelphia and Madrid."
"Humph!" ejaculated Vespucci,
"Philadelphia is a new one on me."
"Do you consider that New York resembles Paris or London the more?"
"I have never seen New York. Where is it?"

"It is on the east, north, south and west of the Bowery, Mr. Vespucci." west of the Bowery, Mr. Vespucci."
"The Bowery, eh?" he queried, scratching his head with a perplexed grin on his face. "Weil, you've got me, there. Mr. Homes. To be quite frank with you, I never heard of the Bowery."

said I. "The examination is finished as far as I am concerned, and I think should prove conclusively, your bonor, that neither of these gentlemen discovered America. When a man pre-tends to have discovered America, and yet knows nothing of Pittsburgh, Phil-adelphia, New York and Washington, adeiphia, New York and Washington, you may rest assured that he has merely sighted it, not discovered it. I therefore recommend that you report to the Historical Society that neither Columbus nor Vespucci is guilty."

"Hmi" said Solomon. "And that the country has not been discovered at all?"

"I"
"I should not go so far as that," said
I, gathering up my papers, and preparing to leave. "The inquiry was confined to the services of these two parties to the controversy. Out of their own mouths they are shown to know nothing of the country they claim to have discovered. There, it seems to me, the scope of this controversy ends."
"Still," said Solomon, gazing at his feet, reflectively, "It leaves the controversy open. Somebody did it."

"Ah-very true," said I. "But as to NELLIE WILLIAMS was afraid of mice, spiders and caterpillars, but she was not in the least afraid of men. In fact, she was accustomed to having men, and strong brave men at that, wait on her and be deeply concerned when she was cross, and much pleased when she smiled. Perhaps the fact that kins Nellie had laughing brown syes and dimples and hair which seemed to have snared the sunlight had something to do with this apparently contradictory state of afrairs.

THE BEAUTIFUL BOETTCHER TRACT

Boettcher Tract are manifold. Only those who have been on the tract can thoroughly appreciate it. Full-grown erange, oak and large shade trees present a most inviting appearance.

No tract can boast of more or better improvements -graveled streets, cement sidewalks and curbing, water, gas, electricity, sewers, and a special feature is 15 ft. alleys. Building restrictions of $1500 insures an array of beautiful cettages, besides the more expensive residences. Surrounding property is all of a desirable nature. Altitude is many feet higher than Adams and Vermont Ave.

Car service is excellent. San Pedro line already runs to tract. Maple Ave. line is only one block west. Central Ave. line runs one block east of tract, and the new road which Mr. Huntington will soon build, will run the full length of tract on its eastern boundary. When this line is completed we anticipate the prices on Boettcher Tract lets to advance fully 50 to 75 per cent.

The Boettcher Tract runs from 31st three blocks south to Jefferson St. Bounded on the east by San Pedro; on the west by Griffith St.

N ALL sides are beautiful gardens, which are absolutely untouched by frost. Everything that grows in California reaches its perfection here. No other sea-

There are statistics galore in this annual report. For instance, it tells of the 424 arrests made by the agents of the society last year. "Just a few of the four hundred" are commented upon in a way that should gain a medal to the man who wrote the report.

The writer casts a shadow over his poesy. He wrote it in prose, but Edgar Allen Poe's rythm cannot be hid un-ler a bushel basket. The human being who inspired the rhyme and rhytam was a man who drove a patient, wounout horse and had to pay a fine of $100 for so doing. Here is the postical comment:

an wao scored him by standing her pet parrot. This incident is told as follows:

It is a terrible thing to be in love, especially when the love is so violent that the jilted man wreaks his vengesnee on a poor inoffensive bird or beast. A young man was in love with a woman, but as she did not seem to return it, he thought he would injure one that she dearly loved. So he deliberately stabbed her parrot, which was hanging on the porch. Polly was speechless, but the judge was not, and in tones of magisterial thunder told the young man either to pay $12.50 or go to jail. The young man had the price, and Polly, who has since recovered, rejoices in the fact that she is still alive. The rights of a bantam rooster, now dead, are commented upon in this way:

"It was enly a little bantam rooster, and just as much subject to the law relating to cruelty as a horse or any other salimal. It flew over a man's fence and annoyed him. The man who was annoyed picked up a broom and injured the bantam so severely that

His amusement cost him $16 and costs, and after many tears, he and costs, and after many tears. and costs, and after many tears, promised never to again indulge such brutal pastime.

TALE OF A HORSE. TALE OF A HORSE.

"If a man had not drunk 50 cents' worth of whisky, and very bad whisky at that, a valuable horse would still be alive. But the man got drunk and inflicted such punishment upon a horse he was driving that the animal died. The man had borrowed the 50 cents to huy the whisky with and as here. The man had borrowed the 50 cents to buy the whisky with, and as he absorbed it he grew into a terrible rage, and while in that excited condition beat the horse unmercifully. When sobered up the driver was very penitent, and after being held in $300 bail for court took the pledge for one year. The horse was looked after by he society."

Free Medical Advice to Women.

Every woman who is approaching maternity. Every woman who feels that life is a burden,

Every woman who has tried all other means to regain health without suc Every woman who is going through that critical time — the change of life — Is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., in regard to her trouble, and the most expert advice telling exactly how to obtain a CURE will be sent abso-

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience - experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success - think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter shows the result. There are actually thousands of such letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham: — I have been under doctors' treatment for female troubles for some time, but without any relief. They now tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, I cannot wear my clothes with any comfort. Womb is dreadfully swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book, accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—Mrs. E. F. Hayes, 253 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

"Dark Mas. Pinkham:—I wrote to you describing my symptoms, and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully for several months, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydin E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, together with your advice, carefully followed, entirely expelled the tumor, and strengthened the whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Your Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors, or any female trouble, to write you for advice, and give it a faithful trial."—Mas. E. F. Hayes, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Rozbury, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes will gladly answer any and all letters that may be addressed to her asking about her illness, and how Mrs. Pinkham

The Modern Ones Have Left Those of the Old School Behind-Athletes are

Now Demanded. [New York Times:] 'I studied in one of the best schools in this country, and served my apprenticeship in one of the leading offices of this city," said the leading offices of this city," said the gray-haired architect, "but I'm of not much account any more. The profession has changed too rapidly for me. I'm all right in designing and building private houses, but they are a drug in the New York market, and an architect must be a structural engineer as well as a designer of classic fronts and beautiful interiors. I studied engineering when I found my clients slipping from me, and I've a pretty good idea of how to build the modern steel buildings. I can plan them on paper, and give exact engineering figures for stress and strain, but I can't superintend the work. The life is too strenuous for me.

and strain, but I can't superintend the work. The life is too strenuous for me.

"I'll fluetrate what I mean and you'll find that I'm not the only old-time architect handlcapped by the modern way of building places to live and work in. I had a big downtown structure under way some time ago, and I went down to see that the steel framework was being put up according to specifications. There was nothing but a spidery outline of steel beams and girders towering above me. The particular part of the work I thought needed investigation was on the tenth floor, and I had to climb up a series of ladders to get there. When I reached the sixth story I felt dizzy; on the seventh I had a queer feeling in my stomach, but when I reached the eighth I thought I would faint. I was never good at climbing, and a high perch always made me qualmish, but by severe exercise of the will power I managed to reach the tenth story.

"Then the boss of the iron workers calmly asked me to walk out on one of the beams to inspect the welding of one of the steel uprights. Well, sir, I was suspended between earth and heaven and one glance downward finished me. I sat down and clung to the girder. My man asked me what was the matter. I answered by offering him 16 cash to get me down to solid ground again. I was so frightened that I wo. I have thrown up the job rather than take another step alone.

"That is what I mean when I say that the modern work required of an architect is beyond me, and beyond that he spent his time up in the air enjoying himself and incidentally accepting a fee from the iron workers to overlook any little slip or clumsy piece of welding.

"It takes a young man to be a city architect today, and one with nerve and a cool head. You can't always combine these with the gifts necessary to make an ecellent architect and engineer. I would advise any young man intending to study architecture today to find out first whether he has the necessary nerve for it. Let him scale a ladder hanging from a rope, run along the cornice of a building fifty feet from the ground, climb the topmast of a schooner, and walk along the crosspieces, and then try a few symmastic eercises from he scaffolding of a modern skyscraper.

"If he can go through all of these evolutions with steady nerves and still has a desire to adopt architecture as a life profession, and can bring studious habits, some originality in designing and a turn for mathematics to bear on the question, he should start in and be satisfied that nature cut him out for business. In nine cases out of ten he will balk before he gets through half the preliminaries, and we will be saved one more old fallure like myself. If we keep on projecting our buildings a few stories higher each year, we shall have to make sailors of our architects first, and then, after a thorough course in that line give them a chance to study the art and science of the profession.

"We need, more than anything else in the profession, young men who can do just what I have described. Nearly every old old firm of architects in the city is looking out for some young fellow who is both an architectural engineer and a climber. If such fellows can't find employment at good salaries the fault is with them.

"I suppose," with a sigh, "It is another sign of the times that old men are no longer needed. Their usefulness dies with them unless they can keep forever young and energetic, but I don't see how anyone can learn aerial gymnastics unless he begins at it early and keeps everlastingly

Acute Inflammatory

Rheumatism

As an instance of quick we quote the case of Joseph Holliday of Los Angeles, California. This young man was taken with inflammatory rhoumatism-it wasn't chronic, for he only had it a short timeand Uricsol cured him in two days—only 1/2 bottle was used. In chronic cases as many
